Fine Mystery Play At Prince Edward

Stout-hearted persons who take their hints straight will find just what they're looking for in the new picture at the Prince Edward Theatre. It's "The Phantom of Crestwood," RKO-Radio Pictures' mystery masterpiece, which more than justifies the extravagant national reports and its elaborate national exploitation through radio broadcasts.

Blonde, vibrant-voiced Karen Morley plays Jenny Wren, a girl with a beautiful body and an ugly soul, whose sense of the ironical prompts her to stage a house party in a spooky old mountain mansion to which she has invited the men who have supported her in the style to which they accustomed her.

She is about to make a final touch from each of her former supporters and to arrange the marriage of her young sister, played by Anita Louise, to a scion of wealth and position, when a feathered dart punctures her brain.

From then on unusual situations, full of compelling interest, follow one after another, hurrying shafts of suspicion and guilt at practically every member of the party.

Karen Morley plays the dangerous Jenny Wren to perfection. Ricardo Cortez is seen in the role of a crook who steals into the house party intent on acquiring Jenny Wren's jewels and is with her when she is murdered. He wins his usual suave and polished performance and the role will strengthen his position among the movie fans.

If you like a real good mystery play, Here It Is.

IN MEMORIAM

MRS. JOHN W. FRASER

Entered into rest on December 25th, 1932, following a long and painful illness, borne with calm resignation to the Divine Will, Mrs. John W. Fraser (nee Margaret A. Campbell) of Whim Road East, aged 64 years.

The best medical skill, with the aid of a nurse and the loving care of a devoted family failed to turn aside the course of insidious disease, and her spirit calmly took its flight to the realms of eternal day. The departed had been predeceased by her husband nine years.

Of a quiet and unassuming disposition yet possessed of those Christian qualities which made her life helpful to others, she will be greatly missed by a large circle of relatives and friends with whom she was associated, and by those whom she was always ready to help in time of sickness or trouble. But it is in the home where she was the centre of a devoted family on whom she freely bestowed the influence of a good life, and in every way strove for their best interests, that she will be most missed. But a joyous reunion awaits them all when the veil is lifted from the unseen. It was a happy co-incidence that at a time in her illness, all her family in several cases separated by distance were able to be present at her bedside.

During her illness she was frequently visited by her pastor, Rev. Mr. Pringle of the Montague United Church, who invariably in his kindly visits found her ready and willing to obey the inevitable call. For the greater part of her life, she, with her husband, was a consistent member of the Presbyterian, later the United, church at Montague which she attended from childhood. In the different departments of church work she took an active part, being at the time of her passing president of the Ladies Aid, a member of the W. M. S. and of the Sunday School of her own community. The following are the members of her family: William D., on the old homestead; J. Milton, Brudenell; Harvey C., Montague, Mue (Mrs. Angus McPherson), Holliston, Mass.; Pearl, (Mrs. Eddie Farquharson), Mt. Herbert, Bessie, (Mrs. Beams Bourke) Whim Road, also nine grandchildren. The following are the brothers and sisters: James N. Campbell, Washington, U. S. Matthew Wallace, New Annan, N. S.; (present with his son Lloyd); Etta, (Mrs. L. L. Taylor) North Carolina; Milton Clifford (deceased); Lizzie,

"Scarlet Dawn" Full Of Romance And Adventure

The love of adventure and romance on the screen never abates, if the crowds at the Capitol yesterday can be taken as a criterion. "Scarlet Dawn," the new picture showing there, with Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. in the starring role, and the popular stars, Nancy Carroll and Lilyan Tashman, heading the big cast, is a screen story in which adventure and romance predominate.

The story deals with the adventures of a young Russian nobleman who is exiled during the Revolution. Making his way to an alien land with his pretty young servant girl, the nobleman eventually marries her, an act which leads to further unusual adventures and experiences.

"Scarlet Dawn" was adapted from Mary McCall, Jr.'s novel, "Revolt," and ably directed by William Dieterle. In addition to the three leading players the cast includes Earle Fox, Maurice Black, Frank Reicher, Sheila Terry, Betty Gillette, Arnold Korff and hundreds of others.

The picture is proving one of the most popular pictures of the year, and certainly it is one of the finest in which young Fairbanks has ever appeared.

Golden Wedding Celebration

On the evening of November 25th, 1932, a large concourse of people assembled at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh McPhee, of Coleman, to celebrate with them the Fiftieth Anniversary of their Wedding Day.

Mr. Russell Rogers was called upon to act as Chairman. Mr. Rogers spoke in highly complimentary terms of both Mr. and Mrs. McPhee and of the many hardships they encountered as pioneers of the district. After this speech, all joined hands and sang: "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows." Mr. McPhee was then bounced.

The next on the programme was an address read by Mrs. Charles Read and the presentation of a well filled purse and other valuable gifts by Hugh McPhee, Junior.

A song by Mrs. Rogers and Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Read, entitled, "I Want a Girl Like the Girl That Married Dear Old Dad," was followed by dancing "The Highland Fling" by Miss June Leard. Mr. Robert Ramsay furnished the music, accompanied by Mrs. William Lockhart.

