He observes many changes for the better here, especially in the improvement of the livestock on the farms. There is a decided civic advance in Charlottetown, and altogether he is very favorably impressed with the present conditions here. Referring to the trend of affairs in the United States, he said there is still a great depression, though there is a feeling abroad that rock bottom has

FAREWELL TO REV. WALLACE MACWALKER AND MRS. MACWALKER

Rev. Wallace MacWalker has resigned from the pastorate of North River Baptist Church to accept the pastorate of the New Germany, Nova Scotia, Church. On Saturday evening there was a three fold surprise at the manse, when the sisters and the brethren of Clyde Ladies Orange Lodge called upon Mrs. MacWalker to find that representatives of the Church of Scotland of Canoe Cove were assembled to call upon both Mr. and Mrs. MacWalker. Each group surprised the other. They both surprised the inmates of the manse. The first part of the evening was spent in conversation and in song. Two of the songs were the favorites "Maie Laghach" and "Poasal Puthal Ian Bhain". Mr. Alexander MacKenzie of Long Creek called the assembled people to order for the business of the evening and Mr. MacWalker of Canoe Cove was appointed master of ceremonies. Mr. Malcolm MacFadyen read an address in which the happy relations existing between Mr. and Mrs. MacWalker and the members of the Church of Scotland was mentioned in words of fervent commendation. The address was accompanied by two beautiful and valuable gifts—a leather club bag to Mr. MacWalker and a leather purse to Mrs. MacWalker.

Mr. Colin MacPhail, representing the Ladies Lodge, read an address expressing the appreciation of the work of Mrs. MacWalker's life and of her as a member of that organization. Mr. and Mrs. MacWalker thanked the donors speaking of their genuine affection for and their admiration of the friends who had been so kind to them for the last five years. All stood and sang "God Be with You Till We Meet Again." The ladies of the church and of the lodge provided a banquet. Needless to state, this part of the programme reminding one of "the land flowing with milk and honey" was entered into heartily by all present. After singing "Blest Be the Tie that Binds Our Hearts," the "good-nights" were said in a feeling of mingled gladness and sadness—gladness over the sacred tie of Christian friendship and sadness over the thought of parting.

CHERRY VALLEY AND VICINITY The golden-rod is yellow. The corn is turning brown. The trees in apple-orchard With fruit are bending down. The many friends of Mr. Earl Carrier, Earncliffe, are glad to see him out again after his recent indisposition. Miss Eva Carrier, Mt. Herbert, spent Sunday afternoon here the guest of her parents Mr. and Mrs. George Carrier. Numerous friends of Mr. Malcolm McLeod, Earncliffe, are sorry to learn of his continuing illness. Mrs. George Carrier, Cherry Valley, spent a very pleasant afternoon the guest of Mrs. J. O. Irving, Vernon. Miss Amanda Murphy, China Point, spent a few days in Vernon.

the guest of her grandmother, Mrs. Amanda Murphy. Friends of Miss Patricia Murphy, China Point, are glad to see her out again after being confined to her home for some time with diphtheria. Miss Mary Murphy, Mill View, is at present at the home of Mrs. James O. Irving, Vernon. The annual W. M. S. Song Service was held in the United Church here on Sunday evening, August 30th, with a very large congregation. A splendid programme was successfully carried out by the members of the choir assisted by other talent. An interesting feature of the programme was an address on the work of the Women's Missionary Society by Mrs. (Rev.) W. A. Thompson, Rev. H. Pierce, B. A., pastor. Miss Lettie Carrier, Cherry Valley, recently visited Mt. Herbert.

SOME RESULTS...ACHIEVED BY THE DOMINION EXPERIMENTAL FOX RANCH

Experimental Farms Note When the Dominion Experimental Fox Ranch was established at Summerside, P. E. Island, in 1925, fox raising industry. Scientific in many problems that called for solution and were contending with many vexatious set-backs that menaced the very existence of the fox raising industry. Scientific investigations since conducted at the Fox Ranch have solved many of these problems. A few of the results obtained are given here.

