Youth Rides West

By Will Irwin

"I have had friends," she said.
"And perhaps you wouldn't like to have me call you friends. But I never dreamed that I should ever ask any friend to do for me what you two wonderful men have done today. I can't thank you. It would be ridiculous to try. But if you ever want anything I can do or can't do—let me—" She broke off; her eyes became lonesome; she released their hands.
"It's all right—" wasn't nothing!"
Buck managed to say.
"I'd do it again for you and more, Mrs. Deane," began the reader Marcus. "You're—but the lakes were overflowing. Buck first, then Marcus, backed out of the room.
"I want to cry, Robert," said Constance. "Don't try—to comfort me—please. Just watch—to see if anyone's coming—" So I stood for a long time, as it seemed to me. I studied Main street as it settled down to normal.
The voice of Constance, sweet with passing tears, spoke behind me.
"I think I'd better go home now," she said.
"I'm going with you," I replied.
She hesitated, as though restrained by some little, instinctive fear of the proprieties; then, as realizing how ridiculous that was in the face of our situation, smiled —I'mly now—and replied:
"Do—I want, of course, to tell you everything."
So we walked together into Main street. Naturally we attracted attention. I could feel with the back of my head that the crowd about Doc Egan's window had turned from that old sensation to this new one, had stared and pointed.
Now and then a head craned from a window, or I heard a rush of feet at a doorway. Eyes ahead, we walked in silence up the familiar path—should I ever tread it again?—to Mrs. Barnaby's.
Constance was not entirely reassured that Deane had escaped. I must needs give her comfort on that. Once I asked: "What you said before they arrested me—you mean that, Constance?" she answered: "I mean it then. I mean it now. I mean it forever!" But we did not then kiss or clasp hands, as unfettered lovers may after such words; only sat for a time silent and looked at each other.
A spurt of sleep or what resemble d sleep; when I came out of it, feverishly awake, she was talking:
"—my own fault, my very own in the beginning, Robert. A little of it sin—if you want to call it that.
The rest just folly. Perverse folly.
I was only seventeen when I eloped with him from Miss Gorham's academy at Providence. That was the beginning. I shan't lay that to anyone else. But I will tell you how it happened:
"We lived at Warwick—do you know it? A little old Rhode Island town. The family had been there forever. My mother was younger than my father! She died when I was six years old. I had no brothers or sisters.
"My father married again—a beautiful woman, a brilliant woman, but unbalanced. Perhaps insane. I wouldn't have had the charity to make that excuse for her once. I hated her. But I think, now, I shall never hate anyone else so long as I live. She was cruel to me insanely cruel—because she was jealous. I have been beaten, terribly beaten, in my day, Robert. But more than that. The trick of putting me in the wrong. . . . Perhaps that was why father sent me away to school—to Miss Gorham's in Providence. From the time I was seven until I was seventeen—just school. At first I came home for the holidays. But finally she spelled even that. She had a terrible hold on father. I can understand that, too. She was a beautiful creature.
"Then I came seventeen, and was going to finish next year—music and needlework and Latin and French and riding and dancing and deportment, and nothing what ever about life. I hadn't even read a novel, except surreptitiously. I wasn't a little girl any longer.
That's the period, I suppose, when every girl ought to be locked up for a while. Probably the French are right. And of course with me —the one thing I never had was love.

Results Commendable.
Genuine Gratitude.

Miss Miller, of Croydon, writes:— "In gratitude, I feel I must write and tell you what wonderful benefit I have derived from taking a bottle of your Carter's Little Liver Pills.
Having been troubled with indigestion and sick headache for several months, a friend recommended me to try your famous pills, with the results that after the first dose I was made aware of their very real tonic value, and felt I had at last discovered a remedy which performed what it claimed to do."

Piles All Gone

Without Salves or Cutting

Itching, bleeding, protruding piles go quickly and don't come back, if you remove the cause. Bad blood circulation in the hemorrhoidal veins causes piles by making the affected parts weak, flabby, almost dead. Salves and cutting fail because only an internal medicine can actually correct these conditions.
Dr. J. S. Leonard discovered a real internal Pile remedy. After prescribing it for 1,000 patients with success in 960 cases, he named it HEM-ROID. Hughes Drug Co., Ltd., says one bottle of HEM-ROID Tablets must end your Pile misery or money back.

TENDERS

Tenders will be received at the Rules Governing Guardian

"Famous Canadians" Contest

Everyone who is a paid in advance subscriber excepting employees of The Guardian and their families may take part. As many members of one family of a paid in advance subscriber may compete as desire and any subscriber may send in as many sets of answers as he or she wishes, but each set must be complete and will be judged individually.
The successful competitors whose subscriptions are paid farthest into 1932 will have the preference.
Clip the picture and coupon underneath it every day and write the answer on the blank line. Save all your clippings until the end of the contest and then send them to the "Famous Canadians" Contest Editor of The Guardian in one batch. Name and address should be included, clearly written or printed, and securely attached to your solutions. It will facilitate handling if you bind your solutions by sewing along the top, or using paper fasteners.
In sending more than one solution, each solution must be enclosed in a separate envelope.
Please attach sufficient postage as, otherwise, it may be necessary to refuse acceptance of the mail.
In case of a tie The Guardian reserves the right to publish one or more tie-breaking puzzles.
The judges' decision will be final in all matters, and The Guardian will not undertake to enter into correspondence with any individual regarding the decision of the judges.
