

RED ROSE TEA "is good tea"

The ORANGE PEKOE QUALITY is composed of the youngest, tenderest leaves on the tea bush.

DOMINION OF CANADA
PROVINCE OF
PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND
14th George V., A. D., 1923

IN RE ESTATE of Charles E. McNeill, late of Lower Montague in King's County in the said Province deceased testate.

By The Honourable A. BANNERMAN WARBURTON, Surrogate Judge of Probate &c., &c.,

To the Sheriff of the County of King's County or any Constable or literate person within said County.

GREETING

WHEREAS upon reading the petition on file of James M. Hewitt of Lower Montague aforesaid, Farmer and Lobster Paaker, the Executor of the above named Estate, praying that a citation may be issued for the purpose herein after set forth: You are therefore hereby required to cite all persons interested in the said Estate to be and appear before me at a Probate Court to be held in the Court House in Charlottetown, in Queen's County, in the said Province of Prince Edward Island, on Tuesday the Eighth day of January next, coming, at the hour of eleven o'clock forenoon of the same day to show cause if any they can why the said Accounts of the said Estate should not be passed and the Estate closed as prayed for in said petition and on motion of J. D. Stewart, Esq., Proctor for said Petitioner, AND do hereby order that a true copy hereof be forthwith published in some newspaper published in Charlottetown aforesaid, once in each week for at least four consecutive weeks from the date hereof and that a true copy hereof be forthwith posted in the following public places respectively, namely, in the hall of the Court House in Georgetown in King's County aforesaid and at Poole & Thompson's Store at Montague in King's County aforesaid, so that all persons interested in the said Estate as aforesaid may have due notice thereof.

GIVEN under my Hand and the Seal of the said Court this Thirtieth day of November A. D., 1923 and in the Fourteenth year of His Majesty's reign.

(Sgd.) A. B. WARBURTON, Judge of Probate
160-12-4-4Tue.

DESIRABLE PROPERTY For Sale or To Let

Property situated at St. Avaris, consisting of dwelling house, barn, and orchard must be disposed of at once. No reasonable offer refused. Apply 227 Grafton St. 116-12-6-61.

DOMINION OF CANADA
PROVINCE OF
PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND
14th George V. A. D., 1923

In the Probate Court

In Re-Estate of John Curran, late of Charlottetown in Queen's County in the said Province, deceased, testate.

By The Honourable A. BANNERMAN WARBURTON Surrogate, Judge of Probate, &c., &c.,

To the Sheriff of the County of Queen's County, or any Constable or literate person within said County.

GREETING:

WHEREAS upon reading the petition on file of William Curran of Charlottetown aforesaid, retired farmer and Percy Landrigan of Charlottetown aforesaid, Mail Clerk, the executors of the above named estate, praying that a Citation may be issued for the purpose hereafter set forth: You are therefore hereby required to cite all persons interested in the said Estate to be and appear before me at a Probate Court to be held in the Court House in Charlottetown, in Queen's County, in the said Province of Prince Edward Island, on Thursday the twentieth day of December next, coming, at the hour of eleven o'clock forenoon, of the same day to show cause if any they can why the accounts of the said Estate should not be passed and the Estate closed as prayed for in said petition and on motion of Donald McKinnon Proctor for the said Petitioners, AND I do hereby order that a true copy hereof be forthwith published in some newspaper published in Charlottetown aforesaid, once in each week for at least four consecutive weeks from the date hereof and that a true copy hereof be forthwith posted in the following public places respectively, namely, in the hall of the Court House in Charlottetown aforesaid, at or near the City Weigh Scales and at or near the Bank of Nova Scotia both in Charlottetown aforesaid so that all persons interested in the said Estate as aforesaid may have due notice thereof.

GIVEN under my Hand and the Seal of the said Court, this fifteenth day of November A. D., 1923 in the fourteenth year of His Majesty's reign.

(Sgd.) A. B. WARBURTON, Judge of Probate
385-11-20-4 Tues.

For Fire Insurance
Consult
H. M. SIMPSON
156 Richmond Street
Phone 369-J.

