STRAW HATS LIKE MEN'S FEDORAS

Tricky little straw hats copied from the gentlemen's fedoras are taking this color to wear with the first tailored suits, especially the exciting new pin checked fabrics. There is an enviable affinity between cuts of pin check pattern and such a snappy little millinery masterpiece. A bow and short streamers of contrasting colored program merely accentuate the simple swank of the fedora effect while adding the correct and telling femininity.

Colored lace trimming is a trim on resort and spring costumes Black lace on pastel, contrasting colors used together or lace dyed to match adds a quaint touch to otherwise simple dresses.

The best way to keep your bathroom tiles glistening is to dip a soft cloth in kerosene and rub over them. This loosens the light coating of surface dirt which clings to your tiles and removes discolorations. Wash off with warm water and soap, rinse thoroughly.

This request hardly seems necessary, as nearly all employers are doing this now. 2-7-44.

GLADIOLI SOCIETY—The Moncton Gladioli Society, the only organization of its kind in the Maritimes, is fast taking on a tri-province atmosphere, with members enrolled as far away as Fredericton in New Brunswick, from Prince Edward Island and, if present plans work out several Nova Scotia growers will be affiliated with the Canadian Gladioli Society. There are 25 city and district members alone. A meeting held in City Hall this week, attended by a representative group from the Moncton area and Fredericton and Prince Edward Island members, plans for 1944 were made, principally the decision to award bulbs as prizes at the annual flower show. By awarding bulbs as prizes it is hoped to benefit growers, stock and increase interest in perfection. The annual flower show has long been a fall attraction in Moncton, always sponsored in aid of some charitable organization. — Moncton Times

THE KIRK PULPIT

Preaching yesterday morning on the text "The Job answered me" I have heard many such things, miserable comforters are we all (Job 16:1-2) the Minister, the Rev. R. H. Bussey, said. Our world is even fuller than his of voices which pronounce on the hardships of human situations. The pessimist is with us as with him. Job's wife bade him "curse God and die" and we are urged to the same policy of despair by many novelists and others. Tschekov in "The Cherry Orchard" goes round burning out the lights one by one, and strews his life files with the words of Thomas Hardy ends his "Tess of the D'Urbervilles" with the words "The President of the Transvaal" has finished his report with "Tess." J. B. Priestley in "Angel Pavement" gives a picture of drab and toluene people, living in a world which apparently contains neither Church nor Christian, to whom there comes a flicker of worldly hope, and when it is gone they fall into a little drabber and more toluene with no goal but despair. Our men are not reading Omar Khayyam in this way. He was a best seller in the last one largely because he wrote such lines as

O come with old Khayyam, and live the wise
To talk one thing is certain, this life files.
One thing is certain and the rest is lies.
The flower that once has bloomed for ever dies.

A more erroneous or less scientific statement than the last line it would be difficult to discover. It is just not true, for the dead flower has poured itself into other forms of life. Indeed, like our selves the body it seems to perish only that its soul may find better restorations.

Celebrate Their Silver Wedding

(New Glasgow News)

Mr. and Mrs. George M. Schrader Branch Street, celebrated their Silver Wedding Anniversary Saturday evening, January 22nd, with more than forty guests present. These included some of Mrs. Schrader's relatives and friends from Prince Edward Island, Mr. and Mrs. Don McPherson, cousins from Borden; Mr. and Mrs. Howard MacIvor, cousins of Summerside; Mr. Jas. MacNutt, and Miss Thelma Arsenault, both of Kensington. They were delighted to have with them their attendants on their wedding day, the bride, Mrs. Margaret MacFarlane, and the groomsmen, Mr. Elmer Cameron. The staff of the Store and their close friends were also warmly received and they extended felicitations on the happy event and wished them many more years of happiness together. By a coincidence, two of their guests, Mr. and Mrs. George Fraser, Trenton Road, were also twenty-five years married and they too, received congratulations and best wishes. Mrs. Schrader planned to have just a few in to spend the evening but as word of their anniversary got around and other friends wished to have a part in the celebration they were delighted to have them. Mrs. Schrader was assisted in serving a delicious turkey dinner by Mrs. Paul Blake and Mrs. Max Rogers. The delightful affair included singing and dancing and the time passed all too quickly. Mr. and Mrs. Schrader were the recipients of two silver tea services from the Store Staff; the other from the Prince Edward Island relatives and they also received several other beautiful pieces of silver from their guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Schrader are among New Glasgow's finest citizens and many learning that they have reached their silver wedding, the fifth milestone together in life will wish to add their congratulations and express the hope that they may long be spared to see their son, who gave their only son, Sgt. Pilot Howard Schrader, who enlisted in the R. C. A. F., the day after war broke out. Earlier, when he had tried to enlist in the R. A. F., he had been but a short time in Britain when news of his death came to them casting a gloom over the whole community he was an exceptionally fine boy. Mingled with their sorrow was the pride in the splendid spirit he had shown and his readiness to make the supreme sacrifice. Mr. and Mrs. Schrader are blessed with two lovely daughters, Jane and Gloria and their future happiness too, is included in the good wishes extended at this time.

MRS. J. H. SLACKFORD

(Truro News Feb. 2)

The death of Mrs. J. H. Slackford, in this way. He was Mayor Slackford occurred Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the home of George Rath, 3 Henry Street.

