THRONE SPEECH

said Mr. Coldwell. Then he replied to Mr. Gardiner's attacks on socialism by saying that prior to the war the Liberal Government had "regimented" the young people into poverty and want. If ever given the chance, the CCF would free the people from that kind of regimentation.

He ended by saying that if members would stop name-calling the business of the House would proceed, but he warned the CCF is "on the offensive", not the "defensive" and would reply to every attack.

No CCF "emissary" ever had visited any national socialist country as Mr. Gardiner had suggested, said Mr. Coldwell. Maj. George H. Williams, former Saskatchewan leader, had gone to Russia, at the request of Saskatchewan farmers, to study farm problems.

The CCF was the most democratically organized party in Canada, if not in the world, Mr. Coldwell continued, and it had been recognized as such when he was invited to sit in at a caucus of the British Labor Party. It was ridiculous to call such people "national socialists."

"A few years ago they called us Communists," he said. "Now Communism is more popular so they call us national socialists."

"We are not provincial isolationists like our friends to the right (New Democracy) and we do not dodge every issue like our friends to the left (Progressive Conservatives)", Mr. Coldwell said, reverting to his party's war record.

The CCF had demanded collective security and condemned the support being given Germany, Italy and Japan by powerful interests. It had denounced Mussolini when others were praising him, "like Premier George Drew who came back from Italy and said he was a wonderful man."

At the time of Munich the Prime Minister had sent his congratulations to Prime Minister Chamberlain. He (Coldwell) had denounced the Munich Pact.

In September, 1939, said Mr. Coldwell, he was afraid "we might once again find ourselves sacrificed to those who were behind the Munich agreement." But when the Chamberlain government was replaced by one partly representative of labor and one which could be trusted after Dunkerque his attitude had changed.

Exchange Continues

Resources Minister Crerar said in reply that if Mr. Coldwell wanted to portray the C.C.F. record prior to the war "as fine and wholesome as he indicates, then he has a big job."

He questioned whether the C.C.F. leader would have favored Canadian participation if Britain and France had gone to war in support of Czecho-Slovakia.

Mr. Coldwell said he had so stated at the time.

Mr. Crerar replied that in that case Mr. Coldwell took an "extraordinary position" when war actually broke out.

"I did not trust this government," said Mr. Coldwell.

Mr. Crerar said that was a "lame reason."

Mr. Coldwell said he voted for participation in war.

Mr. Crerar replied that he had not stood for "effective participation," and added: "Is a great national question like that to be decided by the honorable gentleman by his not liking someone who is in a government or at the head of a government" asked the Minister.

Mr. Coldwell: "I have to decide according to my conscience."

Mr. Crerar: "All I have to say is that my friend has quite an extraordinary conscience."

Mr. Coldwell: "If we are going to talk about consciences, I am not going to take anything of that from my honorable friend."

Other C.C.F. members shouted "Union Government," "Progressive Party," and "broken promises." Mr. Crerar had to pause for quiet before proceeding.

Then he said the C.C.F. had opposed "modest" increases in the defence estimates in 1936, 1937 and 1938 when it was clear the storm clouds were rising. They had supported a goodwill policy.

"The league of nations," said Mr. Coldwell.

Mr. Crerar said Mr. Douglas, in opposing an increase in defence estimates, had asked what potential aggressors they were aimed at and had said "bogeymen were being trotted out by the government."

"I challenge the Minister to read the context," Mr. Douglas interjected. "I ask him to quote the rest of that statement or withdraw. It is tantamount to a complete misrepresentation."

Speaker J.A. Glen said that if Mr. Crerar had quoted incorrectly he might be corrected, but otherwise could continue his speech. He completed his address as the House adjourned for dinner.

OTTAWA, Feb. 10—(CP)—An organization meeting of the national Liberal federation held senior, women's and youth committee meetings this afternoon after some delegates from all provinces met jointly for a morning address by Agriculture Minister Gardiner. The metings are in camera and there was no session tonight.

A federal spokesman said there might be "several minor announcements" after the final session of the two-day meeting tomorrow.

The joint meeting today was under chairmanship of Senator Wishart Robertson of Halifax.

'Du Barry' Is Smash Hit From Every Angle

Lovely girls, lilting Cole Porter hit songs with that "sentimental gentleman," Tommy Dorsey, to swing them out against a background of lavish production numbers, make up the ingredients of "Du Barry Was a Lady," filmed in technicolor and starring Red Skelton, Lucille Ball, and Gene Kelly, now on the screen at the Capitol Theatre.

