Big Week End Bill At Capitol With Western And Serial

Blazing with the type of action which has invariably distinguished the series, tempered with moments of romance, the action of the popular "Saps at Sea" picture, "Santa Fe Marshal," had its first local showing last night at the Capitol Theatre with William Boyd cast once more as the fearless lawman Cassidy.

Once again the hard-riding, straight-shooting cowboy sets out after a gang of outlaws and brings them to justice in a terrific gun battle, breath-taking chase, and desperate encounters in which bullets fly. And, as usual, he is aided in his efforts to bring the outlaws to justice by the performance of his old sagacious, Russell "Rusty" Hayden.

Year in and year out the Cassidy westerns have demonstrated that they are tops in the field—and this picture is no exception. Based on characters created by Clarence E. Mulford, the yarn tells of Cassidy as he is called in to track down the outlaws who have taken a silver mine's payroll, and killed the paymaster.

In clever fashion, Boyd avoids identifying himself with the law. He takes up with a medicine show, and then the outlaws only when the performance of the show is upset by a gang of tough characters, led by Hayden join in the fracas, and Boyd saves a local woman, "Ma Burton," from injury when her horse bolt. Gradually Boyd discovers that she is the real leader of the gang, tells her that he is an outlaw. The picture approaches a spine-tingling climax when Boyd arranges a holdup with the gang, and traps them in the course of it. Among the other outstanding players in the picture are Marjorie Rameau, as Ma Burton, Bernadene Hayes, who provides romantic interest, and Earl Hodgins, who is excellent as the head of the medicine show. The picture was produced by Harry Sherman and directed by Lesley Selander, veteran combination which has made so many of these grand outdoor romances.

Laurel - Hardy Featured On Double Bill At Prince Edward

Upstairs fun and side-splitting laughter is provided in Hal Roach's new comedy, "Saps at Sea," which stars Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy opening today at the Prince Edward Theatre. Directed by Charles S. Brabin, the picture is a hilarious story and screenplay by Charles Rogers, Felix Adler, Hal Pratt and Harry Langdon. "Saps at Sea" is being released by United Artists.

In "Saps at Sea," sea-farers Stan and round Ollie are presented as a pair of horn testers in a musical instrument factory. It is their job to test that horns, but after a while the work gets on the nerves of Ollie. He proceeds to go berserk, and is prescribed a diet of goat's milk. The comical duo engage in a sea voyage in a boat that is destined to sink if it goes out to sea—so they decide to remain in port. Then the wild fun begins.

A gangster comes upon them and refuses to believe that they are living solely on goat's milk. The tough guy demands honest-to-goodness food and the comical realize that they are faced with a problem which may cost them their lives if they don't come through. Madness and merriment cut loose as they try to solve this ridiculous business, and then they get into real trouble with the arm of the law.

Gordon Douglas has directed "Saps at Sea" with swift pace, so that the film unrolls with a laugh a minute, while Laurel and Hardy prove again that they are the screen's leading funsters. All the scenes in the film were cleverly contrived for side-splitting humor and the acting of the stars and the supporting cast is uniformly excellent.

Hal Roach has produced "Saps at Sea" as a full length feature comedy and the settings, the photography, the lighting and the direction, stars, supporting cast, and talented director working in perfect unison.

16 Million Register For U. S. Training

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16—(AP)—American youth, in cheerful response to the Government's call, registered today for the peace time draft and a possible year of bootcamping and training in the camps of the United States army. Sixteen million strong and more—sons of the poor and wealthy, truck drivers, Hollywood glamour boys, big league ball players, water front drifters, college students, aliens devoid of English—they streamed in and out of the registration places throughout a day unparalleled in American history.

Henry Ford II, grandson of the automobile manufacturer, stood aside by side with a Filipino domestic at a municipal building in suburban Detroit awaiting his turn to sign up.

Movie actors Henry Fonda and Jimmy Stewart were sitting on the steps of a Hollywood registration place when it opened.

A big dog led a blind piano tuner, Charles Gilliam, to a registration point at Chickasha, Okla. Gilliam said he could "play in the band."

Four Chinese boys were first in line at Philadelphia headquarters. They signed their names in Chinese characters.

By every means of measurement, the registration address was a huge success. Conspicuous had been in the headlines and on the air for weeks, and eagerly, tearfully, or prayerfully discussed in millions of homes. Thus most people understood the procedure, and the huge task was performed with a minimum of hitches.

Not all were eager. Some were unwilling. Some even stayed away entirely, but the latter were obviously a tiny, fragmentary minority.

A New York federal grand jury issued subpoenas, returnable Friday, for nine students at Union Theological Seminary, who asserted their unbelief in the principle of conscription and refused to register.