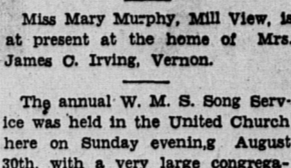

Overfeeding had long been a very common fault. To remedy this the Experimental Fox Ranch after thorough trials, determined the best rations for foxes in different stages of growth and during the different seasons. This has resulted in improved production of fur and offspring and in decreased feed costs throughout the industry. By demonstrating that foxes should be fed in step with the seasons, the Fox Ranch has furnished breeders with a simple and reliable guide in making the composition of the rations during the different seasons conform with the variation in nutritional requirements. Accordingly in the summer, foxes require either green vegetation or the flesh of animals that have recently eaten such vegetation. In the fall, ripe vegetation or its essentials is necessary. Later, when the frost has destroyed vegetation and when the natural prey of the foxes is in good condition, larger quantities of meat may be fed. In the late winter when the natural prey is in poor condition, it is not necessary to feed large quantities. Furthermore the Fox Ranch has demonstrated conclusively that foxes must lose weight in the summer and put on weight in the fall and that during the breeding season overfeeding should be rigidly avoided. These results have led fox breeders to pay more attention to summer and fall feeding, and this has led to a greater production of pups with less deaths among the newborn. It was a common practice of fox breeders to feed fats and oils in the hope of getting the foxes to put on weight and so improve the quality of the fur. Experimental work has shown however, that this is a wrong practice because when a fox is fed large quantities of fat its system does not store up that fat. In fact the extent to which foxes put on fat during the fall months depends on their general condition. The Experimental Fox Ranch has carried out a large number of experiments on the efficiency and physiological of red remedies for the eradication of internal and external parasites and has disseminated the results obtained throughout the industry. This has led to more effective methods for the eradication of these parasites and, according to reports, there have been no ill effects resulting from the administration of the remedies recommended. Foxes in captivity, especially the new born pups, are susceptible to scurvy. The Fox Ranch has been able to advise breeders how to cope with this disease and where its recommendations have been followed, scurvy in adult foxes and losses of new born pups have been reduced to a minimum. Problems of breeding, including the inheritance of silver coloring constitutional vigor and other inherent traits form an important part of the work of the Experimental Fox Ranch. Trials have been made with different types of pens and sheds. The advantages of polygamous mating and the use of aphrodisiacs have been studied, as well as many other problems that have a direct bearing on silver fox ranching. The results of these investigations have placed the Experimental Fox Ranch in a position to make clear-cut recommendations to fox breeders, and information is freely furnished to any one who applies for it.—G. Ennis Smith, Superintendent, Summerside, P. E. I.

FOODSTUFFS SHOW OUT OR 50 PER CENT IN DETROIT

DETROIT, Sept. 2. (U.P.)—Detroit housewives are jubilant these days over the reduced price of food. The housewife who fed her family on an allowance of $14 a week here two years ago, now finds she can set the same sort of table for $8.50. The almost 50 per cent reduction in foodstuffs is reported by George V. Branch, director of the Municipal Bureau of Markets. Branch supplies figures to demonstrate that if the housewife adheres rather strictly to a diet of vegetables, eggs, fruit and a little meat, her 1929 budget may be slashed to $8 flat.

GAVE FRIEND UP TO COPS SO HE COULD GO BAIL

BROCKTON, Mass., Sept. 3. (U.P.)—John Duszkiewicz was so anxious to go bail for his friend William Giddis that he helped police arrest the latter. Duszkiewicz appeared at headquarters and announced he wished to furnish bond for his friend's release. Police, who had sought Giddis informed Duszkiewicz he could do so if he would bring the defendant in. Duszkiewicz did.

Port Conditions

During the past few years, our port has decreased considerably, not nearly the number of ships calling here. Work for the longshoremen has dwindled away, until our waterfront is almost dead, and only for the few ships that call here fortnightly there would be almost nothing worth while to report along the waterfront. Coal is now being transported by rail, a much cheaper and faster method. Yet it does seem a shame to one who has known and watched the waterfront movements for some years, as the writer has, to see wharves bare, an odd sailing vessel here and there, which also in time will almost be extinct. Let us recall the good old days, when our port was at its best, the wharves lined with vessels, with others anchored in the stream awaiting a berth, others plying their way up the East, West and North rivers, some bringing cargoes and others to load them, tug boats going their way towing to and from the different rivers, with at times five and six vessels in a string, steamers from all corners of the globe making their calls, and last but not least plenty of work for everyone concerned. However, those days are gone and will likely never return. The last rush will soon be here when the fall shipping of potatoes commences.

SAGO TEHONIATARAKAKOWA!

'Greetings, Chief Swiftest Rider Of Mighty Waters'

Honours have been heaped upon Captain R. G. "Jock" Latta, commander of the trans-Atlantic record liner Empress of Britain since his new 42,500 vessel regained the Blue Ribbon of the Atlantic for the British Empire by all classes of people but none have been more sincerely offered than the recent tribute of the Six Nations Indians. Encamped at Loretteville, Quebec, where they are establishing a village in which the ancient arts of the redman are practiced, members of the Six Nations under the leadership of 81 year old Chief Wolverine recently honoured the Canadian Pacific Commodore by adopting him into the tribes and conferring chieftainship upon him as a tribute to his feats of seamanship with the big white "war-canoes." Meeting the Empress of Britain in their gaily decorated, birch-bark canoes a score of brave and Squaw, led by Wolverine, Running Bull, American Horse and Princess White Eagle, danced their ceremonial dance on the Games Deck of the mighty liner, in wood in reverent silence while the old Chief invoked the great spirits and rent the air with their whoops as Princess White Eagle and Chief Wolverine crowned the new chief with a war bonnet of eagle's feathers. Photos show (left) Chiefs and braves in their canoes cluster round the big ship as she arrives, (right) the final ceremony, and the deer skin certificate of adoption.