The plot of this musical extravaganza concerns itself with a checkroom attendant (Red Skelton) in love with the star of the floor show, May Daly (Lucille Ball). Although May loves Alec (Gene Kelly), an empty pocketed entertainer, she is determined to marry only for money. When Red wins the sweepstakes May agrees to marry him. But plans hit a snag when Red accidentally drinks a mickey and dreams he is King Louis XV of France and May his Madame Du Barry. Du Barry proves to be an unsatisfactory mistress because she is in love with a revolutionary leader, the Black Arrow (Kelly).

"Friendship" for Finale

When Red recovers all three have learned their lesson and join hands to sing and dance the hilarious "Friendship" finale.

Bricker Hopes To Lead U. S.; Holds Press Conference

Tells Foreign Press Election In U.S.A. None Of Their Business.

(By C. R. BLACKBURN)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10—(CP)—In a crowded hotel room Governor John William Bricker of Ohio who wants to be Republican President of the United States, today bluntly warned foreign newspapers that the presidential election was "none of their business."

The 50-year-old farm boy Governor, a brisk, genial giant, met about 75 of Washington's top-ranking correspondents, and was given a rather rough ride at times. But apparently he enjoyed it.

His crack at foreign newspapers was in response to a question by a representative of the Anti-British Patterson-McCormick Press.

He was asked if he believed it proper for foreign newspapers to comment on their choice for a United States President, presumably referring to recent editorials favorable to Roosevelt appearing in British and Russian publications.

"We ought to elect our own president over here and it is none of their business," he exclaimed. "We can take care of our own internal affairs without their interference."

A reporter asked Bricker what he thought was the great issue in the United States at the moment. "Winning the war and doing all in our power to win it quickly," he replied.

Asked what should be done that was not being done, he said he thought the war was being conducted exactly as it should be conducted, but by the army and navy heads.

"Don't you give Roosevelt any credit for it?" a reporter asked.

"Oh, yes, I give him all due credit."

"What have you got against Roosevelt," he was asked.

"I am against the whole philosophy of Roosevelt and his new deal, said Bricker. He said this philosophy had interfered with private initiative and brought tremendous debt.

Private enterprise, aided and encouraged by the government, could do more in avoiding employment than public works, said Bricker.

The man nominated at the Republican convention in Chicago next June would be elected President of the United States in November, Bricker declared.

"Why?" asked a reporter.

"Because the republicans in congress and the republican party have a program that the country needs. It calls for economy and sound administration."

Bricker made a good impression on the reporters and it was evident that if he enters the White House the President's bi-weekly press conference will not be lacking in interest.

Red Cross Campaign Organization

The first general meeting of the organization heading this year's campaign for the Canadian Red Cross was held at Red Cross House last evening. It was preparatory to the general annual meeting of the Red Cross Society which takes place this evening at the Charlottetown Hotel.

The general chairman for the campaign Mr. D. J Bonnell reported that it was very pleasing indeed that practically all of the key men who made such a wonderful success of last year's campaign were again available and already setting their sails to trim past records. Having just recently returned from attending the meeting of the National Council of the Red Cross at Toronto he could assure local workers that the National Council feels that the Red Cross has a tremendous year ahead, in view of the accelerating tempo of the war and the greater than ever needs that must surely develop. He was very hopeful that the public in their generous givings will exceed last year's results. He reported that the total cash received from last year's campaign to date was $96,495.81 of which the Charlottetown organization contributed $41,173.03, Queens County outside, $14,503.46, Kings County $10,562.13 and Prince County $30,257.15 with the proportion of uncollected pledges much smaller than anything he had ever experienced.

A slogan for this year's campaign is to be — "The Red Cross Needs for 1944—Blood and Gold Bullets."

The Provincial President, Dr. W. J. MacMillan spoke briefly emphasizing the immensity of the demands which will be made upon the Red Cross organization in the final stages of the war and the perhaps even greater needs to meet the fearful conditions certain to prevail in the conquered countries after the fighting is at an end. Every effort must be made to put this year's total for this Province over the hundred thousand dollar mark. He was satisfied that we could and would.

Heads of various committees reported as to their plans and preparations with various suggestions. These included Capt. N. W. Lowther, chairman of the City organization which will have its headquarters in the Blood Clinic building opposite the City Hall, H. F. MacPhee, Queens County, Committee, M. A. Farmer, treasurer, R. L. Cotton, Publicity, Robert T. Holman, Commando Committee, Mrs. J. A. MacMillan, Women's Committee. Major T. E. MacNutt and J. F. Leightizer.

Interesting Address Heard By Y's Men

Last evening at the Y. M. C. A. Mr. A. V. Ainsworth, manager of the Maritime Electric Co., gave an interesting and instructive address to the Y's Men's Club concerning the mechanism of the human eye and the injuries which would develop through poor lighting conditions, with particular reference to the lack of proper facilities in our city schools.