Early in the day, President Roosevelt told the registrants in a broadcast address that the conscription program is "a program of defensive preparation only" that "your act today affirms not only your loyalty to your country but your will to build your future for yourself."

From Wendell L. Willkie, the Republican presidential nominee, they received the message that: "You are registering one more chance for freedom—your freedom."

The law required that all men between 21 and 35, inclusive, register for the draft.

No Appointment In N. B. Chief Justice Post

OTTAWA, Oct. 16—(CP)—Justice Department officials said today no appointment has been made to fill the post left vacant by resignation of Chief Justice J. H. Barry of the King's Bench division of the New Brunswick Supreme Court.

One spokesman of the Justice Department said it probably would be several days at least before an announcement could be made.

At Fredericton today, the Deputy attorney-general, J. Bacon Dickson, said Chief Justice Barry had notified him of his resignation. Mr. Dickson declined to give details of the resignation, saying it had been sent to Ottawa.

Opening Of New Bridge At Sackville Friday

SACKVILLE, Oct. 16—(CP)—Official opening of a $100,000 highway bridge spanning the Tantramar River will be made Friday at 2 p. m. with Dr. J. C. Webster, Sackville, N. B., presiding over the ceremony.

The three-span two-lane bridge, built during the past 18 months, replaces a 39-year-old covered bridge and will serve as a main highway connecting Sackville with New Brunswick and Nova Scotia.

Highway traffic will be held up for a brief period starting at 2 p. m. the ceremony will comprise speeches by Dr. Webster, Works Minister Anderson, who will declare the bridge officially opened, Agriculture Minister, Taylor, Education Minister Blakeney, and P. H. Copp and Edward Leeger, members of the New Brunswick Legislature for Westmorland County.

U. S. Officials Confer With Australian

By J. C. STARK
Associated Press Staff Writer
WASHINGTON, Oct. 16—President Roosevelt and State Secretary Cordell Hull conferred separately with the Australian minister, Richard G. Casey, on far eastern developments today, as preparations to start American war supplies moving to China again over the Burma Road brought renewed Japanese threats to prevent such shipments.

The diplomatic talks were said to be a continuation of progress for some time with Britain, the Marquess of Lothian, the British ambassador, on defence problems in the Pacific.

Casey said he and the President had discussed everything of interest to Australia, but declined to specify particular questions asked whether this included possible American use of Britain's far eastern naval base at Singapore.

With the re-opening of the Burma Road set for Friday, Casey sources here said large stores of supplies are ready at the Burma port of Rangoon and elsewhere in that area to start moving into the Chinese interior. They said they expect also a considerable increase in shipment of materials from the United States now that a route would be open into China.

Since the Burma Road was closed last July by Britain, exports of both war supplies and other material to China have dropped sharply. More than $5,000,000 of war supplies have been licensed in recent months for China, but not yet exported, due to the scarcity of shipping facilities from the United States and difficulties in transporting them from far eastern ports into China.

The purchases include large amounts of airplane parts for assembly in China.

25,525 Men Train In First Canadian Muster

OTTAWA, Oct. 16—(CP)—Canada's first compulsory muster of men for military training in the present war produced 25,525 men as against 29,500 required to fill the 39 training centres to capacity, according to a joint statement issued tonight by the Departments of National Defence.

The statement gives five reasons why the muster fell short of its objective by 3,975 men.

The original objective for the 39 training centres scattered across the country was 29,500. This was reduced to 29,500 when the capacity of one English-speaking training centre in Quebec province was cut by 250.

Total number of men who reported for training in response to notices sent out by the Department of National War Services was 27,559.

SCENERY MISSING

Of these 2,034 were rejected as medically unfit after examination at the training centres, leaving a net enrollment for the first 30-day training period of 25,523.

The men are all from the age groups 21, 22 and 23. Calls were sent out starting with the 21-year-old class, but calls were sent to some men in the 22 and 23 year old groups if this was found necessary because of a shortage of men aged 21, or because of postponements of training in individual cases.

The statement gives the following causes for the number reporting being under the number actually required:

1. The large number of postponements granted by the National War Services Board on account of seasonal occupations particularly that of farmers.
2. The large number of postponements granted to men in industry employed on war supplies. On the representations of industry, and having regard to government policy respecting the necessities of wartime production, the postponements finally made were substantially greater than those which were earlier anticipated when the call was made by the Department of National War Services.
3. The combined figures of the number of men, in and who had previous service in the non-permanent active militia and who had reported this service on their registration cards were much greater than had been anticipated and advanced. These men are postponed until their claims to service are verified.
4. The large numbers of students who did not report on their registration cards that they were students, and whose training was postponed during the first period of training until it is determined whether they are members of Canadian officers' training contingents or of military training while taking their courses.
5. In the outlying districts of Canada a few of the men were absent from home on their usual occupations and consequently did not receive the communications forwarded to them.
