Thousands of photographs, magazines and books were carefully studied, and preliminary drawings and sketches were prepared. These were followed by models built to scale. Then came the actual construction work.

Exciting Melodrama. The story of "To Be Or Not To Be" reaches a high point of dramatic action when the "ham" actors—Jack Benny, Carole Lombard, Lionel Atwill, Felix Bryant, Tom Dugan, Charles Halton and George Lynn—become involved with the invaders and find themselves impersonating every important Nazi figure from Hitler on down. After a series of startling complications, the members of the troupe are delivered out of Poland into England, snatched from the very jaws of the Gestapo.

No Room for Optimism. There was, however, no room for quick optimism as to the city's fate, for the Germans were sending fresh troops and new machines to the battle area on the eastern bank of the Don.

Thousands of soldiers were fighting from behind every natural barrier and tanks were charging over the battlefield, where walls of fire were twisting into huge columns of smoke.

German dive bombers in small groups were hammering repeatedly, but the Red air force again was showing considerable strength both over the Don battlefield and the Don river crossings forced by the Germans.

Northwest of Voronezh, a number of German tanks were reported destroyed on the west bank of the Don by strong Russian armored forces.

Southward on the rim of the north Caucasian area, south of Boguchar, the Russians were reported holding today after a considerable withdrawal to new positions. One regiment of German infantry was reported stopped with the loss of more than 700 of its effectives.

There was no news, however, from the region east of Lisichansk, some 135 miles southwest of Boguchar, or from the Rzhnev front northwest of Moscow—both areas of powerful German offensive action.

Southeast of Leningrad, in the Volkhov sector, the Germans were reported driven from a fortified village they had occupied since last fall.

Russian bombers, raiding an unidentified enemy port, were credited with destroying five warehouses, sinking a transport and a tanker and starting big fires.

Impressive Settings. One of the principal public squares in Warsaw was erected on a huge stage and more than three hundred extras were hired to appear as Polish citizens. In the most prominent spot and jutting out into the square is seen the big Teatr Polski in which the city's favorite stock company held forth. Lining the streets are beauty salons, haberdashery shops, military establishments, florist shops, shoe stores and office buildings. Dashing down the street are horse-drawn cabs, auto-

GERMANS PUSH (Continued from page 1) attackers into retreat. The Germans attempted the encirclement after their breakthrough west of the city, accomplished by large numbers of fresh troops and hundreds of tanks followed by automatic riflemen, had run into stubborn Russian resistance. An important position west of Voronezh, together with a forest, was reported recaptured in the Russian counter-attacks. Russian dispatches said also that German motorized infantry division, which appeared on the battlefield only yesterday, had been forced to withdraw, and was replaced by the new 188th motorized division.

A small railway crossing also was retaken, and in another section the Russians applied such pressure that the Germans retired, blowing up a bridge.
