government's handling of provincial farm loans.

J. A. Bradette (Lib. Temiskaming North) appealed for extension of the advantage of the farm loan scheme to settlers in the north country. It was important that such farmers have the same credit facilities as others.

Finance Minister E. N. Rhodes said the farm loan board would have to be judge of whether a particular settler came within the definition of 'farmer" it was proposed to place in the act. He could not decide in advance what settlers could obtain loans but the definition of "farmer" would be as wide as in the farmers' creditors arrangement act and would be interpreted as liberally as possible.

MOUNTING

Eight "Blue Devils" of the 13th Battalion left a mountain post at Latura to take a sick man to Modene. An avalanche engulfed five of them. A second crew of 10 Alpine infantrymen went to the aid of the first detachment and two of them were struck by a second avalanche.

WINDOWS SMASHED

The S. S. President Roosevelt reached Plymouth with seven thick plate glass windows on her promenade deck smashed by a 50-foot wave. She had fought storms all across the Atlantic.

Lloyd's reported the 1,000-ton British coastal steamer Easingwold ashore near Freeman's channel.

Honolulu in the Pacific Ocean reported eight dead and six missing in the wake of torrential rains and hail which struck the island of Oahu.

Caught In Avalanches

LYON, France, Feb. 28. — Seven French soldiers were killed today by two avalanches in the French Alps as they tried to aid comrades isolated by the heavy snows.

A group of eight "Blue Devils" of the 13th battalion under the command of a non-commissioned officer left a mountain post at Latura to take a sick man down to Modene. An avalanche overwhelmed them, engulfing five of the party.

A second crew of 10 Alpine infantrymen of the 98th Regiment left Solderos to go to the aid of the first group but were struck by a second avalanche. Two were killed.

Fourteen Drowned

CASABLANCA, Morocco, Feb. 28. —Fourteen men — nine Spaniards, three Frenchmen and two Arabs—drowned near here today when a Spanish fishing boat sank and a lifeboat sent to its aid capsized in heavy seas. A gale blowing outside the harbor hampered rescue efforts.

One sailor off the fishing vessel was washed ashore but suffered serious injuries when he was dashed against rocks. Six bodies were recovered. Eight were missing.

Lost Seeking Salvage

LEIXOS, Portugal, Feb. 28.—Gales continuing to pound Leixos, Lisbon's Port, which remains closed to navigation, today took the lives of six men reported to have been trying to secure salvage from the ship Ruy Babtsa, which sank in storms recently.

The sea wall guarding the harbor is gradually being destroyed by giant waves, and fears were expressed port works might be entirely wrecked, with damage of almost $5,000,000.

Twenty-one Persons Missing

RABAT, Morocco, Feb. 28.—(C.P.-Havas) — Twenty-one persons were missing today after a tidal wave sweeping along the coast capsized two vessels.

Thirteen of the victims were members of the crew of the coast guard vessel Marshal Lyautey which had gone to the rescue of a Spanish ship in distress a short distance off the shore.

As the Marshal Lyautey approached the stricken ship a giant wave overturned both vessels throwing the 22 members of both crews into the sea. Only one person was saved and later this afternoon four bodies had been picked up.

Buck Jones In "When a Man Sees Red" At Capitol.

Opening yesterday at the Capitol, Buck Jones, as cowboy, takes the lead in "When a Man Sees Red" with Dorothy Revier, Peggy Campbell and Jack La Rue.

This time Buck Jones is appointed guardian of Peggy by her uncle who is on his death bed, and Buck goes to the girl to bring her to the ranch, but while they are getting ready a telegram arrives announcing the uncle's death. They immediately set out for the ranch, and after the will is read, arrange to carry on the ranch for a period of time. Jack La Rue setting his cap for heiress, and at the same time doing a little cattlerustling on the side, is befriended, against Buck's wishes by Peggy. Finding that Peggy is meeting La Rue in the mountains, Buck sets out to save her, and finding proof of the cattlerustling, he pins it on La Rue, and the fight is on. Needless to say right rules in the end, and a thrilling riding cowboy film is titled, "When a Man Sees Red". Also on the bill is a comedy featuring our old comedian friends, Charlie Murray and George Sidney, more commonly known as the "Cohens and the Kelly's" and titled "Ten Baby Fingers", in addition the popular series The Red Rider flashes across the Capitol screen with Buck Jones again portraying the role of cowboy ace.

Noted Circus Folk In Cast Of Latest Joe Brown Comedy At The Strand

There is a most unusual cast in Joe E. Brown's latest First National comedy, "The Circus Clown," which opened yesterday at the Strand Theatre. The picture was photographed for the most part at the winter quarters of the Al G. Barnes circus which played in Charlottetown last July and in addition to the regular cast there are a score or more of famous circus performers who have small parts or will be seen in the circus sets which act as a background for the comedy action.

