

DEATH LEVELS ALL

LONDON, September 13.—It is now announced that Gwendoline, the 9-year old daughter of William Waldorf Astor, who died of consumption yesterday at Cleveland, will not be buried there as was at first intended. The remains will be interred in the graveyard of the church at Hedor, close to Cliveden.

Bad Appetite, Indigestion

Mr. Jas. McMath, 31 Inverness Street, Stratford, Ont., states:—"My digestive organs were entirely deranged, my appetite was poor, I was run down in health and had severe attacks of dizziness and nervous headaches. The use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has entirely cured me, as my digestion is very much improved, the headaches have left me and my appetite is real good. I can recommend Dr. Chase's Nerve Food most heartily, knowing it to be an exceptionally good medicine."

Being slightly laxative Dr. Chase's Nerve Food regulates the action of the excretory organs and through its restorative influence on the nerves and muscles ensures the healthful and vigorous action of the respiratory and digestive systems. If you are weakened by overwork, worry or disease, this great food cure is bound to be of benefit to you. As a restorative it has never been approached, 50 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

SIR WILFRID WHILE IN PARIS IS INTERVIEWED BY LE JOURNAL

The Views of Canadian Premier as Set Forth by a Parisian Journalist—He Thanks Heaven for Having Been Born on Canadian Soil.

The following is a full translation of the interview with Sir Wilfrid Laurier published in Le Journal of Paris portions of which were cabled across at the time it appeared:

FUTURE OF FRENCH-CANADA. "Have the French settlers in Canada no other prospect than to become British citizens?" asked the interviewer of Sir Wilfrid being seated close by at the time. "In Canada," he replied, "we are all Canadians. We are a bilingual nation, like the Swiss; English and French are the two official languages. A Frenchman settling in Canada will find himself among French-Canadians. He continues to speak French if he wants, and to profess whatever religion he likes. He is free and unfettered."

"But why do you ask this question? Your people do not emigrate. France is such a beautiful country that Frenchmen prefer to remain in it. It is true that we receive a few hundred French emigrants every year, but what are they in comparison with the great Anglo-Saxon inflow? Thousands of settlers from the British Isles come in every year, and Americans also are beginning to cross over the borders in large numbers. The Yankees realize that Canada is an immensely rich country. They find that the climate is not too rigorous, that our laws are as good as theirs—perhaps better, that justice is more speedily executed, and that the security of the subject is absolute."

A GIGANTIC CRUCIBLE. "But," said the interviewer (recalling what had often been told him), "French immigration is not desired by the French-Canadians?" Sir Wilfrid Laurier heard the question, and replying to it himself said: "Like the United States, Canada is a gigantic crucible. We harbor people of all races and creeds—Anglo-Saxons, Germans, Scandinavians, French, Latin, Slavs. Anybody is welcome who will respect the laws of the land."

CHANCE FOR AGRICULTURISTS. "What class of people," the interviewer asked, "have the greatest chance of success in Canada?" "Agriculturists undoubtedly. Strong, industrious, hardworking peasants possess a capital of $200 at least have great chance of succeeding."

"WE SHOULD DISAPPEAR. "Why does not Canada incorporate itself with the United States? It seems to me that the French-Canadians would be in a much better position then." "We should disappear," was Sir Wilfrid's quick retort. "The French Canadian could be swallowed up in that gigantic furnace (fournaise). All who desire the French language to take root on the American continent ought to wish us to remain forever Canadians."

"In that case the permanency of the French language is assured in Canada?" "That is a problem for the future, in the affirmative. On the other hand, persons ignorant of our situation believe that French will disappear in Canada as it is already disappeared in Louisiana. Nothing at present points to such a change. French-Canada—the Province of Quebec—seems enclosed in the Dominion as in an intangible block, unmixed with any foreign element."

FRANCO-CANADIAN TRADE RELATIONS. Speaking once more to Sir Wilfrid's friend, the interviewer asked him whether the Canadian Premier's journey to Paris would not result in increased commerce between France and the Dominion?

"Sir Wilfrid hopes so," was the reply. "But he is a little discouraged by previous fruitless efforts. The great drawback is that there is no direct line between France and Canada. We have several times given an annual subsidy of $10,000 to companies which, either through bad organization or lack of perseverance, have had only an ephemeral existence. As a matter of fact the commercial relations between the two countries are governed by the Convention of February 6th, 1853, signed by Lord Dufferin, M. Develle, Sir Charles Tupper, and M. Jules Siegfried."

