A SUITOR TOO MANY

MILDRED BARBOUR

CHAPTER 13.

"I trust Madame was not taken suddenly ill," murmured the clerk, mollified.

"THE WICKED FLEE..."

Lila and Dorothy were driving down-town in Dorothy's runabout. They were en route to the headquarters of an organization that collected funds for disabled war veterans.

"You've got the bank-draft safe in your hand-bag, Dot?" Lila asked for it was in that form that she had arranged to make the donation, and when Dorothy nodded amiably, she added, with a sigh: "I'm sorry to be such a pest about this business, but the whole affair, the Jackson person, and everything, has gotten on my nerves. I guess I was never intended for this role... Wouldn't I have made a rotten adventuress, though?"

After awhile she said: "Remember, Dot, you've got to do the presentation and all the talking. I mustn't appear in the matter at all."

The smile deepened on Dorothy's pretty lips, but all she said was a quiet: "Yes, Lila."

The traffic was heavy, and Dorothy was forced to stop her car every few yards. Lila fidgeted nervously, her slim gloved fingers twisting and untwisting the chain of her mesh bag. Her restless gaze roved up and down the street, watching the morning crowds that thronged the sidewalks of Fifth Avenue.

They had stopped momentarily before a fashionable shop noted for its art treasures. There were some beautiful old brocades in the window.

Lila clutched Dorothy's arm. "Do stop here a minute, Dot." "I can't very well do anything else."

"I mean let's go in Vanderpoel's. I want to buy something for cousin Anne Sneed. It's her birthday tomorrow, and I almost forgot. Seeing those brocades reminded me."

She darted out of the car and sped through the crowd. Dorothy, with a resigned sigh, turned her runabout into a side street, parked it, and sauntered back to Vanderpoel's.

Lila was already purchasing a coffer of wrought silver.

"I thought it was brocade you wanted," murmured Dorothy, gazing abstractly at the dim shop. There was only one other customer—a man. He was awkwardly examining some fragile Venetian glasses. "Some helpless male buying a wedding present!" she thought.

Just as Lila had received her purchase from the clerk, the other customer turned around. His abstracted, slightly harassed gaze rested upon Lila. He hesitated, wavered, returned. He brightened and took several quick steps forward.

"Why—it's..."

To Dorothy's astonishment, no less than to the stupefaction of the strange young man, Lila gave him one look and bolted.

The door of the shop banged behind her.

The clerk was first to recover. "But Madame had not paid!"

The strange young man, agape, stared at Dorothy and stammered: "I—I—beg your pardon, but wasn't that Miss Latham—Miss Lila Latham?"

Dorothy, still stunned at Lila's behaviour, looked so blank that the young man walked away with a muttered apology. A moment later he took himself out of the shop, with the embarrassed haste of one who has made a foolish mistake.

Dorothy opened her purse and paid the anxious and curious clerk for the purchase Lila had made off with.

"I trust Madame was not taken suddenly ill," murmured the clerk, mollified.

Dorothy replied carelessly: "Oh, no, she probably saw a friend passing outside." But her color was heightened as she passed out of the shop, conscious of the curious stare that followed her.

"Now why on earth did Lila bolt like that?" she wondered vexedly. "And who was the young man?"

She went in search of her car, fully expecting to find Lila in it, but there was no sign of her. Dorothy climbed in it and waited. She consulted her watch and frowned. She had engaged a model for the afternoon; she didn't want to be late, and there was still that errand

First Solemn Mass

On June 24th, in St. Mark's church, Lot 7, Rev. Howard Griffin, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Griffin, celebrated his first solemn high mass and was assisted by Rev. G. McCab, Tignish, as Deacon; Rev. U. Gilles, Summerside, sub-Deacon; and P. A. Arseneault, Master of Ceremonies. The sermon, which was an eloquent one, was preached by the pastor, Rev. J. A. McDonald. After the last gospel, Father Griffin was presented with an address and purse from the parishioners. Rev. Howard Griffin D. St. Marks Lot 7, P. E. I. Rev. and Dear Father:—

It is with feelings of joy and gladness that we greet you here today on this the occasion of your first solemn high mass. Your parents were raised in this church by the Holy Priesthood of his Lordship Bishop O'Leary, assisted by a large number of priests.

