Rangers Capture League Lead By Defeating Americans In Overtime

NEW YORK, Feb. 3—(AP)—New York Rangers took sole possession of first place in the National Hockey League tonight with an overtime 3-2 victory over Brooklyn Americans. The New Yorkers also won possession once again of the William J. MacBeth Trophy, emblem of the inter-borough supremacy.

It was the Rangers' fifth victory this year over Brooklyn, against one loss, and was scored on a quick thrust in the first half minute of overtime when Alan Kuntz for his second time in the night finished off a three-man rush with a neat goal.

The fifth-place Americans spotted the Rangers two goals in the first period by Kuntz and Alex Shubicky, then caught them early in the third period. Bill Summer-

March Paces Hawks To 5-3 Overtime Victory Over Fading Boston Bruins

BOSTON, Feb. 3—(AP)—Little Mush March the National Hockey League's oldest winger, rapped in the tying and winning goals while his Chicago Black Hawks were out-battling Boston Bruins for a 5-3 overtime victory tonight before 9,500 at the Boston Garden. Red Hamill, a recent Bruin, also scored twice for the victors.

All of the Bruins' tallies were registered before Sam Lo Presti, the Chicago goalie, was felled by a close-up shot fired by Bobbie Bauer during the 17th minute of second-period play. The blow opened a deep gash over Lo Presti's left eye and the action was halted to permit medical attention.

Although six stitches were required to close the wound, Lo Presti insisted on resuming play, despite the fact that Paul Gauthier, the Bruins' spare goalie, was available as a replacement.

Before his injury, which must have been a severe handicap during the last 22 minutes, Lo Presti was beaten by Woody Dumart, Gordie Bruce, called up from the Hershey American League farm, along with Jack Shewchuk, and Milt Schmidt. Meanwhile Johnny Mariucci and Hamill had countered through Frankie Brimsek.

March put the Black Hawks in a 3-3 tie during the 13th minute of the third period and the little veteran scored again early in the overtime, which ended shortly after Hamill blasted through Brimsek for the second time in the game.

The loss, the second the Bruins have suffered on home ice in three nights, forced them to drop out of their first-place tie with New York Rangers, who advanced

K. of C. Bowlers Hold Banquet

A banquet at the V Club last night opened the second section of the Knights of Columbus Bowling League. The Chairman of the League Committee, Mr. J. B. Richards, served as toastmaster. Thirty-two members were present.

Post-prandial speeches in which all present took part were filled with wit and good cheer. Members of the four rival teams vied with each other in boastfulness and in advocating the claims of their groups to the league championship. If the four rival teams vied with each other in boastfulness and in advocating the claims of their groups to the league championship, it was the Knights of Columbus Bowling League, formed only last fall, contained a number of tyros as well as many who are expert at the game.

The fall section of the league was devoted to practice, the assembling of scores and averages. Four teams were then formed, under the direction of Mr. T. B. Creighton each with an equal number of good and not-so-good bowlers. These four teams will now play for the league championship. This was reviewed by the toastmaster in his opening remarks.

Members of the senior team, reviewed the present activities of the Charlottetown Council and congratulated the League Committee upon its programme. Grand Knight J. Alfred Doyle, while admitting certain shortcomings as a bowler, spoke enthusiastically about the progress of the bowling league and of the order in general.

It is impossible to report in any detail all the many fine talks and to convey the spirit of friends who were shown by the good-natured heckling that accompanied the speeches. The brunt of the criticism seemed to be directed to Jack Richards, Rav MacDonald and Harold Hennessey, but many of the other speeches were very laudatory.

The game was fast and rough spares and strikes will be a commonplace around the Holy Name refectory.

itself, Bulgaria and other occupied areas. The German health ministry listed 126 cases in Germany and 138 in the occupied countries. The village of Pernik, Bulgaria, was mentioned as a plague centre; Bulgarian gypsies were contracting and carrying typhus; Danish doctors meeting at Copenhagen noted a sharp increase in the number of persons infested with the disease-carrying lice.

A demarcation line was established at which persons coming from the east are examined for the lice. Jews in Poland were forbidden to forward letters and packages lest this spread the typhus.

A Frightening Story

A frightening story of cold and hunger in Greece meanwhile was told by the Budapest publican, "Southern Economist," which said starved and shivering men, women and children are roaming Athens in the coldest winter in two decades, eating only weeds and grass and using without heating facilities. There is no coal anywhere; industries, railways and even trolleys in Athens have stopped running; there have been periods of as long as eight days when some cities had no bread at all.

Unoccupied France is little better off. The secretary of public works, Pnacolas Lehtoux, declared in a speech at Marseille: "We have no more coal, no more gasoline, no more cement, even no more water to feed our turbines." He told Frenchmen also that stocks of metals, once large, "have been thinned out and in some cases have completely disappeared."

Executions and deportations still were Germany's frequent weapons in the occupied zone in reprisal for unchecked attacks on the German soldiery. Monday's announcement that six Paris youths had been shot and 100 ordered transported to eastern Europe was followed today by news that a young patriot who had carried out many anti-German attacks in the Lens mining district of northern France escaped again after firing at the police commissioner.

At Lyon, in unoccupied France near the demarcation line, Vichy executed a person for treason yesterday, but gave no particulars of the case.

Continued rebellion of the Norwegians against their conquerors and Quislings was attested from Germany's own ally, Finland. The Helsinki newspaper, Sosialdemokratii, said only a handful of Norwegians supported Vidkun Quisling, who now has been made the puppet premier, and added that by far the greater part of the people "find it extremely hard to tolerate German occupation."

ly on the west coast of this wooded peninsula. The area now is being mopped up by Filipino scouts who are masters of jungle warfare. The Japanese landing boats were sighted far up the coast escorted by a warship—either a large destroyer or a light cruiser. Army shore defences were placed on the alert to repel an enemy landing.

The boats were about 40 feet long, motor-driven and carrying 30 to 50 men each, protected by sheet metal and armed with machine guns.

As the Japanese approached, the defenders curtained the beaches with bullets and shrapnel. With many Japanese struggling in the water as the result of this fire, others pushed on toward land. American planes suddenly dived out of the night.

The pilots selected their targets in the moonlight, dropped their bombs, then roared low and strafed the Japanese.

The paths of the diving planes could be followed by their tracer bullets.

Sometimes they came almost straight down, zoomed and rolled in again at steep angles.

The Japanese warship anti-aircraft guns sent tracer shells at the planes, ineffectually.

As the planes roared off, an American patrol vessel pitched into the middle of the remaining Japanese boats and attacked the warship, which still was attempting to cover a landing with its guns. The Japanese warship fled under the attack.

It can be disclosed that another Japanese landing attempt several days ago was checkmated by a force of American sailors and aviators, fighting on land with rifles in the Bataan jungle.

The sailors were without ships; the aviators without planes. They all became adept at tossing grenades, avoiding ambush, camouflaging machine guns and taking advantage of the natural cover.

The sailors and fliers pushed the Japanese on to the peninsula, where the Filipino scouts took over the job and annihilated the enemy with the assistance of shelling from a naval patrol vessel.
