Sunday School Lesson

(Topic for Feb. 1.) (Acts 8:4-39.)

PETER AND JOHN IN SAMARIA

"Ye shall be my witnesses both in Jerusalem, and in all Judea, and Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the earth."—Acts 1:8.—Golden Text.

The lesson for today may be used with a missionary application. It records what is really the beginning of world evangelization.

Jesus in Jerusalem is now finished and we enter upon the second stage in the expansion of the church. Henceforth, the Gospel was to be carried to Samaria and all Judea and then beyond.

The beginning of a reign of terror which drove the disciples away from Jerusalem. A young Pharisee named Saul was foremost in this persecution; armed with a commission from the high priest, he visited every house where there were known to be followers of Jesus.

Thrust upon men and women there to be beaten and otherwise tortured if they refused to give up their allegiance to the Lord.

Palatines west of the Jordan consisted of three districts: Judea, Samaria, and Galilee. Judea and Samaria together formed a Roman province. Peter and John went from Jerusalem in Judea into Samaria where Philip was preaching.

The city of Samaria was the capital of the district having the same name. It was called Sebaste by the Romans.

The First Foreign Missionaries and their Work.—Fallip, one of the seven, known later as Philip the evangelist, probably little realized that he was inaugurating when he went down to the city of Samaria and proclaimed unto them the Gospel.

He found the people accepted his good tidings concerning the Kingdom of God, and were baptized. There was a joy among them which was not to be found elsewhere.

But there are some strange to say, who do not believe in this enterprise. Here is a parable for them. Some years ago, an enthusiast went to a sturdy British member of Parliament to ask him to support a Daylight Savings Bill.

"Well you see," said the enthusiast "if we get this bill through, we shall enjoy one hour more of sunshine in our gloomy climate every day."

"I am the enthusiast detailed all the advantages—how much light should save on artificial light, the benefit to our eyesight and our general health—but the M.P. shook his head. "It is useless to talk to me," he said, "I admit all that you have advanced but on principle I cannot support it."

"On principle? What do you mean?" "Well, I don't believe in sunshine at all!" "Not believe in sunshine?" the canvasser thought the M.P. was mad. Object to the shining sun! Whether you like it or not, the sunshine is the source of all life on this earth.

Like it or not, the sun will still shine and the world will still reach the height of absurdity; but let me tell another equally absurd, that may be verified in many a church in this country. A collector went to a seatholder in a certain church of work of Foreign Missions. The collector pointed to what a Christian was doing in Foreign lands. The seatholder shook his head. "That may all be true," he said, "but on principle I cannot support it."

"On principle? What do you mean?" "Well, I don't believe in sunshine at all!" "Not believe in sunshine?" the canvasser thought the M.P. was mad. Object to the shining sun! Whether you like it or not, the sunshine is the source of all life on this earth.

Foreign Missions of all! But you are a Christian? "Yes, certainly. You know that Jesus Christ is the light of the world?" "Yes, I know that that light has shone in your heart? You know his glory and his grace?" "Yes," (this time hesitatingly). "Well, then, when you say that you object to Foreign Missions, you mean you object to Jesus Christ shining in the dark places of the earth, to give the sunshine which has been given you of Him, it is too late to object. Whether you like it or not, the sun shines."—R. Newton Flew, in "The Christianian."

Are We Doing Our Part.—The other day I chanced upon this striking statement: If there were in the world today but one Christian, and this one Christian labored for a year, and found another man and persuaded him to labor for a year, and these two labored for a year and found two other men, and so went on year after year, all who were found bringing others into the Kingdom, at the end of thirty-one years there would be two thousand million followers!

"A Jew was not easily driven from Jerusalem," writes Dr. W. L. Watkinson, "but the gentile force was supplied by the persecution, and the expropriated went about preaching the word. The persecuted Huguenots carried Protestantism into remote places. The Puritans of the 'Mayflower' fled from home persecutions to lay the foundations of Christian empire in the New World. It is fascinating to follow the story of the distribution of plants by tides, winds, birds and other agencies to remote regions, until they have spread and taken possession of vast areas; but the geographical distribution of plants and animals is far less wonderful than the movements and agencies by which Christian truth attains universality."