Prominent among the circus folk are "Poodles" Hanneford, famous bareback rider; Mamie Ward, chief of the Flying Wards; The Clarkontans and the Flying Cordona Family, all aerialists; Ruby Woods, the trapeze artist; Dolly Jacobs, the girl with the iron jaw; Bill Kling, stilt walker; Bertha Matlock, aerialist; Charles (Spud) Redrick, noted band leader and several famous clowns, including Milt Taylor, Curley Phillips, Pat Kling, Jack MacAffie and many others.

The famous menagerie also has a part in the performances as do the "props" and other workmen, for the picture depicts the back-of-the-scenes life of the circus folk.

Patricia Ellis is Joe E. Brown's leading lady with Dorothy Burgess, Donald Dilloway, Gordon Westcott, Charles Wilson and Harry Woods in important parts. Still others include such well-known players as Ronnie Cosby, John Sheehan, Spencer Charters, Tom Dugan, Earl Hodgins and Bobby Caldwell.

Handles Canada's Flax To Ireland

(C. P. By Guardian's Special Wire)

SARNIA, Ont., Feb. 28—The only flax activity in this district at present is carried on by Howard Fraleigh of Forest, Ont., former M. L. A. for Lambton East. A mill was erected in Sarnia during the war but subsequently ceased operations.

Mr. Howard operates a mill and it is believed he handles practically Canada's entire output of flax to Ireland.

An inquiry received by A. W. Hyndman, manager of the Royal Bank of Canada at Charlottetown, indicated that Ontario textile manufacturers were showing interest in the Franklin E. Smith flax process which its promoters in Lancashire, England, claim will make linen cheaper than cotton.

There Are Hogs And Hogs

(C. P. By Guardian's Special Wire)

OTTAWA, Feb. 28—Hogs are hogs but some are better than others believes Dr. Thomas Donnelly, Liberal House member for Williow Bunch. In particular Canadian hogs are better than American hogs.

"The American hog is not the Canadian hog," said Dr. Donnelly. "He is not a bacon hog at all. He is a lard hog. He is not as good as out neat Yorkshire bacon hogs."

The Western member was comparing farm prices in Canada and the United States and maintained good Canadian hogs brought a lower price than their inferior brothers south of the line.

HOOD CAPTAIN

at the outset of the hearing, placed with its hilt towards his seat—sign of acquittal.

Testifying on behalf of his flag-captain today Rear-Admiral Bailey declared that Capt. Tower had acted correctly. His actions greatly minimized the result of the collision which caused damage to the big fighting ships in manoeuvres off the Spanish coast last month and, in fact, "went within an ace of avoiding it," he asserted. He thought that under the circumstances the onus of averting a collision lay with the Renown.

On his own behalf Captain Tower said that his actions in ordering the Hood's engines full speed ahead with rudder to Starboard probably minimized the effect of the collision.

The prosecutor, Rear-Admiral J. A. Troup, navigation expert, told the court that Captain Tower appeared to be to blame, however, because although he saw the Renown approaching him on a dangerous bearing he did not take action in sufficient time to avert a collision.

Capt. Sawbridge, given temporary command of the old wooden Victory, Nelson's flagship long lying in harbor here, in order he might testify, was a witness for the prosecution.

Investigating Recent Fire

(Canadian Press)

A special investigator was working quietly here today gathering evidence on a fire at the McLeod and Jenkins grocery store more than a fortnight ago. Although Fire Marshall C. H. Beer intimated an investigation was in process, he said he had no statement to make on the findings.

South African Veterans Observe Paardeberg Day

The 34th annual banquet of the South African veterans took place on Paardeberg Day, Wednesday, 27th., in the Blue Room at Milton's Old Spain. In addition to the veterans a large number of guests were present. The banquet which has been a yearly function since 1902, was most successful and was presided over by Col. H. D. Johnson, M. D. Many of the veterans and guests present made short speeches, Mr. Charles Earle, who has not missed a banquet for fifteen years was soloist. The South African veterans present were: Major J. S. Walker, Lt. J. Ambrose Rodd, Col. H. D. Johnson,, Messrs Lawrence Gaudet, Charles Hine, Reginald Cox, Donald Kennedy, J. Fred Waye, Frederick Furze, P. C. Brown, and Harry Hyde.

In addition to the following toast list there were a number of impromptu toasts proposed.

The King responded to by singing "God Save the King"; Canada, responded to by singing "O Canada"; Our Province by the Premier, Hon. W. J. P. MacMillan; Our City by Councillor R. B Rattray; The Artillery by Capt. H. H. Cox M. M.; the Infantry by Col. U. G. Dawson; The Medical Corps by Major F. W. Tidmarsh, M. D.; the R. A. F. by Lt. H. R. Large; the Signal Corps by Major F. B. Conrad, M. M.; The P. E. I. Branch of the Canadian Legion by the President, Mr. W. S. Hughes; the Charlottetown Branch by the President, Mr. R. C. Chandler; the Ladies by Mr. H. R. Stewart; the host by Mr. Harry Richardson.