"Some negotiations have already taken place by M. Delcasse and Sir Wilfrid Laurier through the intermediary of the French consul at Montreal. These negotiations Sir Wilfrid will continue himself in Paris. He is anxious to bring about an agreement somewhat on the following lines: Canada would treat France much in the same way as she treats England. She would consent to a reduction of 15 per cent in her tariff upon French products. In return Canadian products would enter France under the minimum tariff. As such an arrangement would be useless without a direct line between the two countries, France and Canada would each undertake to subsidize it annually to the extent of £20,000. "A mutual agreement passed upon community of interests would be the most durable of links between old and new France."

CANADA AND THE TRUSTS. "Have not the American trusts threatened to swamp Canada financially and gain possession of your great Pacific Railway?" another Canadian was asked.

"These are pure tales," he replied. "Myself, I have no fear of the trusts. Obviously it is always possible for a group of financiers to get control of an individual company, but it is still easier for the Canadian Government by simply administrative measures to modify the position of the Canadian Pacific Railway." "Generally speaking," intervened Sir Wilfrid, "I do not consider trusts as a scourge, but rather as an inevitable result of intense industrial organization. There can be good and bad trusts, but only the good ones can endure. Why, for example, do people continually complain of the Standard Oil Trust, when it has always kept down the price of petroleum? Our epoch seems to be dominated by a sort of law—that of gigantic combinations vast syndicates and rings (unifications.)"

SIR WILFRID AND FRENCH GOVERNMENT. "What do you think, Sir Wilfrid of the social and political life of France?" "Now you ask too much of me. Even in this private chat I hesitate to answer the question. It seems to me that, all things considered, the Republic is still the form of Government that suits you best. Ah! to be sure. I agree with Renan—the ideal form of government would be that of a liberal tyrant. But that is merely an epigram. Where is this liberal tyrant to be found humane, compassionate, mindful only of the welfare of his people? I may tell you that I am a great admirer of France and that I desire nothing so much as to see it glorious and prosperous."

AN ANGLO-FRENCH ALLIANCE. "What do you think of our foreign relations?" "It is my opinion that universal peace would be assured, for years by an Anglo-French alliance. I can see no serious obstacle to a rapprochement between the two countries. Is not England your most important customer?"

NEW WORLD OR OLD? "One more question," remarked the interviewer. "In your opinion, is it better for a young man without a fortune, but intelligent and industrious, to be born in the New World or the Old?" "There need be no discussion about that," broke in Sir Wilfrid. "In the New World, whether in Canada or the United States, a young man endowed with a fair amount of brains will find the fullest employment for his faculties and sufficient remuneration for his talents. In Canada pauperism is almost unknown, whilst in England it is frightful. Moreover, in the Old World you live with a perpetual menace of war. Across the ocean we never even think of it. We do not want to think of it. For myself, as well as for my compatriots, I thank Heaven for having been born on Canadian soil."

COULD HARDLY STAND UP. Brigh's Disease had Reduced Mr. Young to Helplessness, but Dodd's Kidney Pills Cured Him.

SMITH'S FALLS, Ont., Sept. 15th.—(Special).—"For over three years I was afflicted with Kidney Trouble which finally developed in Bright's Disease. My urine was very dark and I lost considerable blood. I kept on getting worse and worse until at last I was so weak I could scarcely stand."

"In these words Mr. Theodore Young, of this place, describes his condition before using Dodd's Kidney Pills. He is now well and strong and says:—"After using the first box of Dodd's Kidney Pills I was somewhat improved and when I had used four boxes I was able to go back to work, which I had not done for some time previous. I can conscientiously recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills as a cure for Bright's Disease, as had it not been for this remedy I fear I myself would never have been well again."

ANOTHER STEAMER ASHORE. MONTREAL, Sept. 14.—The Allan line steamer Numidia, inward bound for Liverpool, went ashore on the mud at Three Rivers to-day. It is expected the steamer will be got off to-day. She is not damaged.

"Honor to the Bostonese."

We suspect, says The New York Sun, that the author of the following letter is either an evasive Canuck or some member of the Boston Lancers, the Worcester Continentals, or the Putnam Phalanx of Hartford, who cannot abide the never-fading glory of the finest set of men that ever faced a smoke talk or chased a "chaser." His letter is printed here only to show the baseness of it, and the inherent impossibility of his assertions:—"To the Editor of The Sun:—Four years ago the Ancient and Honorable Artillery of Boston visited Quebec, took possession of the Chateau Frontenac, and outranked, on terms of catch-as-catch-can, its oldest frequenters. But when they attacked the Garrison Club, the Ancients fell by the way in large numbers, being wholly unable to live up to the standing rule of the club that the sole drink shall be Scotch, with Canadian rye, neat, as a chaser. Four hundred and seventy-three officers, non-commissioned officers and men sought the floor of the club in the space of the nine hours, and had to be put to bed at the chateau by their respective cab-drivers. To commemorate the event a copper plate has just been nailed upon the main table of the club. It bears the words: "Honor to the Bostonese! Like Montgomery, they fought well, but fought in vain, against a generous foe, September 13, 1898."

