HAL ROACH COMEDY CARNIVAL

IN CINECOLOR ALSO NEWS

"COMEDY CARNIVAL" IS DELUXE TREAT FOR ADULTS AND KIDDIES ALIKE

Responsible for more innovations in laugh-provoking entertainment than anyone else in the comedy field, veteran producer Hal Roach tops more than a quarter of a century of film-making with his newest offering of hilarious screen fare, "The Hal Roach Comedy Carnival," photographed in the amazingly life-like hues of Cinecolor, which opens today at the Capitol Theatre.

Blending a surprising variety of comedy elements into a huge, rollicking round of fun, "The Comedy Carnival" is divided into two parts and runs the entire gamut of humor from warm, heart-tugging chuckles and slapstick for the kiddies to scintillating, ultra-sophisticated wit for the grown-ups.

Part One deals with a group of school children of the "Our Gang" strip who attempt to intimidate their new teacher. It ends in as hilarious an "about-face" as the screen has seen in some time. Part Two relates the dilemma caused by a prominent stock broker's exposure to the antics of his fabulous dog and here the wit and sophistication of contemporary American is brought to a full flowering.

And for the first time, color, generally reserved for spectacular outdoor epics or musicals, has been used to enhance straight comedy, adding immeasurably to the gaiety of the proceedings.