Discussion On War Resolution

OTTAWA, Feb. 27—Warm discussion of the Hughes war resolution was followed by its withdrawal this evening in the Senate by its sponsor. The debate brought into action Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, Senate leader, Hon. James Murdock (Lib. Ottawa), Senator John Lewis (Lib. Toronto), General W. A. Griesbach (Con., Edmonton), Senator H. S. Beland (Lib., Montreal) and Senator J. J. Hughes (Lib. (Prince Edward Island).

The resolution proposed, if Canada ever again entered war, she would wage it "with every ounce of her strength in man and material power" and that declaration of war should be followed immediately "by mobilization and conscription of all the human power and all the material wealth of the nation." It advocated further establishment of a war council composed of representatives of provinces and Dominion with power to assign men and women to their best qualified occupations; no person in Canada to receive more than "the common soldier;" no war loans and all war costs to be raised by capital levy and taxation.

Senator Meighen

"There is no one in this House," said Senator Meighen, "more eager and more ready to sacrifice and to make improvements in his country than I am. I do not know whether it can be done or not. I do not know whether there is a war coming, and I certainly do not know that there's not one coming. The events of the last three years have been discouraging in the extreme; the last 12 months have been heart-breaking. I do not know of anyone who is more certain to lose by war than we are, but I know that if we have any brains and have the means to defend our country we are going to do so, but we must not yield to the fatuity that we can do it alone at our own homes.

"So far as the resolution calls upon us to concentrate upon victory, I am in favor of it; but when it sets out the paths by which we are to reach this foal, I say they are false, and the principles which the honourable member (Senator Hughes) seeks to act upon are vain and valueless, and never will be followed in this country or in any other."

"Eighty-five percent of the people of Canada would vote in favor of this resolution if it were placed before them on a referendum," declared Senator Murdock. "The proposals in the resolution would be the proper thing to do and there would be no favorites played in war."

Why should not the wages and income of all citizens be equal in the event of Canada going to war? asked the former labor minister. The youth of Canada today were as courageous as the youth of 1914, he said, and if war confronted this country "they would prefer to divide up the responsibility on going to what might be called their last round-up."

Senator Lewis said he was opposed to conscription for the purpose of sending troops overseas and was opposed also to "intensive recruiting." A large part of Europe was still a "slaughter house and lunatic asylum" as it was 20 years ago. A heavier burden should be placed on wealth and a lighter burden on flesh and blood in wartime, he stated.

"Perfectly Absurd"

The war council proposal was "perfectly absurd," declared Senator Griesbach. The responsibility for supervision in this country in the event of war was one for the Dominion government of the day.

Senator Beland could not agree with the war council proposal as war supervision was an obligation of the federal government, he said.

The discussion had served a "useful purpose" and he would accordingly withdraw his resolution, stated Senator Hughes.

Housing Scheme Discussed At Ottawa

(C.P. By Guardian's Special Wire)

OTTAWA, Feb. 28—The government should, in any policy of building construction, have in mind that the prime need today was the erection of dwelling-houses for working people, Noulan Cauchon, chairman of the Ottawa town planning commission, told the House of Commons committee on housing here today. In past the policy of speculative builders had been to construct houses for individuals who could afford to purchase them, and to build them for profit. The result was complete absence of provision for the low-wage earner.

He commended the English housing scheme. There the government advanced 20 percent outright to municipalities and loaned the remaining 80 percent at a rate of interest between three and four percent. This was repaid by the resident in the form of rent, and defaults had been rare. The London county council owned and rented more than 200,000 houses, he said.

Mr. Cauchon pictured the stimulus the resuscitation of the building industry would have on industry as a whole. It would be one of the elements that would lead to the restoration of better times.

All housing schemes should also have regard for town planning, he emphasized, setting forth that in Canadian cities, with their checkerboard blocks, the efficiency of the streets was reduced to 30 per cent by reason of hold-ups to traffic at the intersections.

Slums should be cleared away without compensation to the owners of the buildings except the purchase of the land. In England the principle followed was that if a house was unfit to live in it was not a house and should be demolished.

BOARD TO

To Retain Place

It was known Mr. McFarland would be expected to retain a prominent place in the new set-up, probably as chairman if the proposed board, and it was believed possible the general practices of recent years regarding wheat exports would be followed. The power would take over the entire marketing machinery with suspension of options and grain exchange operations.

Debate on the resolution which will probably open some time next week may be seized upon by opposition members of the House to seek full details from the government of the extent to which the government became involved in the grain trade through Mr. McFarland's operations. This was indicated by remarks of Liberal members following announcement of the proposal.