CLASSES FOR NURSING

The New Hampshire State Hospital School of Nursing, offers to eligible young women a course of Nursing Education. Classes form in January. The School is registered by New York and New Hampshire and is affiliated with a general Hospital. A generous allowance is offered to students, as well as uniforms, maintenance and laundry. For further information apply to the Directress of Nursing, New Hampshire State Hospital, Concord, N. H. 399-12-10-61

THE SOLDIER SETTLEMENT BOARD OF CANADA OFFERS FOR SALE BY PUBLIC TENDER

65 acres on Township No. 63—Kings County, Prince Edward Island, deeded to the Board by Samuel Davidson, 6 miles from Murray River, Cambridge 1-2 mile, 48 acres under cultivation, 17 acres wood and slash—house, 2 barns, and machine shed in good state of repair.

Terms of sale are all cash; or ten per cent of the purchase price cash and the balance amortized over a period of twenty-five years with interest at six per cent per annum.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted cheque for not less than $100.00. If tender is accepted this amount will be credited on the purchase price of the land and if tender is not accepted, the money will be returned to the tenderer.

The highest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

Tenders will be opened January 2nd, 1924.

Tenders should be addressed to,—

THE DISTRICT SUPERINTENDENT, The Soldier Settlement Board St. John, N. B.

12-12-11-31

BLACK OXEN

by GERTRUDE ATHERTON

Published by arrangement with Associated First National Pictures, Inc. Watch the screen version produced by Frank Lloyd with Corinne Griffith as Countess Zattiany.

SYNOPSIS
At a first night performance in New York a beautiful young woman attracts attention by rising and leisurely surveying the audience through her glasses. Clavering, a newspaper columnist, and his cousin, Dinwiddie, are particularly interested. Dinwiddie declaring she is the image of Mary Ogden, a belle of thirty years ago who had married a Count Zattiany. He is convinced that this is Mary's daughter, but all efforts to establish her identity prove futile. Clavering finally manages to meet her, and she tells him she is the Countess Josef Zattiany, late of Charlottetown in Queen's County in the said Province, deceased, testate. By the Honourable A. Bannerman Warburton Surrogate, Judge of Probate, &c., &c., To the Sheriff of the County of Queen's County, or any Constable or literate person within said County.

which I could evoke any harmony of ecophony I chose. "What held the men I played with and rejected was my real gift for good fellowship, my loyalty in friendship, and some natural sweetness of disposition. But such power makes a woman, particularly while young, somewhat heartless and callous, and I was convinced that I had no capacity for love myself; especially as I found all men rather ridiculous. I met Otto Zattiany in Paris, where he was attached to the Embassy of the Dual Empire. He was an impetuous wooer and very handsome. I did not love him, but I was fascinated. Moreover, I was tired of American men and American life. Diplomacy appealed to my ambition, my love of power and intrigue. He was also a nobleman with great ing to her with a certain detachment. So far she had revealed little that Dinwiddie had not told him already, and as he knew that the brief recapitulation of her earlier life was not prompted by vanity, he could only wonder if it were the suggestive preface to that serene volume at which Dinwiddie had hinted more than once. As she continued silent, he kept suddenly to his feet. "I'll walk up and down a bit, if you don't mind," he muttered. "I'm rather—ah—getting rather cramped."

"Do," she said indifferently. "Please go on. I am deeply interested." She continued in a particularly level voice while he strode unevenly up and down: "Of course the time came when my memories faded; my boyhood youth asserted itself and I wanted love. And when a woman feels a crying need to love as well as to be loved, her whole being a peremptory demand, unsatisfied romance quickening, she is not long finding the man. I had my choice and was happy for a time. Although I had been brought up in the severest respectability—just recall Jane Oglethorpe, Mrs. Vane, Mrs. Ruyler, and you will be able to reconstruct the atmosphere of the women I had known as a girl had lovers it seemed to me that American women came to Europe for no other purpose, and I was now living at the fountain-head of polite license. Not that I made any apologies to myself. I should have taken a lover if I had wanted one had virtue been the fashion. And the contract with my husband had been dissolved by mutual consent. The only thing that repelled was my pride. I hate stepping down from my pedestal."

Clavering gave a short barking laugh. Your arrogance is the most magnificent thing about you, and that is saying more than I could otherwise express. I'll fortify myself before you proceed further if you will permit. He poured himself out a drink and returned to his chair with the glass in his hand. "Pray go on."