A feature of the evening was step dancing by Messrs. McPhee and Read who, despite their eighty years, tripped it off like two boys. "Silver Threads Among the Gold" was then sung by Mrs. McKinnon. Mrs. Rogers and Mrs. Read, followed by short speeches by Messrs. McKinnon, Read, Ramsay and McPhee, Junior.

Mr. and Mrs. McPhee in a few well chosen words expressed their pleasure in seeing all their friends present and thanked them one and all for their kind words and gifts. The programme then closed by singing "Put on Your Old Gray Bonnet."

The bride's heron was then drunk and a dainty lunch served. The ladies assisting were, Mrs. McKinnon, Mrs. Taylor, Mrs. Simmons, Mrs. Bryenton and Mrs. Leard.

The remainder of the evening was spent in pleasant converse. The folk indulging in tripping the light fantastic.

The address was as follows: To Mr. and Mrs. Hugh McPhee: Dear Friends: It is with great pleasure we meet with you to celebrate with you the Fiftieth Anniversary of your Wedding Day. We congratulate you on having reached this milestone of life. We are glad to see you both able to enjoy all the good things of life and taking an active interest in the business of the day.

Fifty years ago you came to this place, then an unbroken forest, and you have succeeded by energy, industry and thrift, in making it one of the very nicest homes in the community.

You have seen many changes during this half century. A higher standard of living in our homes. Automobiles, radios, telephones and our Car Ferry were not known in those days.

Together you have for fifty years weathered life's storms and sunshines with brave hearts and undaunted courage.

A large family has been given you to bless your home and give rest to life.

Your home has ever been a hospitable one, and many have been the happy gatherings we have all attended here.

You have always been ready to further any cause that was for the upbuilding of the community. We would now ask you to accept this gift, not for its intrinsic value, but as a token of our esteem and appreciation for you. — And now, as you approach the golden sunset of life, we trust that your lives may be radiated by peace, love and prosperity, and that you may be permitted to see many more happy celebrations.

spared and blessed to celebrate this Golden Anniversary and we all extend to you both our heartiest congratulations.

You, Mr. McPhee, came with your parents to Brae settlement when but a boy some 72 years ago, and fifty years ago today you took your bride to this home here where we are all assembled to pay you honor tonight. This land was then a dense forest. You then having your house only partly erected and about one acre of cleared land, no settlers in view, and one mile from the nearest highway, but with health and strength, with which the Master blessed you, and with the energy put forth by yourself and your good wife, you today possess one of the finest homes in the vicinity in a thickly settled district with the main highway at the side of your farm.

You, Mr. McPhee, were among those boys of the early settlers who worked in the ship yard at Carls' Landing when ships were built; you, with the boys, helped raft deal and other material from Brae Shore round Grand Dig Point down the narrow finely landing at the ship docks. There were many hardships in the rafting. You, along with the others brave boys who are gone to the Great Beyond, would draw those rafts by team in shoal waters, loading the horses on the rafts when you came to channels and deeper waters, and the rafts then guided by poles.

Many hardships you faced, out nights without shelter, staying to the raft ways, standing by your party in all weather, often for a number of days until it was landed.

You were here too when our church was built. You saw the cemetery laid off, your mother being the first person to be laid to rest there. You have been a faithful supporter to the church, ever ready, ever willing to help in anything pertaining to the welfare of the district. In politics ever a staunch Conservative, all through thick and thin.

You, Mrs. McPhee, were born in this vicinity and, like your good husband, have always been a good worker for any and every good cause. Your father, Mr. McLean, being one of the few early settlers here and one who always took an active part in the welfare of the community.

We appreciate the work you have always helped to do both in church and school, and for the general welfare of our district. You have ever been ready and willing. You both have had your hardships, but you've had your pleasures too. You have been blessed with a family who ever hold you in the highest esteem, and this has been fully displayed by the beautiful greetings received from your family abroad, as well as your grand-children, relatives and friends.

Now we extend to you both our heartiest greetings. Let us all join heart in hand and sing "For They are Jolly Good Fellows."

It will be interesting to know that Mrs. McPhee who is 70 years of age, went up in an aeroplane with her son-in-law, Mr. Ernest Pearson, of Connecticut, and flew over the greater part of P. E. I. and enjoyed the experience immensely.

KENTVILLE, N. S., Jan. 30.—(C. P.)—Three Nova Scotia lawyers will appear before the Supreme Court of Canada on February 13 to argue that a correct interpretation of the Maritime freight rates act permits rate reductions in addition to the 20 per cent recommended by the 1926 Duncan Commission and embodied in the act. The hearing grows out of a decision by the Board of Railway Commissioners refusing to allow a rebate of 15 cents per barrel on apples from valley points to Halifax, granted by the Dominion Railway.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh McPhee: Dear Folk—We your friends are gathered here this November, 1932, to pay tribute to your Fiftieth Anniversary which is a most uncommon affair. Thus you people are

W. N. Tilley, K. C., Toronto, will act for the railway.

FRANCE WILL FORM ANOTHER NEW CABINET

PARIS, Jan. 30.—Edouard Daladier has been picked as the strong man by President Lebrun to master the turbulent Chamber of Deputies and dissipate the clouds of unrest and disorder throughout France.