"Providence, like Hebrew, needs to be read backwards." Reading the history of the Apostles Church as we now can do, we see that the martyrdom of Stephen and the persecution of Stephen which immediately followed, were parts of God's plans for the more rapid expansion of the church. The Greek verb translated "scattered abroad" means literally to be sown and sown and brought forth, the disciples went they preached Jesus the immediate result of the persecution at Jerusalem was the spread of Christianity to Samaria. Its ultimate result, the spread of Christianity to the uttermost parts of the earth.

Mirard's Liniment Co., Limited. Sirs,—I have used your MIRARD'S LINIMENT for the past 25 years and whilst I have occasionally used other liniments I can safely say that I have never used any equal to yours.

If rubbed between the hands and inhaled frequently, it will never fail to cure cold in the head in 24 hours. It is also the best for bruises, sprains, etc.

Yours truly, J. G. LESLIE

Reconstruction of Shell-torn Areas

French Government will Compel Communities in the War Zone to Prepare Town Plans.

The French Government passed a Town Planning law in March, 1919, which made it compulsory for every city and town of over 10,000 inhabitants to prepare, within three years, a plan for its improvement and extension. The act further required that any town or village which was destroyed or partially destroyed by earthquake, fire or any act of war must have a plan made for its reconstruction, and that plan must be approved by the authorities of the Department before any building might be commenced.

France has a very large problem to solve with reference to the reconstruction of the area devastated by war. For planning purposes that area has been divided as follows:

(a) Areas where there was very little destruction.

(b) An area of nearly two million acres, related to districts more or less injured by shell fire.

(c) Land so churned up by shell fire that it would cost more to deal with than the land was worth. (There are about 275,000 acres of this obliterated land, including seventy-five villages that have been absolutely destroyed.)

Little permanent reconstruction has taken place as yet because of the delay consequent on the preparation of plans necessary for over 3,000 destroyed towns and villages. The Germans stole plans of many of these towns from the offices of the municipal surveyors. The only copies extant are in the offices of the Prefecture, and, at best, many have not been revised since 1925.

One reason for holding the Inter-Allied Town Planning Conference in Paris in June was to show what other countries are doing, particularly Great Britain, which is in the van of the movement.

Lumber Industries Employ Most Labour

Manufacturing Group With Largest Payroll is Directly Dependent on Forests for Raw Material.

The importance of the lumber industry in the economic life of Canada is strikingly shown in a recent bulletin of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. Among the great manufacturing groups, the lumber industry holds fourth place in point of production, first place in furnishing employment, and first place in total payments for labour.

The figures for 1917 show a total capital investment of nearly $150,000,000, and a wage and salary list aggregating about 57,000 people with payments amounting to nearly $40,000,000. The total value of the output for the year is placed at $115,884,905. This figure includes the value of lumber, lath, shingles, pulpwood and miscellaneous products.

In value of production during 1917, the leading place was occupied by British Columbia, with Ontario, Quebec, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, Saskatchewan, Manitoba, Alberta and Prince Edward Island following in the order named.

In the amount of lumber cut, though not in its value, British Columbia has displaced Ontario as the premier province. The output for the former for 1917 was 1.2 billion board feet, and for the latter 1.1 billion. Increasing ascendancy of British Columbia in this respect may be expected, since that province contains approximately half the merchantable saw timber of the Dominion.

It should be noted that the white pine cut of Ontario has diminished very considerably, due to depletion of virgin supplies, and that an increasing percentage of the spruce timber is going into the manufacture of pulp and paper, rather than lumber. Further while extensive lumbering in British Columbia is of comparatively recent development, it has been going on in Ontario since a very early period, with consequent heavy destruction due to fires and the absence of restrictions upon logging methods calculated to leave cut-over areas in a productive condition.

The forests of British Columbia, like those of Quebec and New Brunswick, are administered by the Provincial Forest Service, a technical organization of trained foresters. This development has not yet taken place in Ontario, though representations have been made to the Provincial Government in that connection.

In Nova Scotia the appointment of a technically trained Provincial Forester is under consideration. The importance of handling our forest areas from the viewpoint of permanent production, rather than for immediate profit only, is becoming increasingly recognized.
