truck nor trade with the western free traders. By so much the interests and the path of Gouin and Lapointe diverge, giving birth to rivalry. And in Quebec Lapointe is the greater master of persuasive speech.

There has been much talk in Parliament in recent years of the necessity to meet earlier in the winter. Immediately after the Christmas-New Year holidays has been approved as the most desirable time to meet. Late Ottawa despatches tell that the opening is now expected to take place at the last of January or early in February. It was ever thus. Ministers so long and so widely separated will have much to talk over before they can settle down to business and prepare measures to be submitted to Parliament. Redistribution of seats must be one of these and is not free from difficulties, owing to the growth of cities and the loss of rural population in many sections during the past decade. Hardest and slowest of all the difficulties to be got over will be the personal, racial and sectional differences between ministers themselves, their rivalries and contentions. These might be suppressed but for the want of a leader with a real gift of leadership and command not possessed by the present Prime Minister.

It will therefore not be surprising if, as in the past, the opening of parliament is too long delayed, important measures promised and not ready until mid-session, the House kept sitting until late spring or midsummer and at the last when half the members have gone home, tens of millions of the people's money voted away for doubtful projects by a thin House of weary representatives. It makes it no better but rather the worse that this has been the rule rather than the exception in previous sessions. That we have been governed and legislated for with so little wisdom and economy often in the past, affords no good reason for following a pernicious example which should be avoided.

One Ericson sixty years or more ago invented a hot air engine. It was installed in some factories and even in some press rooms as a motive power, but was soon discarded. A place has since been found for the hot air engine in parlaments and legislatures. Who does not remember the days and nights in the Legislature here under the Bell regime, when the hot air engine was puffing and blowing under high pressure with a relay of some twenty men relieving one another from time to time at the throttle? Most of the engineers of those days have since been retired from active duty. The legislature hot air engine has been broken and remained silent for months past, but others have been installed in some "Liberal" newspaper offices, not in the press rooms but in the editorial sanctums. The experiment is interesting.

MINARD'S "KING OF PAIN" LINIMENT

IN MEMORIAM

MR. ANGUS McINNIS

The death took place at the residence of his niece, Mrs. C. Trainor, Hope River on the 9th Nov. inst. of Mr. Angus McInnis in the 73rd year of his age. The late Mr. McInnis was well and favorably known in many parts of the Province. He resided in Emerald for the greater part of his lifetime, and was a trusted travelling salesman for the late Mr. Craig and Mr. Farnell-McMahon merchants of that place. Amongst the people with whom he had business relations his word and honesty were never doubted. He was a good citizen and leaves many friends who will regret to learn of his death. The funeral took place on Saturday last at St. Anne's Church and cemetery, the burial services being conducted by Rev. W. V. McDonald, P. P., who frequently visited him during his illness of several months. May his soul rest in peace.

A Wise Old Trapper

In the State of Ohio there lived a bunch of boys who had this trapping business down to a science. They each sent for separate price lists every year and then sent all their furs to the house giving the best quotations. After five years they decided they weren't so dreadfully wise because they didn't have enough profits to make their efforts worth while.

One day they met Tom McMillan driving a new car to town. Tom said he made the price of his well outfit shipping furs. He told how he got wise to those funny prices and found it was better to deal with Chas. Porter, because he always knew in advance just what he was sure of getting. He said that Porter never offered $5 for a $3 pelts, but he always paid the $3 which he promised and sometimes just a little better. Chas. Porter now has five wise trappers in that section instead of one.

There are many Pipeless Furnaces on the market to-day but the

Fawcett "PIPELESS" IS DIFFERENT

IT IS DIFFERENT BECAUSE IT IS BUILT BY EXPERTS TO WEAR AND TO WORK AND NOT MERELY TO SELL.

Before deciding on that new Furnace for next winter be sure to get the little booklet "The How and the Why of the Pipeless Furnace". It is just a plain statement of heating facts written so that anyone can understand it, and is free for the asking.

We make wood furnaces and coal furnaces in both the pipe and pipeless styles.
