 IN SCREEN PRESENTATION
 OF ATHERTON NOVEL
PRINCE EDWARD.

A powerful dramatic theme has been brought to the screen in the picturization of Gertrude Atherton's famous novel, "Perch of the Devil" which opened yesterday at Prince Edward Theatre.

Pat O'Malley and Mae Busch co-starred in this vital play which penetrates the gauze of civilization and lays bare the naked souls of the men and women like ourselves. Politeness and polish—brilliant and sweet deceit—all the fine vices of cultivated man are swept aside with a fell stroke when woman who neglected her husband woke with a shock to find him another woman's possession. We learn that the woman who craftily undermined the sanctity of her home was, supposedly, her friend.

Uncouth but tremendous is the character depicted by Miss Busch and the scenes that follow her travail are gripping in the extreme. Scene after scene the tension rises as the honeyed perfidy of "the other woman" is unmasked and treacheries brought to light.

King Baggoti has made a big splendid screen production out of this great novel, which is among the most successful works of Gertrude Atherton, having gone through many editions.

Pat O'Malley gives an admirable performance in the virile role of the young prospector who is loved by one woman and hoodwinked by another. Jane Winton is perfectly cast as the rich young woman who pretends to be more clever than she is. Theodore Von Eltz, Mario Carl and Lincoln Steadman are excellent in their characters. Gertrude O'Keefe, Matha Franklin and George Kurva complete an unusually fine cast. "Don't Tell Everything," a two part comedy supplies the comic relief to the dramatic feature attraction. This excellent program will be repeated this afternoon and evening.

No Face Should Smart
 After Shaving

The daily shave should leave the face feeling thoroughly refreshed—smooth as velvet to the touch. This means a freshly stropped, super keen blade which will remove the beard once over "slick and clean." The dull unstropped, scraping blade causes smarting, injures the skin and soon brings premature indications of age.

The Valet AutoStrop Razor strops its fine, sharp blade to super keenness in a moment, just as a razor should be for the most tender face, the toughest beard and for the quickest shave. No taking apart for stropping, shaving or cleaning.

SAVINGS OF MILLIONS PREDICTED IN CROP

WINNIPEG, Oct. 24.—Important recommendations, estimated when put in practice to effect a saving of millions of dollars in the marketing of this year's prairie grain crop, are contained in a tentative report submitted to the Board of Grain Commissioners by the Grain Committee of the Canadian Research Council.

Scientists of the Research Council have discovered methods of commercial drying of tough and damp grain, which will prevent injury to the milling and baking qualities of wheat when practised under proper conditions. The research is not complete, but enough progress has been made to put the theories into operation in the drying of this year's crop, it was stated.