She had not turned her head and continued to look into the fire. She might have been posing to a sculptor for a bust that would hardly look more like marble when finished. "I soon discovered that I had not found happiness. Men want. They rarely love. I realized that I had demanded in love far more than passion and I received nothing else. "I am not unhappy. I was rid of him. I had a great position and there was everything to distract my mind. I was not so interested in the inner workings of diplomacy as I was later, but the comedy of jealousy and intrigue in the diplomatic set was amusing from the first. I was very beautiful, I entertained magnificently, I was called the best dressed woman in Paris, I was besieged by men—men who were a good deal more difficult to manage than chivalrous Americans, particularly as I was now married and the natural prey of the hunter. But it was several years before I could think of men without a shudder, little as I permitted them to suspect it. I learned to play the subtle and absorbing game of men and women as it is played to perfection in the older civilizations. It was all that gave vitality to the general game of society. I had no children; my establishment was run by a major domo; it bore little resemblance to home. It was the brilliant artificial existence of a great lady, young, beautiful, and wealthy in Europe before nineteen-fourteen. Of course that phase of life was suspended in Europe during the war. All the women I knew or heard of worked as hard as I did. Whether than terrible interregnum left its indelible seal on them, or whether they have rebounded to the old life, where conditions are less agonizing than in Vienna, I do not know."

She paused a moment, and Clavering unconsciously braced himself. Her initial revelation had left the deeper and more personal part of him stunned, and he was listening.

Big Clearance AUCTION SALE

AT MT. RYAN ON MONDAY, DECEMBER 17th, 1923 At 12 O'clock Sharp My farm consisting of 85 acres of choice land, 70 acres clear and in good state of cultivation, the rest under a small growth hard and soft wool. Well watered, close to churches, school. Also all my stock, crop and farming implements as follows: STOCK—3 good horses age 1, 4 years, 1, 6 years, 1, 12 years, 10 head of cattle, 5 extra choice milk cows, 1 to freshen December 26th, 1 to freshen January 1st, 3 cows in milk. CROP—8 tons hay, quantity straw, 100 bus. oats, 100 bus. potatoes, 50 stooks wheat. Also all my farm implements and all household furniture, including dining room, kitchen and bed room furniture, one Enterprise Monarch range (new) and a lot of other articles not mentioned. Sale positive. No reserve. Terms of farm at sale. Of stock 12 months on all sums over $10.00, 6 per cent off for cash. If stormy will be held on the first fine day. M. F. SINNOTT, Mt. Ryan PETER BRODIE, Auctioneer. 440-12-11-51.

Removal Notice!

MacDougall & MacAulay and Waller & Doyle have removed their Shops and Offices from 236 Kent Street to 195 Grafton St., where they will be pleased to see all their old customers and as many new ones as wish to patronize them. See them for your carpenter work and painting. 12-12-11-31

ing to her with a certain detachment. So far she had revealed little that Dinwiddie had not told him already, and as he knew that the brief recapitulation of her earlier life was not prompted by vanity, he could only wonder if it were the suggestive preface to that serene volume at which Dinwiddie had hinted more than once. As she continued silent, he kept suddenly to his feet. "I'll walk up and down a bit, if you don't mind," he muttered. "I'm rather—ah—getting rather cramped."

"Do," she said indifferently. "Please go on. I am deeply interested." She continued in a particularly level voice while he strode unevenly up and down: "Of course the time came when my memories faded; my boyhood youth asserted itself and I wanted love. And when a woman feels a crying need to love as well as to be loved, her whole being a peremptory demand, unsatisfied romance quickening, she is not long finding the man. I had my choice and was happy for a time. Although I had been brought up in the severest respectability—just recall Jane Oglethorpe, Mrs. Vane, Mrs. Ruyler, and you will be able to reconstruct the atmosphere of the women I had known as a girl had lovers it seemed to me that American women came to Europe for no other purpose, and I was now living at the fountain-head of polite license. Not that I made any apologies to myself. I should have taken a lover if I had wanted one had virtue been the fashion. And the contract with my husband had been dissolved by mutual consent. The only thing that repelled was my pride. I hate stepping down from my pedestal."

Clavering gave a short barking laugh. Your arrogance is the most magnificent thing about you, and that is saying more than I could otherwise express. I'll fortify myself before you proceed further if you will permit. He poured himself out a drink and returned to his chair with the glass in his hand. "Pray go on."

