Hon. A. E. Arsenault Speaks on Budget Debate

These actions on the part of this circle, all connected—a vicious circle which, if nothing wrong exists about it—I do not say there is anything wrong—at least, is the cause of a great deal of discussion in the County, and which should be stopped immediately. We have asked the question, how many convictions, how much in fines and penalties, have been imposed, collected and paid into the treasury from trials before Alexander Campbell. We have got the answer that nothing was paid in.

Judge Inman's Appointment.

Resuming the debate at 8 p.m., Mr. Arsenault continued: Mr. Speaker, when the House took recess at six o'clock I was complaining about the laxity in enforcing the rules of procedure in this Legislative Assembly. I realize that this House has lost a man who was very bright and intelligent, who seemed to have a great knowledge of the rules of this House and the methods of passing legislation, and also to have quite an extensive grasp of public questions in this Province. I refer to the Hon. Mr. Inman, who we are glad to see, has been promoted to the position of County Court Judge for Prince County. The Government side of the House has certainly suffered a great loss, and perhaps this accounts in some measure for the laxity in their drafting of legislation and of presenting legislation before this House. In fact, the Government side of the House could ill-afford to lose a man like him if we are to judge by the errors committed by the vast majority of the members remaining on the Government side.

I notice, too, that the Leader of the Government is not in his seat; and this has been habitual in him for many hours and days of this present session. He should be here to watch the legislation as it goes through. He seems to have delegated that power and duty to the Hon. Minister of Agriculture; and we had to witness a very sad spectacle in this House the other day when a deal of credit is due to them. In one particular case one of these gentlemen, I am informed, was presiding officer, if you please, at a temperance meeting held in Prince County during the campaign—a political temperance campaign; and what man is now charged with the defence of having had a still in his possession. That man has not been prosecuted. Why? Is it because he brought influence to bear upon the department of Justice that his prosecution is delayed so long? That same man who, a few months ago, presided at that famous meeting, has since been charged with having had moonshine in his possession. He appeared before two magistrates of Prince County, and as the magistrates decided, one for conviction and one for acquittal, the case was dismissed and nothing more has been done.

HON. MR. LEPAGE: Will the hon. member give the name of this party that he refers to, for the benefit of the Government?

MR. ARSENAULT: My hon. friend will find out if he will ask the Premier. I think perhaps you have seen him in his office quite often. I will give the name if it is so required.

HON. MR. LEPAGE: We would like to have the name.

MR. ARSENAULT: It has never been my practice in this House to mention names—not even to attack the president of the Temperance Alliance! I shall not do so now. My hon. friend can easily verify what I have said if he will ask the Premier.

A Liner in Registry Office Appointment.

We also see men who should have been prosecuted long before this walking around looking for sympathy, trying to use their prestige and their influence to stay a prosecution now pending and stating to their friends that they were great Liberal workers during the last political campaign; that if this Government has been returned to power a great deal of credit is due to them. HON. MR. LEA'S VISITS ABROAD.

The hon. Minister of Agriculture visited England and other parts of Europe, and we may expect him next year, perhaps, to visit China to investigate the rice growing industry and see if that could not be adapted in this Province. He had better visit Japan also if he is taking a trip this summer, and find out all about this crab industry which has been discussed in this House.

Why the Increase?

The hon. Minister of Agriculture, the head of that department, is spending so lavishly we are told that he went on a trip to Europe to study conditions and look into markets, and also immigration; and while there, no doubt, visiting those large and prosperous old countries, he has acquired large ideas—big ideas. I am afraid, Mr. Speaker, that previous to such a visit he was already possessed of too many big ideas. On the floor of this House he has been complaining that the farmers are not paying enough taxes, that they did not ask to have them during our regime; that this country was getting prosperous; and he gave us the principle that when a country gets prosperous the people demand a better and more efficient service and that they are willing to pay more taxes. These are his principles, and they were the principles also of Mr. Bell during the Bell administration. That was one of the reasons why they increased the taxes.

But we recall the indignation meetings held throughout this Province at the actions of the Bell Government, and it would seem that the people were not so well pleased as my hon. friend would now like us to believe.

But we recall the indignation meetings held throughout this Province at the actions of the Bell Government, and it would seem that the people were not so well pleased as my hon. friend would now like us to believe. He also explains that we closed the Technical School, that great pet of limited revenue. He says that because of his that was spending all together too much money for our State that School was closed we have now no men qualified to operate these new and big machines that have been brought into the Province. He admits that. Yes, Mr. Speaker; and if the Technical School was too big a project for this small province, I am afraid we cannot stand any more of those big propositions, those big schemes, of his. We have got to go according to our means.

Conservative Assistance to Women's Institutes.

We also assisted in the work of the Women's Institutes. We encouraged them in every way we could, because we realized the importance of that organization. We also had great Exhibitions, well attended. It is now rumored that the hon. Minister with his "big ideas" wants to abolish some of these local and smaller exhibitions and centre his whole activities in this regard in the Provincial Fair at Charlottetown.

We also had our butter grade first in quality in Canada, and our cheese second. During the last year of the Bell administration, the year when this great Technical School was in full bloom—that year our cheese and butter industry was at a very low ebb so far as quality was concerned. Now what does the Minister promise us? We did not Credit Where Due.

The Minister of Agriculture renders great thanks to the Federal Government for having increased the amount available for technical agricultural education in this Province; some $4,000 or $5,000, if I remember rightly. He gives great credit to the Mackenzie King Government for that, but he does not mention, nor any members of this Government—to the Conservative Government at Ottawa for having given to our farmers, to our Potato Growers' Association, the car ferry. Where would our potato industry be today had it not been for the generous treatment given to us by Sir Robert Borden in giving us the car ferry? How would we ship our potatoes? How would we avail ourselves of the high prices in January and February, or December, were it not for this car ferry? Yet we have not heard any one on the opposite side of the House thanking the Conservative Government for expending that large sum of money—millions of dollars—for the benefit of the farmers of this Province. But this wonderful grant of $4,000 or $5,000 for agricultural technical education—a very small thing in comparison—is lauded as a magnificent gift. The car ferry has done splendid service, yet owing to the increase in the potato industry it is not now sufficient, and it is up to our hon. friends, if they have any influence with the Federal Government, to press for a second car ferry, so that our farmers will no longer be handicapped in the handling of their seed potatoes.

I am sorry, Mr. Speaker, that I have just now nothing further to say about the Department of Agriculture. Had we had the privilege of hearing the hon. Minister we might know his further schemes; but I have no doubt, if he follows the policy he enunciated some years ago, that this department will spend considerable money during the coming year.