Mrs. Slackford passed away exactly one year to the day after her husband's death. She had rented her home at 3 Henry Street, when she became a widow and went to reside with Mr. and Mrs. George Rath. About a month ago she suffered a stroke and after a lingering illness, weakened gradually until her death. Had she lived she would have been eighty years old this coming March.

Mrs. Slackford was formerly Miss Annie Saunders of Prince Edward Island, her husband was also from the Island. Her nearest surviving relatives, are a brother, Charles Saunders of Charlottetown, and a sister, Mrs. Frank Medley of Watertown, Massachusetts.

Mrs. Slackford lived a retiring life for many years due to her health, and although her husband was elected Mayor for two terms of office, she was seen very little in public, but her understanding and sympathy was a constant source of inspiration to him.

Friends who knew her well tell of the many deeds of kindness done by Mrs. Slackford during her lifetime. She was an expert needlewoman and her home was beautiful by examples of her handwork.

Besides this, she sewed and knitted a great deal for the poor, and many families benefited from her kindness. As one friend expressed it, "a few rows of her many acts of expressed charity. But those who benefited from it, will long remember her kindness and generosity."

MRS. JAMES McADAM

On Saturday, Jan. 15, Mrs. James McAdam, North River, passed to the Great Beyond, in her 98th year. Mrs. McAdam was born on the farm now occupied by her brother, Donald McKinnon at North River. Daughter of Ewen and Sarah McKinnon, one of a large family, two of which survive, Donald and his sister, Mrs. Pigeon in Pictou. Her childhood was passed in Charlottetown where she lived with her grandmother, Mrs. Simpson and where she attended school. Coming as a young girl to the McDonald farm, Cornwall, where she met her future husband James McAdam, who was also employed by the late Angus McDonald.

They were married, coming back to the "footage" to live, and where nine children were born to them. Mr. McAdam, having purchased a farm at East Willshire, they moved with his family there where he successfully farmed for many years and where three sons were born. Selling out some years ago they moved to North River corner where Mr. McAdam died. She leaves four daughters and three sons. A "MECCA" OINTMENT AND MUSTARD POULTICE

Don't take chances on a Chest Cold—It may become very serious. A poultice made up of two tablespoons of Mecca and a teaspoon of mustard, brings excellent results. It relieves congestion and reduces inflammation—prevents spreading. In severe cases change the poultice twice daily. Mecca Ointment is sold in 10¢ and 25¢ packages. (Photo, 80¢ and $1.00.)

The housewife is given motherly advice on how to take stains out of linen, how to mend, patch and darn, and the best way to wash and iron. Many Englishwomen, who have never before had to do their own housework, eagerly turn on their radio to find out how to carry out their duties. In some districts housewives have had troops of factory workers billeted upon them for four years. In others London child refugees have filled the house since September 1939. The toll in wear on household linen has been considerable, and so far no concessions have been made by the Board of Trade for replacement of worn articles.

But advertisements prominently displayed on "Mend and Make Do" show how both towels can be made from an old honeycomb bedspread. Tea towels from worn table mats, dish towels from badly worn roller sheets. Sheets which have already been turned sides to middle, and then again faced up with another, can when hopelessly worn, still be used for tea towels, dish towels and cleaning rags.

A small cloth for drying dishes takes half a coupon, a medium sized bath towel takes two, a large towel one. A new pair of sheets if they could be got at all would cost at least $60 a pair. But if you welcome advice from a Government which not only gives leaflets for those with domestic experience, but cheerfully shows a diagram over the caption "If you haven't time to do a proper darn, tack the tear as shown."

Decent behavior demands that when we see a wounded hero back from the battle front we don't stare, don't point, don't make personal remarks no matter how sympathetic.

TRINITY UNITED CHURCH

The services in Trinity on Sunday, February 6th, were well attended. At the morning service the following were installed as members of the committee of Stewards: Gordon Avar, R. E. MacIntyre, Harry Gudmore, E. S. Coffin, R. E. Mutch, J. A. MacNair, Walter Cox, J. P. Crockett, Milton Carter, L. J. Stacey, Geo. Keefer and the Minister preached on "Stephen, The Steward." The Choir sang the Anthem "Lord of all being" evening service the Minister preached on "The Second Temptation" or "The Easy Way Out" emphasizing the necessity of recognizing the difficulty with which goodness is always faced. The evening anthem was "Just as I am and L. C. Arthur, Law, First Great War and died from wounds after coming back; Herbert, and three daughters Alice, and Mrs. Burgess Newson, Kingston.

Housewives Find Government Tips Prove Valuable

LONDON, Feb. 3 (AP)—The Board of Trade, outwardly the usual impersonal government department, daily invades the British home and whispers advice on the most homely problems through the press, radio and pamphlets. The housewife is exhorted to "Look over your linens before washing" and told how to "put new life in old sheets." Sheets that are worn in the middle can be torn in half length-wise, the side selvages pinned in a flat seam, and the rough edges matching hemmed. The worn parts now become the edges which are tucked in, and receive little wear.

Flannelcases, thin to be used without risk of tearing, can be joined front and back together with rows of running stitching and a false back added to any washing material.

A sheet which had already been turned sides to middle, and is now worn thin again, can be placed on top of another which is also worn, and joined with stitches down the middle and edges. The same trick can be done with two worn towels, dusters or dish towels.

Housewives are advised to delve into their linen cupboards for their old-fashioned double bed sheets. By cutting one down the middle for about eighteen inches and hemming the rough edges, the sheet can be used double on a small bed, the slit allowing the top to be turned back over the blankets without difficulty.
