America's Next Congress

negro and anti-administration records, have been re-nominating; and the traditional absence of any serious Republican rivalry in the Southern States guarantees their re-election at the final polls.

The recent Southern drive of the Political Action Committee of the Congress of Industrial Organizations (the progressive trade union), aiming at fuller realization of the equal rights of the negro of the South obtained in consequence of the Civil War, has not yet had a real effect on the situation in the South. The first for raising Southern political life to the general level of American democracy still requires much time and effort. This is especially true of all "poll-tax" States, where great numbers of negroes and even poor "whites" remain disqualified from voting and where modern progress is held up by antiquated State constitutions and by the firmly entrenched power of the Democratic Party's local defenders of White Supremacy and clique domination. In Georgia, which had recently made some political progress, 100,000 negroes were able to vote for the first time, in spite of attempts at intimidating them. Together with large numbers of businessmen and other progressive elements among the white city population, they gave a majority vote to a liberal, pro-administration Democrat. Yet Georgia's "unit" election system, a remnant of the post-depression progress, the weight of which virtually amounts to election to the White Supremacy leader, Eugene Talmadge. Significantly, he celebrated his "victory" by announcing in defiance of the United States Supreme Court, that no negro would vote in Georgia during his term as governor.

The comparatively light participation in most of the primary elections reflects a considerable degree of popular indifference. Neither of the two parties, so far, has been able to arouse much enthusiasm for the November elections. For neither party developed programmes that promise the people the economic progress and security which today is their primary concern. The man-in-the-street is little impressed by the Cock Robin controversy as to who killed effective price-control and brought about the present soaring of the cost of living, the danger of inflation and the result of the Democratic Congressmen, whether it was the Democratic Party and Administration, through lack of cohesion and competence, or the Republican Party, through its selfish opposition to President Truman's policies. The man-in-the-street blames both sides, and especially the powerful big-business interests which worked so effectively on Republican as well as Democratic Congressmen.

This is true particularly of labour. No matter to which of the rival trade union camps, with all the differing political complexions, they belong, most workers seem to feel that neither of the two political parties really deserves the credit for the formation of a third party consisting of New Dealers already appearing from all kinds; and this is why the workers' interest in the election, in spite of the progressive economic watchfulness, is at a rather low ebb. Many of the smaller business, professional and white-collar workers are concerned in a similar position. A good many farmers outside the traditionally Republican Middle West seem to feel the progressive economic policies, the relatively rare cases where exceptionally "bad" or "good" candidates have been put up in the primary elections, i.e. where a worth-while choice seemed possible, that popular apathy has been overcome. A similar attitude may be expected in the November elections, when the candidates of the Democrats and Republicans who were face one another at the final polls. The outcome of the elections cannot yet be judged. But two probable scenarios, accordingly, while the primaries. First, there will be fewer isolationists in the new Congress. Secondly, while the party composition may change, the general political complexion is not likely to improve much where domestic issues are concerned. President Truman will be surprisingly lucky if he obtains a clear majority with which to execute the progressive economic policies that would give the United States the social stability she needs both for her own sake and for that of the world.

Progressive Conservative Association

A convention of the Progressive Conservative Party will be held in ELDON HALL ON WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 18th AT 8 P.M. STANDARD TIME

For the purpose of nominating two candidates to contest the Fourth District of Queen's in the next Provincial Election. Poll chairmen will please call meetings for the selection of delegates.

GEORGE MacLEAN,
OWEN CALLAGHAN,
Co-convenors.

Proclamation

As Mayor of this city and in my capacity as Chairman of your Local Ration Board I wish to remind you of the extreme need and wholesale starvation in war-torn countries, which has prompted our Government to maintain rationing in Canada. Millions of children throughout the world are starving and it is the duty of privileged nations such as ours to help the unfortunate ones. I am certain that all citizens of this city are in agreement with this sentiment.

Ration Book 6 will be distributed in Charlottetown at the Market Building with the generous help of volunteers. I ask all those who are in a position to do so to offer their services to the Local Ration Boards. They are in need of all the help they can find. I urge every citizen to call at the distributing centre to obtain his or her ration book during the official distribution period, that is, from September 11th to September 12th. This will assist those who are working as volunteers to complete their work within a reasonable time and will avoid the delay that is bound to result when books are not obtained during the official distribution period. Make sure you have the card RB-191 in the back of your present Ration Book properly filled out at home before applying for your new book.

B. EARLE MacDONALD, Mayor.
