This word was symbolized and interpreted aright by the French people prior to and after the War of 1870-71. Every nation which was engaged in the World War must learn the lesson of THRIFT and practice it from now on, and none more so than the Canadians. THE PROMOTER'S WIFE

BY JANE PHELPS

BARBARA CALLS UPON BLANCHE ORTON

CHAPTER LII After that conversation neither of us again mentioned the men he brought home. Occasionally he would still bring some business man to dinner, but not often, and invariably a very correct, very nice-appearing man. What he did with the other sort interested me so little that I forgot to ask.

Lorraine Morton and I were shopping one day. It was about five o'clock when we finished. Let's stop at Mrs. Orton's on the way home. I haven't yet paid my last dinner call," she said as we got into the car. "That's a good idea. I haven't paid mine either, and it is of such long standing I am almost ashamed to go."

"She will, perhaps, be dressing for dinner. Still we will go." I was surprised to realize suddenly that I was anxious that she would be at home, and able to receive me. It was a peculiar feeling, so strong that it rather puzzled me as to its cause.

Happily, she was at home. She received us in her boudoir. She was lying on the chaise-longue. She looked very lovely—but rather tired. A lovely, pale, creamy-yellow silk tea-gown clung to her figure, making her sweet gracefulness particularly noticeable. She seemed to be pleased that we had called, although Lorraine said afterwards that it was because she knew she looked lovelier than either of us ever could hope to. But Lorraine was a bit "catty" at times.

"I am to have company to dinner," she explained, and am resting. "I have been up very late for several days, and am showing the fatigue. I want to be at my best, for I expect to be bored to death."

"Why be at your best if you are bored?" I asked, smiling. "Then is when one needs to be. If you are being entertained, it is easy and natural to be entertaining. But, if you are bored it is just as surely impossible to keep yourself from being bored. Think that over and see if I am not right," she said, turning to Lorraine who looked as puzzled at Mrs. Orton's explanation as I had felt.

"Yes—I—guess you are—right," I said slowly. "I remember when Nell brings home a clever, interesting man to dinner I never have the slightest trouble entertaining him; but when he brings some stupid man, I am so tired when he is gone, and can't think of anything to say to him while at dinner without an almost visible effort."

"Of course I am right! I have entertained both kinds often enough to know." We then gossiped for a little before we left. On our way out we passed one of her maids carrying a huge box of flowers. I knew they were American Beauties by the stems, which stuck out from the end of the box.

"Some one is attentive to the widow," Lorraine said after we had entered the car. "I'll wager she won't be a widow long."

"Of course she won't! she's too clever, and too beautiful." Never, even to myself, had I failed to acknowledge Blanche Orton's cleverness or her beauty. It wasn't my way.

"That was a great idea of hers about resting so that she could be at her best before men who bored her," Lorraine mused. I think it's awfully clever of her to think it out like that. "I wonder whom she is having. She said nothing of any woman, did she?"

"No—she said 'company,'" I returned. "I'll bet she meant men," said Lorraine. "She hasn't any intimate women friends; and if she was giving a dinner I should be sure to have heard of it, even though I were not invited. No—it's a man affair!" she finished decidedly.

"But why ask men who bore you?" I queried. "One sometimes is bored by one or the other of a married couple whom one has to ask; but I can't see why a widow should feel obliged to entertain anyone who bores her."

It may be it is a business affair," Lorraine said carelessly as she bade me good-bye.

Tomorrow—Barbara's Father and Mother comes to visit.

THE FUR MARKET ST. LOUIS, March 27.—Receipts of furs in this and other markets have decreased during the past week, and are expected to decline noticeably from now on. Arrivals also, especially those from Southern districts, are showing pronounced signs of spring. The mild winter weather all over the States and Canada, has caused animals to shed their winter coats sooner than usual and the daily offerings, hereafter, of seasonable stocks, will be quite limited. First class good quality furs will command, in our opinion surprisingly satisfactory prices the balance of the season.

There has been a decided improvement in prices recently over January for most Northern furs and the available supply of goods from those sections is quite small. The anticipated heavy imports of foreign furs have fallen far short of what was looked for by the trade, and contrary to general expectations, have been advancing in price since our January Auction.

The market here continues strong and the daily offerings are being actively competed for. Staples are all selling very well and seasonable stocks of these goods are expected to go even higher.

Red Foxes and good quality Wolves are in strong demand. Silver Foxes, especially fresh skins are selling at better prices than have prevailed for this article for a number of years past. In fact, foxes of all kinds are wanted.

Marten and Beaver are also wanted at advanced prices. Fisher and Russian Sables are in particularly strong demand, with an upward tendency. Russian Squirrels, Flying Squirrels, Australian Opossums, Marmots and practically all Chinese and Japanese goods, holdings of which in this country are limited, are likewise commanding very good prices.

With the advent of spring, business operations that were quiet because of winter weather, will undoubtedly become much more active, producing sympathetic improvement in practically all lines. This should make itself felt and find expression in an increased demand for most commodities. The fur trade, will enjoy its share of this prosperity.

At the cost of a small jar of ordinary cold cream one can prepare a full quarter pint of the most wonderful lemon skin softener and complexion beautifier, by squeezing the juice of two fresh lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white. Care should be taken to strain the juice through a fine cloth so no lemon pulp gets in, then this lotion will keep fresh for months. Every woman knows that lemon juice is used to bleach and remove such blemishes as freckles, sallowness and tan, and is the ideal skin softener, smoothener and beautifier.

Just try it! Get three ounces of orchard white at any pharmacy and two lemons from the grocer and make up a quart of this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion and massage it daily into the face, neck, arms and hands. It should naturally help to whiten, soften and bring out the roses and beauty of any skin. It is truly marvelous to smoothen rough, red hands.