"This inscription jars the pride of every American visitor. I know from bitter experience that the Canadian rye used at the club is the brand known as 'squirrel' rye. After fourteen hours the average man starts out to climb a tree or telegraph pole; that is to say, the liquor rouses in him the instincts of his arboreal ancestor (vide Darwin). But surely the Ancients ought to make another dash at the Garrison Club and vindicate American prowess even over squirrel whiskey."

"Quebec, June 26. "Victor." No visitor to the English parts of Quebec can fail to remember this characteristic odor. A Scotch mist of whiskey hangs around the place. The very clouds squirt soda. Many Canadians never use liquor. There is the more for others. In the matter of manly hospitalities, as Captain Costigan would say, the Canadians are unequalled. They love to plunge the incautious visitor into a sea of Scotch. Their own heads and legs usually rise high and easily above those Caledonia waves. Practice makes perfect, and the climate is fortifying."

But there have been strangers within the gates of Quebec who have surprised the surprisers. The Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company is an association of time-honored strong men who have a taste for uniforms and appreciate the joys of travel as well as the comfort that a well-stocked armory grants. As a matter of belief and principle, they are rigid teetotalers. For the honor of their State and country, however, they will dare any danger. At anniversaries and celebrations they consent to wet their whistle; but their by-laws provide that there shall not be more than eight or nine celebrations and anniversaries a week. In foreign countries these self-sacrificing hoplites will never permit themselves to be "drunk to a standstill." Patriotism overrides scruple."

The Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company did visit Quebec in 1898, and was prevented from taking the place by its chivalrous instincts only. We say it to the shame of men that bear the name of Canadians or Englishmen, but there was a conspiracy to stretch these Bellona's bridegrooms flat on the Plains of Abraham, to roll them down from the Citadel, to overcome the invincible corps that for long years has faced every shape of rum the world can produce, and never yet lowered its glass unemptied. The conspiracy was foiled. The Ancients filled their hotel with corpses of the slain. They laid the Garrison low under its own table. Then, in a burst of exultation they challenged all Canada all Great Britain, all the world, to match with applejack as the principal and Medford rum as the "chaser."

The challenge is still good. Quebec should accept, if it dares, instead of boasting over imaginary victories. A well-known and respected fireworks manufacturer died recently in the north of England. His wife ordered an expensive tombstone to be erected in his memory. She was much perturbed, for no epitaph submitted to her did she consider suitable. After a prolonged and diligent search she discovered one she thought to be appropriate on the tombstone of a prominent musician in a Manchester cemetery. Now on the memorial stone of this noted fireworks manufacturer it is stated that: "He has gone to the one place where his works are excelled."

Jones—Yes, Smith, old man, I'm going to economize on car fares, and walk home from the office every day. By the way, let's go and have something. It's a long way home.

HOG COLERA IN ONTARIO.

WILLIAMS, Ont., Sep. 14.—Hog cholera has broken out in Willoughby. Mr. H. H. Beam, of Black Creek, lost two animals by the disease and the rest of the drove, twenty-five in number, were slaughtered by order of the inspector. The cause of the outbreak is a mystery. There are symptoms of the disease among other droves in the neighborhood.

DECEASED WIFE'S SISTER.

MONTREAL, Sept. 14.—The Anglican Synod last evening decided to adopt the table of degrees of the English prayer book, declaring against marriage with a deceased wife's sister. It was also held that the last census shows less Angli-cans in Canada than the number claimed by the clergy.

"F O R C E" Oh, See What? SEE your doctor first, if you want to, and see if he doesn't tell you that you can't put into your stomach anything better than a proper combination of whole wheat and malt. SEE your grocer next and buy a package of "FORCE" which is composed of the whole of the wheat and barley malt. SEE how easy it is to eat a proper food when it comes to you in a sweet, crispy delicate shape. SEE how easily the strength, the nourishment, the vitality which Nature puts into thriving wheat and barley slips into your own system. One preacher writes that he gets from "FORCE" all the strength necessary for his hard Sunday work without knowing that he has a stomach. Take a little "FORCE" just before going to bed and see how soundly you'll sleep. SEE if you do not eat it right along after you awaken it once.
