Taxes That Actually Reduce Revenues

Those who figure out the taxes of a country or a province always have to reckon with that last forkful of straw that, if it does not break the camel's back' a least makes him an inefficient worker. There are taxes that are good taxes up to a certain point; that provide revenue and provide it with the minimum of effort and of unfairness. And beyond that point they defeat their own purpose. Witness the cigarette taxes. At $6 a thousand cigarettes were heavily taxed, but Canadians smoked nearly 2,500,000,000 a year. The tax was increased last year to $7.50 a thousand and the smokers turned to pipes and to rolling their own. Cigarette consumption dropped by about half a billion a year and the government suffered a net loss in revenue of about $2,000,000. The higher tax actually provided lower revenue.

ROOM FOR 10,000 MEN IN SOUTHWEST SASK.

OTTAWA, April 24.—"I'm not going to say we are living in luxury, for we are not but neither are we all bankrupt," declared George Spence of Monchy, Sask., in evidence before the Special Agricultural Committee of the House today.

Mr. Spence said there was room for 10,000 farmers in the area he came from.

"What chance have they of making good?" asked W. Elliott, (South Waterloo).

"The men there now are making good," said witness. "Conditional upon the building of railway facilities, the newcomer would be under better conditions than the man who began ten years ago."

"Your idea is that the purchasing power of the West has not altogether disappeared?" asked Chairman McMaster.

"Certainly not, though it has shrunk," said witness. "The income tax returns for last year and again for this year will prove that we are not all bankrupt.

"We could comfortably absorb ten thousand people in that corner of Saskatchewan," said witness. "Some of these would rent land and others, of course, would live in the towns. The West has wonderful assets in climate and soil. When I left we were sowing rye," said witness. "Our cattle had been grazing outside for a month. This was not an extraordinarily early spring. Some of the men now making pessimistic statements, based on local conditions, will be ashamed of their pessimism five years hence," the witness added.

A New Spring Suit

Means a Lot to a Boy

The minute the weather begins to turn he is just bubbling over with thoughts of coming days. It's a great season for him—like starting life all over again. He very likely needs a new suit but it's going to make him a lot happier if he gets one made especially for Spring wear. These are. Made to stand what a boy does outdoors in the Springtime too.

Taxes That Defeat Themselves

An interesting example of the way in which high taxes defeat their own purpose is quoted by the Financial Post. At $6 a thousand, cigarettes were heavily taxed, but Canadians smoked nearly 2,500 00 0,000 a year. The tax was increased last year to $7.50 a thousand and smokers turned to pipes and to rolling their own. Cigarette consumption dropped by about half a billion a year and the government suffered a net loss in revenue of about $2,000,000. The higher tax actually provided a lower revenue. Taxes that are too high will always defeat revenue purposes. (Montreal Herald.)

PRICE OF SUGAR UP AGAIN

TORONTO, April 23.— The wholesale price of sugar on the Canadian market was affected yesterday by the upward rise on the New York market and the price in Toronto today is $11.09 per 100 pound bag, compared with $8.87 when the increases first started three months ago. The price last week was $10.84.

One large sugar jobber stated that the market was firm. There was very little chance of the price coming down and every chance of it mounting steadily.

The price in retail stores today is two pounds for 25 cents, and in the groceterias 10½ cents a pound.

A large groceteria representative states that if the market remains firm for two weeks at the new wholesale price, a material advance in the retail price would have to be made.

5,000 LEAVE CLYDE FOR CANADA AND U. S.

LONDON, April 24.—Owing to the strike of agricultural workers in Norfolk a party of 25 farm laborers from that country sailed for Canada today on the steamer Montcalm, which carries over 1,200 settlers.

Ten wireless experts, sent by the British Government sailed on the Montcalm to carry out experiments between Vancouver and Fiji a distance of 6,000 miles.

It is stated that, altogether, fully 5,000 passengers are going to Canada and the United States aboard four liners leaving the Clyde this week-end.

