

Guaiacol Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil

If your little daughter is not so robust and sturdy as you would like to see her, give her Foster's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Guaiacol.

This is a fine old standard remedy, a great flesh producer—prescribed for either children or adults who lack flesh or strength.

It has been known to arrest the ravages of wasting diseases and is a great help in restoring thin or emaciated convalescents to complete health.

The addition of Guaiacol adds greatly to the germ-killing power of this preparation. Easy to take. Try it 60c and $1.20 per bottle.

King Albert Returns to Brussels

(Special to The Guardian)
PARIS, April 7.—King Albert of Belgium returned to Brussels Saturday by airplane. The King, it is stated, carried away excellent impressions as to the result of his conversations with the members of the various peace delegations.

Investigating Death Of Capt. Fryatt

BERLIN, April 4.—(By the Associated Press)—An investigation into the case of Captain Charles Fryatt, of the British Mercantile Marine, who was executed by the Germans in 1916, after his conviction by a German court martial of having attempted to ram the German submarine U-33 with his vessel, was begun today by a national court martial. Representatives of various Governments attended and a large number of witnesses, including Captain Danzer, of the U-33, appeared for examination.

The investigating committee is composed of Professor Schuecking, chairman; Prince Schoenaich-Carolath, privy councillor; Herr Eckert, Franz Jocky and Major Richter, of the War Ministry; and Captain Van Selow, of the navy. The foreign Governments represented were: Great Britain, France, Norway and Holland, which is represented by Chevalier Van Rapard, the Minister here.

Hun Recital Of Case.

At the opening of the investigation, Attorney Rochal for the Commission, gave a description of the Fryatt case. According to this report the British steamer Brussels, under command of Captain Fryatt, encountered the submarine U-33, under command of Lieutenant-Captain Gaffer, on March 28, 1915, eight miles west of the Maas lightship off the Coast of Holland. It was alleged that Captain Fryatt attempted to ram the submarine, Captain Fryatt and the Brussels were captured by the Germans in June, 1916. The captain was first ordered confined to Ruhleben. He was brought before a court martial, found guilty and executed. Statements made by Captain Fryatt and several officers of the Brussels, were read.

Fryatt maintained that he tried to get away from the submarine. German officers testified, however, that the log of the Brussels contained this entry: "When I saw him, I steered directly for him."

British and American notes of protest against the decision of the court martial were read. The attorney explained that Great Britain had complained that the United States had not been permitted legal representation of the court martial although the United States was then in charge of British interests in Germany. The German Government, however, would permit the defendant to have only one attorney, who was present in the person of Major Naumann, of Bruges. Attorney Rochal then read this excerpt from the testimony at the court martial:

He Nearly Got Them.

"The first witness, Danzer, testified that the U-33 sighted a steamer while about to submerge and signalled it to stop instantly on pain of a shot from the submarine. The Brussels, however, he said, evidently had seen the submarine first and made directly for it, getting up steam as it advanced. Danzer said he tried to get the submarine out of the way without submerging again.

"It was impossible to discharge a torpedo because the steamer was only 150 yards away.

"Another officer gave the order to submerge and the U boat sank 35 feet in two minutes. The crew, it was testified, saw the shadow of the British ship pass overhead."

Prohibition For African Colonies

LONDON, April 6.—The Colonial Secretary has informed the governments of the British West African colonies that the importation into those colonies of all spirits should be prohibited for the present, save under licenses issued by the Colonial Government and on the imports for 1918, but that licenses are not to be granted for the importation of "trade spirits." Spirits shipped before April 1st will be admitted without license.

The Late Captain Joseph Read, M. P.

LATE CAPT. JOSEPH READ

News of the death at Ottawa, of Captain Joseph Read, M. P., for Prince County, and head of the well known shipping firm of Joseph Read and Company, Summerside, came as a distinct shock to the people of this province. Capt. Read had been ill only a few days, the first intimation having been received on Friday evening when he was reported seriously ill of pneumonia. The fatal malady made rapid progress and he passed away on Sunday night about nine o'clock at the age of 70.