It was a day that shall long be remembered in the annals of our parish, a day of great joy to yourself, to your good parents, to your relatives and friends in a word a day of great rejoicing for the whole parish and for a large number beyond its confines.

It is some sixty years since a priest has been ordained from our parish. But never before has a priest been ordained in our parish church. We earnestly hope and pray that following your example there will be henceforth from year to year a continuous flow of vocations to the priesthood, in our parish of labourers to work in the Vineyard of the Lord. Your example has always been an inspiring and edifying one.

We have watched you with pardonable pride, go forth from your good Christian home to enter St. Dunstan's University, and then the grand seminary at Quebec.

In the former you took your degree of Bachelor of Arts and in the latter that of Doctor of Divinity. Piety and scholarship, the two great essentials in a priest, eminently stand forth in the success that has been yours. While it is to us that you are not to labour amongst us yet it is a joy to know that the parish is giving a priest to labour in the missions of the west where the harvest is great and the labourers are few. You go forth with our prayers to the arch diocese of Edmonton to assist in the building up of the kingdom of God.

We shall ever follow you with our prayers that God may bless and prosper your work in the Missionary fields as he has done in your preparation therefore.

Receive dear father our hearty congratulations on the favours you have received and please accept this gift from your native parish as a token of our appreciation and esteem. In conclusion let us ask in your prayers; and in the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass, kindly remember the parish of St. Marks.

Signed on behalf of the Parish: J. A. McDonald P. P. William A. Bolger.

A very successful examination was held in Springfield school Friday, June 29, with thirty-five ratepayers and visitors present. The pupils were examined in the different subjects by their teacher, Miss Theresa Woodside, assisted by Mr. James Haslam. School.

Dear Teacher—As we have now reached the close of another school year, we wish to express to you before we part, our appreciation of the kindly relations that have existed between us during the two years that you have been our teacher. We may not always have been as obedient as we should have been, but we ask you to remember us by the pleasant things that we have heard during the time that we have been together. We will always remember the kindly interest you have taken in our welfare and the many evidences, apart from the ordinary duties of a teacher, of your personal efforts to advance our studies.

Please accept this small gift as a token of our esteem in the full assurance that the memories of our acquaintance will be happy and lasting.

Signed on behalf of the scholars of Springfield School.

Students' Palmer Method certificates were awarded to Margaret Laine, Dorothy Mayne and Winnifred Sinclair; Public School certificate to Crawford Sinclair; prizes for Perfect Attendance to Clarence Haslam and Raymond Haslam; and for General Proficiency in Grade II, to Caroline Sinclair. Address and Presentation to Mr. Benjamin Ward, Kingston.

On the evening of Wednesday, June 9th, a large number of members and adherents of the Presbyterian Church of Clyde River and vicinity assembled at the home of Mr. Benjamin Ward, Kingston, for the purpose of doing him honour for services rendered.

After the earlier part of the evening had been spent in games, music and social intercourse, Rev. R. Hensley Stavert waited upon Mr. Ward and read to him a very complimentary address shortly before the closing of the reading of the address Mr. Norman MacFayden presented Mr. Ward with a beautiful leather covered easy chair.

Although thank by surprise Mr. Ward in a few well chosen words expressed the many friends for their generous expression of their kindness. Among other things he said that he believed we were placed in this world to help each other, and he felt that in doing what he did he was only doing his duty—nothing more. He was afraid, he said, that the many kind things said in the address were largely undeserved.

At the close of Mr. Ward's remarks all joined in singing "For He is a Jolly Good Fellow."

A Short address was given by Mr. Hugh McLean, Mr. Allison Auld, Rev. R. Hensley Stavert and others.

The following is the address read to Mr. Ward.

"Mr. Benjamin Ward, Dear Mr. Ward,

As you may well know there are few things in life that help to cheer us on our way more than does an expression of appreciation.

Knowing something of your kindly nature and your willingness to make life pleasant for others, we would naturally be led to believe that already you have come to know from experience how much Miss Elsie Murphy's cheer to us cheers to be told by some one whom you have helped in some way, how much they have appreciated your kindness to them.