The Salvation Army today signed an agreement with the Duke of Devonshire, Colonial Secretary, giving effect to schemes designed to encourage settlement overseas under Salvation Army auspices. Classes affected are single women, widows with families, boys and orphans.

A second party of boys is sailing for Canada next week. Their successors in the camp here are already training and a fourth party also has been selected.

Commissioner Lamb sails tomorrow for Canada to advance the settlement scheme with the Canadian Government.

KILMUIR NOTES

The warm weather and thaw of the past few days is a welcome change in the weather and farmers are again showing signs of life and are busily preparing for spring work.

Our school is making splendid progress during the past year under the teaching of Miss Alexandra Martin of Heatherdale. The children are fortunate in having such a painstaking teacher to help them in their studies.

The C. E. Society is being regularly attended and interesting and helpful meetings are being held weekly despite the severe winter weather we've been having.

Slight attacks of a sickness said to be the flu has visited some homes here but has not taken itself to other quarters. We trust it will not again butt in where it is not wanted.

We understand that the Heatherdale news reporting office has been removed to Glen William where all news items of interest sent there from now on will receive special attention.

An accident which might have ended more seriously then it did occured at Kilmuir corner a few evenings ago. A horse to which was attached what looked like a sleigh, a young desperado, and a couple of flappers approached from the direction of Montague, going at a terrifec rate of speed and without easing up in the least passed by the crossing and up Mc Donald's hill until it was about two thirds the distance upgrade, when it wheeled around and returned on its mad rush. When about halfway down grade on the return trip the sleigh got caught in a very sharp pitch and the horse parted company therewith, leaving the sleigh and its occupants in a rather demolished and dazed condition. It is hard to say how it happened but it is thought that the steering gear was not operating properly, in fact that it was not attached to the proper part of the outfit at all.

Dan Stewart's Eel of "Heathervale Notes" fame is now forced to take at least second place in history as "Bruce" says he remembers once upon a time that his father caught an eel in Hayden's dam, whose skin when dried was often loaned to Sam McPhee for toll collecting purposes in horsepower threshing days. Sam says that lucky indeed was the farmer whose toll would fill that old eel skin at the customary rate of 1 out of 20.

That the severe and stormy weather of the past winter will long be remembered by many persons is a foregone conclusion, especially so by several of our Kilmuir young sprouts, who, as it has leaked out on different occasions and owing to pressure of circumstances, were obliged to take advantage of the refuge offered by Kilmuir school house, where they obtained relief, perhaps it was owing to the loneliness of the situation in which they found themselves and a severe attack of imagination but at any rate they report going through some of the most sensational and hair-splitting experiences of their lives.

New Canadians Start For Canada

A Busy Scene at the Liverpool Dock.

THE facilities for handling outward bound passengers at the Canadian Pacific dock at Liverpool, England, are as perfect and speedy as any in the world. As will be seen from the picture above of future Canadian citizens boarding the "Montcalm", the travellers pass from the street and railway station levels to waiting rooms on the dock side, and crossing the bridged wharf, board the ship by the saloon deck where they are received and assigned to quarters. Their baggage is handled from below and with despatch. A travelling belt carrier operated by an electric dynamo eliminates the necessity of many noisy and slow moving winch hoists which, when used and not too carefully operated, are the cause of many trunks and boxes being damaged. [The] baggage is carefully loaded and distributed [as] quickly as the passengers are received. [It is] planned to have all the passengers aboard [half] an hour before sailing time, and the gangw[ays are open] for their reception about three hours before [sailing] unless special trains are scheduled to arrive ea[rlier].

As for other dock-side facilities, the Mont[calm com]menced to take on coal and discharge carg[o and] package freight, at six o'clock of the morning [of her] arrival. By 2.45 in the afternoon she had taken [on board 1,700 tons] of coal into her side bunkers, and at the sam[e time] was unloading 1,700 tons of freight, this being [completed] by 7.15 the [sa]me evening.