Few men in the province have been better or more favourably known than Captain Read; few had fewer enemies or more personal friends. In early life he took to the sea and throughout his life was a genial, typical mariner, well read, a clever conversationalist and a warm friend. Well educated when he entered on his seafaring career he soon worked his way up to the position of Master Mariner, being a graduate of Tons Nautical Academy of Liverpool, England, Imperial Certificate. For many years he successfully commanded some of the largest ships owned by his brother-in-law the late Hon. John Lefurgy and later owned and sailed for a number of years the Barque Charles E. Lefurgy. Retiring from sea faring he went into the produce business at Summerside, a business which, under his management later developed into the present firm of Joseph Read and Co. His wife formerly Miss Sarah Carruthers, of North Bedeque, predeceased him by several years, leaving two sons, Captain John L. Read of the Car ferry, Prince Edward Island, and Dr. George C. Read of Kaslo, B. C.

In 1900 Captain Read entered the political arena having been elected Liberal representative for the Fourth District of Prince in the Provincial Legislature. He was re-elected in 1904 and 1908. At the general election of 1917 he was elected to represent Prince County in the Dominion House of Commons.

In the death of Captain Read, the province loses one of its most successful business men and one who did very much for its agricultural interests. In Prince County particularly he will be greatly missed in business, political and social circles. Besides his two sons, mentioned above, he is survived by two brothers, Mr. Charles Read,

Ontario Movies Act Has Been Modified

TORONTO, April 6.—Good news for the child under fifteen years of age is contained in Provincial Treasurer McGarry's bill to amend the Theatre and Cinematograph Act. Now no child under that age can attend the movies unaccompanied by an adult but the new legislation excepts between nine a. m. and six p. m. on Saturdays, public and legal holidays, while the Provincial Treasurer may at any theatre dispense with the attendance of a matron during these hours, otherwise such a person to be provided. Censors are given the right to permit or prohibit the exhibition of any film or slide.

BOLSHEVISM IN GERMANY

LONDON, April 4.—Describing the "outlook in Germany, the Berlin correspondent of the Mail says the crisis which is rapidly approaching, seems certain to be graver than either the January or March outbreaks.

"One of the storm centres is Bavaria, especially Munich," he writes. "The situation in Southern Germany has completely changed during the last three weeks. Thousands of people, including many women, attend mass meetings at which unadulterated Bolshevism is advocated and demands are made for the abolition of Parliament.

"A political section has arisen that is even stronger than the Spartacists. The members of this party call themselves Syndicalists, and are apparently led or inspired by terrorists who escaped from Dusseldorf when the Government captured that city after the last uprising.

"Bolshevism is working in Germany by propaganda, as it did in Hungary, and is wrecking and removing opportunities for work."

Coleman and Rev. Ephraim Read, Eastendale, Mass.

The remains left Ottawa last night accompanied by Mr. John E. Sinclair, M. P. for Summerside, where interment will take place of which notice will be given later. To his bereaved sons, brothers and other relatives, the Guardian tenders deepest sympathy.

Don't strike a man until you are sure that he deserves it—and then be sure he is smaller than you are.

Doctor Failed on Baby Eczema--See What D.D.D. Accomplished

My baby has been troubled with Eczema for the past two months and I tried everything imaginable to cure her. I also had the doctor in attendance but without avail. I finally tried a small bottle of D. D. D. remedy and within a week I could see that it was going to make a cure, and today she is perfectly clear of it. I certainly feel that I would be ungrateful if I did not tell you of this.

Polish Troops May Lard at Danzig

(Special to The Guardian)
BERLIN, April 5.—The government today informed the party leaders that the Polish General Hollis' troops might be landed in Danzig if the Entente would furnish guarantees for their good behavior. This was the subject of a fresh conference between Marshall Foch with the Germans over Thursday evening. A more optimistic feeling prevails today that the question can be settled amicably.

No word has yet been received in Paris respecting the negotiations of Marshall Foch with the Germans over the landing of Polish troops at Danzig.

EX-CROWN PRINCE GETS EXERCISE AS A VILLAGE SMITHY

COSTERLAND, Island of Weringer, April 5.—Frederick William Hohenzollern was busily engaged upon his "My Memories of the War" when I called recently, cables Karl Herr Wiegand.

