Eye Strain

Eye Strain, most frequent source of waste of nerve power, is likewise most sure of prompt correction, if rightly treated.

An eminent physician writes in the New York Medical Journal "I have yet to encounter a typical case of sick headache that was not associated with Eye Strain."

Our own experience has proven how true this is. Our records show that hundreds having suffered for years from Eye Strain without knowing the cause, have sought and found relief through our examination, which proved beyond the possibility of a doubt that their eyes were the primary cause of all their trouble, and that a direct relationship existed between their eyes and the nervous system, and that a cure was effected simply by correcting the errors of refraction and muscles by means of glasses.

Have your eyes examined by the newest scientific methods.

...G. W. V. A. ENTERTAINMENT.—A very successful and pleasing concert and Bazaar Social was held in the Georgetown Hall on Wednesday October 1. A pleasing and entertaining programme was well rendered after which baskets and cakes were sold and tea served. Then the floor was cleared and the remainder of the evening was spent in "tripping the light fantastic." The success of the entertainment which was conducted under the auspices of the Georgetown Branch of the G. W. V. A. in aid of the building of a hall, reflects great credit on this body, and the highest praise is due to the committee in charge. These "boys" have proved themselves equal to any occasion and it is hoped that this will not be the last event of this nature. The Ladies also excelled in kindness and attention to the out-of-Town visitors who are loud in their praises of the success of the evening.—G.

"JIM"

JIM was a lineman before the war. It was difficult to find a uniform broad enough across the shoulders for him when he "joined up" in 1914.

Jim found army discipline hard at first, but picked up the "war business" very quickly. He was one of the first of the "trench raiders," a Canadian contribution to the art of warfare. Jim seemed to bear a charmed life. Time after time in the dead of night Jim jumped into a German trench, spreading fear and disaster, and returned safe and sound.

But one fell night his luck gave out. He stepped into a stream of machine gun bullets. When consciousness came to him again, far in the rear of our lines, he was horrified to find his right leg missing.

During the ensuing months Jim's progress was — Clearing Station, — Boulogne, — "Blighty" and Home—Canada!

The shock of the operation left Jim pretty weak for a time. He was content to sit idly in a chair in the sun. But this grew tiresome after a bit. When he began to think about getting back to work he realized that a lineman with an artificial leg was rather impractical. That was his trade. He had spent years at it. And now he was barred from following it.

At this critical juncture, the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment came forward and with knowledge and experience pointed the way out.

After long and earnest discussion, it was mutually decided that the nearest thing to his old trade was that of a telegrapher despatcher. If Jim couldn't any more string wires on the poles he could learn to send the messages over the wires that the other fellow put up. So under the direction of the D.S.C.R. telegraph instructor Jim studied and perfected himself as an operator. This accomplished, the D.S.C.R. quickly found him a position.

Jim is all right now. He's contented as only a man who works can be contented. He is earning more money than before. His enthusiasm is high for the D.S.C.R., which gave him the training whereby he is again an independent and prosperous citizen. After all, it was for Canada that Jim fought and suffered —and Canada is only too eager to repay Jim and every man impaired in body or health through service to his country.

The records of the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment contain endless details in the matter of re-training ex-soldiers—a disabled farm laborer is now a machinist; a carpenter who lost four fingers on his right hand is now a draughtsman at a good salary; a former plasterer is now a printer. So it goes—a long and interesting record of men deprived of limbs or impaired in health—equipped with training and knowledge, now following new and suitable trades.

This great nation-wide organization of the D.S.C.R. requires a considerable expenditure. To meet its expenses a part of the Victory Loan 1919 is to be used. But its maintenance, until every disabled ex-soldier is fitted with a vocation enabling him to earn for himself an adequate and independent living, is one of the most sacred obligations that Canada has to discharge.
