WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 10.—Washington won the world's baseball championship today, defeating the New York Giants, four times National League champions 4 to 3 in the twelfth inning of the seventh and deciding game which was one of the most spectacular ever played.

McNeely, the young outfielder, drove in "Muddy" Ruel with the winning run with a double to the left field in the 12th after one was out. Credit for the final victory went to Walter Johnson, great veteran who went in as relief pitcher with the score tied in the ninth inning and held the Giants scoreless for the rest of the game.

The wildest and most frenzied demonstration that ever followed a world's series victory came with the winning run. Most of the vast crowd of 35,000 which included President Coolidge swept down the field in an outburst of joy over the climax to Washington's first pennant victory and her first world title. Around the dugout where the Senators were themselves wild with delight over one of the greatest achievements in baseball, the crowd swarmed, throwing hats, cushions and spirits to the winds in their frenzy.

WHEN FITZSIMMONS WON FROM JIM CORBETT

Old Time Battle Recalled When Corbett After Taking The Count, Started A Free-For-All With "Fitz" After The Bout.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—James J. Corbett, between the time he won the heavyweight championship from John L. Sullivan and the time he lost it to Bob Fitzsimmons, entered the ring for fistic contests but four times his most noteworthy opponent being Charlie Mitchell, of England, who six years previously in a pelting rain fought a thirty-nine round draw with Sullivan at Chantilly, France.

During the half decade, Mitchell had "gone back" as expressed in ring parlance, and Corbett knocked him out in three rounds. The battle was staged at Jacksonville, Fla., on January 25 1894.

On September 7 of the same year Corbett met and defeated Peter Courtney at Orange, N. J., Courtney took the count in the sixth round.

Corbett Seldom Fought.

Corbett avoided the limelight for two years, picking up the shekels here and there by doing stunts on the stage until he was smoked out by Tom Sharkey, the tough sailor. The boys went to it for four rounds in San Francisco, and the exhibition was called a draw. On December 14 of the same year Corbett boxed a three round exhibition with Jim McVey in New York.

All this time Bob Fitzsimmons was barking at the heels of Corbett, and finally the pair were matched the bout to take place at Carson City, Nev., on St. Patrick's Day 1897.

It was a sad day for Corbett, who lost the title in the fourteenth round. Here is an account of the fatal session:

Fitz tried both leads, but each time was stopped by Corbett's left. Then Fitz landed a right to the ear. Corbett stepped in, bringing his left back for a hook. As he did so, Fitz shifted and drove his left to the body. The blow landed on the "solar plexus." It brought Corbett to the floor an das he was going down, Fitz landed another left to the chin, and there were cries of "foul." With his right knee touching the canvas and his left leg extended in the opposit direction, Jim slowly bent over until the tip of his hand rested on the floor. With his left hand he grasped his left side. His eyes widened and rolled. He did not have the power to move. Fitz stood over him until Referee Siler pushed him back, the timekeeper tolling off the seconds. Corbett rallied and shuffled along on his knes, grasping the top robe with his right hand. He made a brave attempt to bring himself to his feet, but his knees seemed glued to the floor. He was counted out and Fitzsimmons was proclaimed heavyweight champion of the world.

Decision Caused Riot.

Just as the timekeeper shouted "ten," Corbett raised his left hand in mute protest, Corbett's seconds all the while were shouting "foul" and jumped into the ring. When the fatal wod "out" was shouted, Martin Julian who managed Fitz, wrapped a towel about his head and danced around the ring. Some one handed Fitz a small American flag and he waved it gleefully.

Two seconds after he was counted out Corbett got to his feet. His features were drawn and he looked desperate. He realized then that he had lost. He threw his hands high above his head and rushed over to where Fitz was standing near the ropes.

The ring by thi stime was filled by excited spectators. Joe Corbett caught Jim by the arm, but he pulled himself away.

Corbett literally fell upon Fitz. He hit Bob and knocked him un

JUDGE LANDIS REFUSES TO CHANGE

Wild Hold to Decision to Banish O'Connell and Dolan.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—Commissioner Landis gave a rehearing recently to Jimmy O'Connell and "Cozy" Dolan, but announced afterward that he saw no reason to change his decision in the case which expelled from baseball the two members of the New York Giants, who were involved in an attempt to bribe "Heinie" Sand, Philadelphia shortstop.

At the same time the commissioner emphasized that the door to further investigation is still open and that he is prepared to act quickly upon any further evidence or information having a bearing on the case.

The commissioner denied that either O'Connell or Dolan in visiting him at his hotel, had appealed for a change in his decision, but from a reliable source it was reported that Landis after the hearing informed both men they had given him no ground on which to base any change in his verdict.

The commissioner did, however, reveal two of the objects for which the pair came to see him. O'Connell said had not received official notice of his banishment and wanted to have his status definitely established while Dolan sought an audience to explain that when he told Landis he "didn't remember" the circumstances related in O'Connell's confession, he (Dolan) meant he knew nothing about the whole affair. Dolan has steadily maintained his innocence, but his newest explanation, apparently failed to move the commissioner.

Landis declined to comment upon the latest attack upon his administration by Ban Johnson, president of the American League, who, in Kansas City, charged the commissioner "will not or cannot ferret out" alleged crookedness in baseball because "he is too close to the National League and the New York Giants."

SPEED EXHIBITION TO-DAY

This afternoon between 2 and 3 o'clock Bud Hal and Colonel Aubrey will hook up for a fast mile. It is expected that Dan Patchen and Mac Aubrey will have a go and Tom Yank will also be sent a mile against time.

FRENCH HORSE AND LADKIN MOVE FAST

Epinard Went Mile in 1.42 1-5 While American-Bred Horse Went Mile and Quarter in 2.05 4-5.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 10.—Pierre Wertheimer's Epnard and August Belmont's Ladkin, conqueror of the former in the Second International special at Aqueduct, continued preparation for their engagements in the Third International to be run at Lacon'a Saturday by participating in fairly smart trials over the Kentucky course. Epinard worked one mile in 1.42 1 5, breezing, and Ladkin turned the full International distance of one and a quarter mileser in 2.05 4-5 unextended.

The trials were the only ones recorded for candidates for the race, and both horses attracted much attention as they whirled around the oval.

With Jockey Everett Haynes in the saddle and Diagram, one from the stable of August Belmont, to accompany him. Epinard ran the first quarter of a mile in 0.23 2 5, then went to the half in 0.48 1-5, five eighths in 1.01, three quarters in 1.15, and arrived at the end of eight furlongs in 1.42 1 5 with Haynes pulling stoutly.

Epinard's workout greatly impressed Trainer Eugene Leigh, who is expected to send the French four year old over the one and one quarter mile route at an exciting gait on Friday.

Blind Play, a three year old of no mean ability, accompanied Ladkin for the first mile, with Clyde Gordon guiding the latter. Ladkin's spin was remarkable because of the evenness with which the three year old son of Fair Play and Ladkin went over the journey. After negotiating the first quarter in 0.25, he arrived at the end of a half mile in 0.48 1-5, completed three quarters in 1.14 1 8, and was at the termination of a mile in 1.40 2-5. He then reflected his freshiness and courage by turning the final quarter in 0.23 2-5, to finish the one and one quarter mile test in 2.05 4-5. Ladkin seemed to do better after Blind Play was taken off him at the end of the first mile.

Minard's Liniment Relieves Pain.