The ex-Crown Prince on his island vicarage has grown very gray. His hair is in striking contrast with his still remarkably youthful face, that being the chief indication of the influence recent events had upon him.

With that exception he looks exceedingly well, better than I ever saw him. He has taken on home flesh. His face is fuller, lending more maturity and strength to it, and he now looks unlike any picture of him extant. For close to two hours he talked of his past, present and future, though he insisted, however, that it was not an interview and that he was not to be quoted, for present experiences seem to have made him almost inaccessible to newspaper men. He complains bitterly of broken pledges and the abuse of his confidence. Journalists, photographers and filmers are becoming his bane. Three have been camping on the island for days trying to get at him.

Confidence Violated

The ex-Crown Prince related how an American correspondent, whom he named, came out in a sleigh, accompanied by his wife, and in a bitter storm. The ex-Crown Prince refused to see them, but in view of the cold invited both in to tea and to get warm. He joined them when the writer pledged his word of honor not to quote him, but upon returning the journalist broke immediately his word. He wrote an interview which the former Crown Prince declares was not only incorrect but garbled. Since then the Prince has received no journalists.

It is not unlikely that he will turn especially against the attempt to let the public believe that he was really responsible for the plan of the Verdun attack and its failures since it is said in Germany that numerous letters written by the Crown Prince at that time are extant. In these he strongly protested the plan opposite it, and finally refused to continue it, which led to a break with his Chief of Staff, Gen. Knobelsdorff, and to the latter's retirement from that post.

Perhaps the most interesting of all the chapters of the memoirs may be that which will deal with the events, not yet publicly known, of the famous November 9, when the Kaiser suddenly found himself alone and deserted not only by the nation but by those who had fawned upon him, and was told that the Reds were nearing headquarters.

Not His First Book

This is not the Crown Prince's maiden attempt at authorship, since he had already written a book of his hunting experiences.

On his arrival here young William quickly adapted himself to the situation, and surroundings. He lives in a small five room vicarage, in which he has his one room to himself. Intensely active he lays out a schedule for the day which keeps him busy. In the morning he usually takes a brisk walk, often in rivalry with his favorite deerhound, vaulting the sod fences which separate the little farmlets. On returning he draws or paints. The chief ambition of many of the island fishermen and their wives is to possess a sketch or portrait of themselves done by the imperial artist. His sketches which are by no means bad, take up several hours of his time. He varies this, work by dictating or personally penning matter which is going into his memoirs, and he reads or studies for several hours as well.

To keep himself in physical trim he occupies himself besides walking with jumping fences and often works in the village blacksmith shop swinging a hammer with uprolled sleeves and with lusty blows and doing whatever he is permitted to do by the master of the smithy. Into which he enters with boyish enthusiasm. The smith declares that his quick learning pupil would make a good apprentice.

The evening he devotes to reading and to playing the violin. His household is composed of valet maid and the Baron von Hauenfeldt former Vice-Consul in Limbourg and Major von Kummer former commandant at Charleville who is with him temporarily.

PARTICULARS OF SOLDIERS DEATH

Mr. Stephen Reid, Fairchild's Point, has received the following letter from the Major of the 72nd Canadian Infantry Battalion.

Dear Sir:—It is with deep regret that I am obliged to advise you of the death of your brother, 2204496 Pte. D. Reid. He was killed instantly by machine gun fire at 2.00 p. m. on the 9th ultimo.

His body was buried in Hillside British Military Cemetery, Sheet Rosieres, 140,000 E21 50.40 Row "D," Grave No. 10, Plot 1.

Your brother had not been serving with the battalion for a long period, but while with us he did his full duty and was at all times an example and inspiration to his comrades. While I know that his loss will be irreparable to you, I trust that it will be some consolation to know that he died fighting a good fight in the greatest and we hope decisive, battle of the war.

Assuring you of my deepest sympathy in your great loss I am, Yours sincerely,

GUY H. KIRKPATRICK, Major

Commanding 72nd Canadian Inf. Batt. Pte. Daniel Reid was killed the 9th of August, 1918.