But, be that as it may, we the members of the Presbyterian Congregation at Clyde River have, for some time, been feeling that we wished to express in some tangible way, to you our appreciation of your kindness to us.

On every second Sunday with very few exceptions—during the Fall, winter and spring months of the last two years, Rev. R. Hensley Stavert or whatever other clergyman came to Clyde River to preach, had the privilege of having his horse put into your stable, and having it cared for by yourself while he himself was being taken out to the service in the church by one of the men of Clyde River, or at times by your own son.

The Annual Examination of Norrebro School was held on the afternoon of June 29th. The large attendance of Parents, and visitors showed the interest, that is taken in education in this district.

The pupils were examined in the various classes by their teacher, Miss Elsie Murphy; Assisted by Miss Elsie Murphy Mrs. C. M. Howitt, and Chester Stewart, and showed by their ready answers, that they had been carefully taught. Mr. H. L. Bowness (Trustee) was chairman, and a very pleasing programme of readings, recitations, songs, drills, The teacher then presented School Leaving Certificates to the following pupils, in order of merit:—Dorothy Bowness, Bert Croken, Doris Stewart and Maud Connick.

The following Prizes were then awarded 1st, in Grade II, Dorothy Croken. 1st in Grade IV, Brenton Stewart. Prizes for spelling Dorothy Bowness, Wanda Bowness. The teacher treated all the visitors with Home made candy. The pupils presented their teacher with a nice worded address, and beautiful, gift, to which she replied thanking them all for the nice gift, and expressed the

Mayfield School

The closing of Mayfield school took place Friday, June 29, with an attendance of 30 parents, ratepayers and visitors, who listened attentively to many questions asked the pupils of the grades by their teacher, Miss Gertrude C. Ackland, assisted by Mrs. Willard Nicholson, Miss Martha Brown and Mrs. Herman Hill, and were very much impressed by the ready and accurate answers given. Then a splendid program was prepared for the occasion, Mr. James Houston was appointed chairman for the following program—Welcome, Jennie Smith; recitation, Alma Doiron; recitation, Wm. Johnston; drill, "Hurrah for the Holidays"; recitation, Willis Andrew; recitation, Thelma Smith; solo, Elva Hill; recitation, Olga Hill; recitation, Erwin Andrew; solo, Cora Toombs; recitation, Sadie Johnston; dialogue, "Getting Rid of an Agent"; recitation, Evelyn Houston; remarks, by visitors. When the program was brought to a close the pupils and visitors were treated with ice-cream and cake by their teachers.

A vote of thanks was moved by Mrs. Blair Andrew, and seconded by Mrs. Annie Johnston, and was conveyed to the teacher by chairman, Miss Ackland replied in a most pleasing manner.

Following this, Miss Marguerite Houston read the following address, while Miss Cora Toombs presented the teacher with a French ivory set.

Dear Teacher—Another successful school year has passed, and we are now on the eve of laying away our books and tasks for vacation which has been looked forward to so eagerly, we feel that we cannot let this opportunity pass without expressing to you in some measure our untrusting and deep appreciation which you have put forth during the past year to promote our physical, moral and intellectual welfare. Yes, dear teacher, we realize now how diligently and faithfully you have labored in order to instill in us the very principles of a good education. We realize also that you have not always responded to your noble efforts with our advancement, and that we have not always co-operated with you to make your work pleasant and interesting. On the contrary we have often made your task much more difficult by our many failings and shortcomings. Nevertheless, you have always met all obstacles bravely and with confidence, and by your kind and charming disposition, you have won the respect and esteem of every one of us. It was with deep regret that we learned that you had resolved to sever your connections with our school, for we had hoped to retain you for at least another year. We had begun to look upon you not only as a teacher, but as a friend of each and every one of us, so that we are naturally grieved at the thought of your leaving us. We trust, however, that you may yet recon- sider the matter and decide to remain. You will be missed, and we would like you to be assured that you will be followed by our best wishes for success and prosperity in your new sphere of work. Dear teacher, in concluding we beg you to kindly accept this small gift, not as a token of our regard and affection for you, and as a mark of appreciation for the zeal and solicitude which you have always shown in our behalf.

Best wishes from your Pupils of Mayfield School.