She had not turned her head and continued to look into the fire. She might have been posing to a sculptor for a bust that would hardly look more like marble when finished. "I soon discovered that I had not found happiness. Men want. They rarely love. I realized that I had demanded in love far more than passion and I received nothing else. "I am not unhappy. I was rid of him. I had a great position and there was everything to distract my mind. I was not so interested in the inner workings of diplomacy as I was later, but the comedy of jealousy and intrigue in the diplomatic set was amusing from the first. I was very beautiful, I entertained magnificently, I was called the best dressed woman in Paris, I was besieged by men—men who were a good deal more difficult to manage than chivalrous Americans, particularly as I was now married and the natural prey of the hunter. But it was several years before I could think of men without a shudder, little as I permitted them to suspect it. I learned to play the subtle and absorbing game of men and women as it is played to perfection in the older civilizations. It was all that gave vitality to the general game of society. I had no children; my establishment was run by a major domo; it bore little resemblance to home. It was the brilliant artificial existence of a great lady, young, beautiful, and wealthy in Europe before nineteen-fourteen. Of course that phase of life was suspended in Europe during the war. All the women I knew or heard of worked as hard as I did. Whether than terrible interregnum left its indelible seal on them, or whether they have rebounded to the old life, where conditions are less agonizing than in Vienna, I do not know."

She paused a moment, and Clavering unconsciously braced himself. Her initial revelation had left the deeper and more personal part of him stunned, and he was listening.

To-NIGHT Tomorrow Alright

NR-3 Biliousness—Sick Headache, call for an NR Tablet, (a vegetable extract) to tone and strengthen the organs of digestion and eliminate. Improves Appetite, Relieves Constipation. Get a SPECIMEN Your Druggist. Used for over 30 years. Nature's Remedy NR-3 Chips off 'the Old Block' NR JUNIORS—Little NR One-third the regular dose. Made of same ingredients, then candy coated. For children and adults.

(To be Continued)

The Middle Ground

By Marion Rubincam.

TRYING TO UNDERSTAND

Chapter 48
"You see, I've had a lot of money," Jane went on, "we could have a big house—big enough at least so we could get away from each other now and then—"
"Married people oughtn't to want to get away from each other," Mrs. Talbot interposed.
Jane straightened up, with a lit the impatient sigh.
"That's just it, mother," she said. "That's just the trouble with your point of view, and ours. You put everything down by what people ought to do or ought not to do—"
"How else can you?"
"You can't judge them that way," Jane went on. "You have to take them as you find them. People ought to live nice, peaceful moral lives—but they don't. They ought to sleep with their windows open, and take lots of baths and exercise to keep themselves fit—but they don't. You mustn't blame them, you must take them the way they come."

She went on, after a pause— "Most married people are unhappy because they see so much of each other. I quite agree with Donald about that. When you have a lovely house that in itself is pleasing and efficient servants to get it nicely and to arrange tempting meals; and when you can have your own rooms to get away from people, to be alone to work and think—well, don't you see, it is quite different. We would have to be in one or two little rooms, we would always be under each other's feet, we would always be looking at each other—and Donald is nervous and impatient. No, it wouldn't do, not even I could stand that."

"That's why most marriages go wrong. People see too much of each other, they don't let each other alone. Then Donald would feel that he was expected of him to provide a nice home for me and he would feel badly because he couldn't—there are so many reasons why he is against marriage."

"Do you want to marry him?" Mrs. Talbot asked suddenly.
Jane nodded her head, slowly, tears dangerously near her eyes, face turned so her mother would not see—as though her mother would not guess! "I'm old-fashioned enough to want it, really," she answered. "But it can't be, so why talk of it?"

"But if Donald is in love with you?"
"That's what makes it quite all right for him," Jane said. "He knows—we both know—that we are very much in love. He'll never be in love with another woman and I know—oh, just as surely as though I could see all my life ahead of me, that I'll never love another man. I couldn't—again she paused, brown eyes lustrous as she thought of her love. "There's no one in the world like Donald," she said softly. "So what would be the difference? I mean, whether we married or not? The only thing is to be really in love?"
"Do you mean you would live with him?" Mrs. Talbot hardly dared ask the question.
Jane evaded.
"Listen, mother. You heard Amy say the other night that she was going to marry a rich man, the richest one she could find. She says she is going to do it deliberately, eyes open, to make a career for herself, whether she is in love with the man or not. Now, do you think that's right?"
There was a long silence.
"I want her to marry Dick," Mrs. Talbot said suddenly.
"That's not the question. 'I'll put it another way. Which of these two women do you think was bad—Mary Tait, who married for a home because it was that or go out and work, or that little girl at home who fell in love and, as father says, went wrong?"
Mrs. Talbot thought.
"Neither was good—I suppose I have more respect for the woman who really was in love, though. She does seem to have given up something—though your father would never agree."