Daladier, who was Minister of War in the Cabinet of Premier Joseph Paul-Boncour which was swept out of office Saturday by a defiant chamber, today accepted the invitation of the President to attempt the formation of a new cabinet.

If he is successful in forming a Cabinet, in which it was believed he also would take the post of Minister of Interior, he must face a budget badly unbalanced, with a daily deficit of $1,250,000, and the shadow of a debt default.

Daladier's position on the debts question is believed to be sufficiently vague to enable him to bridge the gap between default and a resumption of payment. As a minister in the cabinet of former Premier Herriot he voted for payment of the debts but in party councils he expressed reservations.

His reported intention to ask a decree of power is worrying the Socialists, whose support he is seeking. They fear that if they refuse he will form something akin to former Premier Poincare's national union that operated with almost dictatorial methods.

Daladier talked today with M. Paul-Boncour and M. Herriot and then offered Leon Blum, leader of the Socialists, participation in the cabinet. The Socialists will decide tomorrow what their attitude will be. If the Socialists refuse Daladier then will turn to the moderates.

While the politicians were conferring taxpayers in Lyons, Nice, and Quimper staged demonstrations similarly held in Paris yesterday with police in Lyons and Nice. Another mass meeting has been called in Paris tomorrow.

Herriot said that he had told Daladier that he was entirely devoted to his proposed ministerial combination and to him personally. In the ensuing negotiations, he said, "I will seek the best method of being useful to him and will make the maximum effort to aid him."

Echo de Paris will say tomorrow that M. Daladier likely will offer the post of Foreign Affairs to M. Herriot but that it was believed Herriot would decline because of his stand on debts. In case the Socialists refuse collaboration, the newspaper hinted that Francois Pietri, who has held posts in several cabinets, might be offered the position of Minister of Finance.

Girl "Hobo" Sails For Home

HALIFAX, Jan. 30.—"We were not looking for adventure, we just wanted to get to our homes in England, and we had no money for railway fares," thus today Jennie Swann explained the motive of two girls who left Vancouver in July to cross Canada by the freight-car route. She is now a passenger on the liner Montclare, bound for Liverpool and home.

Quiet-mannered, blue-eyed and slender, Miss Swann is the exact antithesis of the public's conception of a hobo. She started from Vancouver in July, she said. "We dressed as hoboes and carried very little baggage, just our clothes and changes, some provisions and a few cooking utensils. We rode freights as far as Swift Current, Saskatchewan. There we got a lift to Regina, and from Regina as far east as Kenora. We jumped on a freight at Kenora and found that it was going right through to Montreal. In Montreal we found work until our parents sent money for our passages home to England. My friend, who is from Newcastle, sailed from Montreal in November. I am going now to my parents who live in Everton, Liverpool.

"We were never annoyed by hoboes or by people who gave us lifts," Miss Swann said. "On one occasion a rather tough-looking character spoke to us while we were cooking a meal at a 'jungle' near Swift Current, but several other men camping nearby ordered him to leave us alone, with threats as to the consequences if he did not. We were not troubled again. Miss Swann came out to Canada in 1928. She expects to stay at her home in Liverpool but hopes sometime to return to the Dominion. She would like to see the Rockies from a real observation car, but thinks "the top of a box-car is grand for enjoying the scenery."

5 Gunmen Get Away With Loot

(Canadian Press) VANCOUVER, Jan. 30.—Systematically combing the city and country highways, police tonight sought a quintette of gunmen who earlier in the day held up the Canadian Bank of Commerce, Granville Street branch, and disappeared with $2,750.

The five fled into the bank shortly after opening hour. While four of their number covered four members of the bank staff, the fifth member of the gang scooped up all available cash in the teller's cage. Inability of the gunmen to close the vault door saved the bank staff from being locked up.

Immediately after the bandits' departure W. H. James, manager, and J. D. Campbell, teller, ran to the door and fired at their fast-disappearing car.

A number of persons grouped near the bank at the time of the holdup were interested spectators but the speed with which the gunmen accomplished their purpose frustrated any action on their part.

Fatal Accidents Worry Policemen

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—(C.P.)—Across the tired mind of acting Lieutenant Thomas Coffey, of the New York city police safety bureau in charge of the registration of automobile fatalities, dance the ghosts of little children; children with broken limbs, bleeding bodies and children who were dead.

He is now in the psychopathic hospital ward for observation. They took him there after he had fayed away in the bureau office records of the death of 238 persons by automobiles last year. Many of them were children and Lieut. Coffey has an 11-year-old youngster of his own.

They took care of him at the hospital when he walked into the head surgeon's office and asked Dr. Arthur Tiber to take his badge and gun. "I am nervous," he said, "so nervous. I am afraid of my pistol. I don't know what I might do."

"I have been flying reports of deaths by motorcars. You are a doctor. You understand. You see death on a cot. I have seen it on a card, thousands of cards. I have been afraid—some day—I might have to—faye away there—in the cabinet—another little child."

And so they are taking care of Acting Lieut. Coffey.