Jane drew a long breath.
"Six months ago you would never have said that. Perhaps, after all, you will be able to understand—"
"I'll never understand that what is wrong is right. It's wicked—not to marry."
"Even if the other thing is to go on all my life eating my heart out for a man I love—to go on as—well, you know how narrow and faded and sour old maids are. Look at those living near us at home!"

Tomorrow—The Faithful Dick

It's my life, why can't I live as I want—if I do not hurt others? It was a cry from a hungry heart. Mrs. Talbot was terrified at its intensity.
"But Jane," she cried— "you haven't—you're not going to go with him? You haven't?"
Tomorrow—The Faithful Dick

ahead of me, that I'll never love another man. I couldn't—again she paused, brown eyes lustrous as she thought of her love. "There's no one in the world like Donald," she said softly. "So what would be the difference? I mean, whether we married or not? The only thing is to be really in love?"
"Do you mean you would live with him?" Mrs. Talbot hardly dared ask the question.
Jane evaded.
"Listen, mother. You heard Amy say the other night that she was going to marry a rich man, the richest one she could find. She says she is going to do it deliberately, eyes open, to make a career for herself, whether she is in love with the man or not. Now, do you think that's right?"
There was a long silence.
"I want her to marry Dick," Mrs. Talbot said suddenly.
"That's not the question. 'I'll put it another way. Which of these two women do you think was bad—Mary Tait, who married for a home because it was that or go out and work, or that little girl at home who fell in love and, as father says, went wrong?"
Mrs. Talbot thought.
"Neither was good—I suppose I have more respect for the woman who really was in love, though. She does seem to have given up something—though your father would never agree."

Jane drew a long breath.
"Six months ago you would never have said that. Perhaps, after all, you will be able to understand—"
"I'll never understand that what is wrong is right. It's wicked—not to marry."
"Even if the other thing is to go on all my life eating my heart out for a man I love—to go on as—well, you know how narrow and faded and sour old maids are. Look at those living near us at home!"

Your Health is at Stake if You Suffer from Constipation!

Every man, woman and child who has constipation or constipation symptoms should leave no stone unturned to get instant relief! Keep away from the dangers of pills and cathartics, which are almost as much to be dreaded as constipation itself. Your physician will recommend Kellogg's Bran because it is ALL BRAN—and it is Kellogg's Bran that will give permanent relief if eaten regularly.
"Eat Kellogg's Bran as a cereal. You'll enjoy its nut-like flavor. Or, sprinkle it on or mix it with hot or cold cereals. Many like it cooked with hot cereals. Two tablespoons of bran should be added in each instance. You have missed much not to have eaten Kellogg's Bran made into muffins, raisin bread or many other bakery batches. Recipes on every package. Prominent hotels, restaurants and clubs serve Kellogg's Bran in individual packages. All grocers sell Kellogg's Bran. Charlottetown Corn Flakes and Bran.

ahead of me, that I'll never love another man. I couldn't—again she paused, brown eyes lustrous as she thought of her love. "There's no one in the world like Donald," she said softly. "So what would be the difference? I mean, whether we married or not? The only thing is to be really in love?"
"Do you mean you would live with him?" Mrs. Talbot hardly dared ask the question.
Jane evaded.
"Listen, mother. You heard Amy say the other night that she was going to marry a rich man, the richest one she could find. She says she is going to do it deliberately, eyes open, to make a career for herself, whether she is in love with the man or not. Now, do you think that's right?"
There was a long silence.
"I want her to marry Dick," Mrs. Talbot said suddenly.
"That's not the question. 'I'll put it another way. Which of these two women do you think was bad—Mary Tait, who married for a home because it was that or go out and work, or that little girl at home who fell in love and, as father says, went wrong?"
Mrs. Talbot thought.
"Neither was good—I suppose I have more respect for the woman who really was in love, though. She does seem to have given up something—though your father would never agree."

Jane drew a long breath.
"Six months ago you would never have said that. Perhaps, after all, you will be able to understand—"
"I'll never understand that what is wrong is right. It's wicked—not to marry."
"Even if the other thing is to go on all my life eating my heart out for a man I love—to go on as—well, you know how narrow and faded and sour old maids are. Look at those living near us at home!"

SILVER FOX FURS

George B. Herzig, New York

Will be in

CHARLOTTETOWN, FOR ONE DAY

Wednesday, December 12th

SUMMERSIDE AND WEST

December 13th and 14th

We Want

1,000 Good Silver Fox Furs

Bring Your Furs in on These Dates to the Above Places

WE WILL BUY.

W. CHESTER S. McLURE

Charlottetown