He stressed the fact that improving of present conditions would prevent unnoticed but serious harm which is now being done to school children due to these defects and showed that the installation of modern and adequate lighting would be worth far more to our children than its moderate cost and urged the endorsement of these improvements by his hearers.

Earl Clark was chairman.

Guests included Messrs. Edwin Estey, Horace McFarlane, Allison McLean of the Summerside Y's Men's Club and E. C. Webb of Cavendish and Capt. Carl Burke.

Big Demand Here For Early Chickens

Mr. F. G. Ward, Dominion Department of Agriculture has received a letter from C. M. McMillan, poultry products inspector for Nova Scotia, Mr. McMillan states that the hatcheries in Nova Scotia are faced with a surplus of Feb. and March hatched chicks. At least bookings, are very light for this period but all hatcheries in Nova Scotia are fully booked for April, May, and early June. The condition on Prince Edward Island is different. The hatcheries here, in most cases, are fully booked for Feb. and March, and will likely be progressively so, until the end of the normal hatching season. The officials are pleased to report the result of one hatchery's first hatching, the hatchability averaging about 60 percent. This is in great contrast to the same time last year, when a similar hatching averaged about 45 percent only. This definite improvement officials attribute in great measure to the fact that flock owners have followed their advice by feeding cod liver oil to their breeding flocks as a means of increasing hatchability.

Native Of P. E. I. Dies In Boston

The death of Mr. Richard O. Jenkins at a hospital in Boston, Mass., on Saturday, February 5, will come as a surprise and a shock to many friends in this Province. He was 73 years old and had resided at Arlington Heights, Mass., for many years.

Mr. Jenkins was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Ephraim Jenkins of Point Pleasant, P. E. I. but had been in the United States for more than 50 years. He was a skilled carpenter and worked for many years in a factory turning out piano cases. Although he had not resided in this Province since he was a young man he renewed his friendships here by visits during summer months for years.

Mr. and Mrs. Jenkins celebrated the 50th anniversary of their wedding on December 13 last. They were married in Boston and resided there since.

Death followed a short illness. He became unwell only a few weeks ago and entered hospital a week before his death to undergo a serious operation from which he failed to rally.

Surviving are his wife, the former Annie MacLean of Peter's Road, P. E. I. and a son and a daughter. The son, Oswald Jenkins lives at Springfield, Mass. The daughter, Mrs. Harold I. Hunt was at her old home when her father passed away but until recently had been in the Southern States doing war work. Her husband is serving with the American Army.

In addition three brothers and two sisters also survive. Two brothers, Parker Jenkins and Elias Jenkins both reside in Boston, Mass., while a third is in the Western United States. The sisters are, Mrs. John Finlay and Mrs. John Lecco, both in Boston.

The funeral took place from Mr. Jenkins' home at 19 Harvard Street, Arlington Heights on Monday afternoon.

Mess Room Chatter

BY LOUIS V. HUNTER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WITH THE R.C.A.F. IN BRITAIN, Feb. 9 —(CP) — The Canadian Red Indian Squadron led by Sqdn. Ldr. Jimmy Lambert of Winnipeg received many congratuatory messages after its feat of destroying seven Nazi aircraft in a single operation in December. One of the latest was a telegram from Air Minister Sir Archibald Sinclair.

"Congratulations to all taking part in the destruction of seven enemy fighters," the message said. "This resounding feat of arms, coupled, as it was with damage to three other enemy fighters, makes a proud record in the annals of your squadron.

FO. J.V.E. Craig of Abbey, Sask., is enjoying an operational rest, but he's piling up flying hours at an accelerated rate as a Transport Command pilot. His ports of call a couple of years ago were high explosives, but now they are Malta, Tunis, Algiers, Fez, Gibralter, Port Lyautey and other Mediterranean centres, and he carries supplies instead of bombs.

His one hope is that some day hasn't seen since mid-summer 1941.

"This transport work has been interesting work- I've done 15 trips," he said. "Once my aircraft looked like a flying nursery I came back from Malta with three mothers and five babies, and one cried quite a bit."

With the winter months being strictly non-conducive to sunning oneself on beaches and such, many R.C.A.F. members in England and Scotland are spending their leaves at various universities in Britain, taking advantage of special one-week courses for service people.

Flt. Lt. Herb. Bell of Minnedosa, Man., former professor of English at a Manitoba college and now an administrative officer with the City of Toronto Mustang Squadron, has just returned after being a "Canadian at Oxford" for a week, and considers it seven days well spent.

The crew of a Canadian Halifax bomber turned the tables on a Nazi night fighter. Usually it is the fighter that attacks the bomber - but NOT so this time.

The bomber had dropped its cookies on Berlin when the rear gunner, Sgt. R.E. Hazall of Windsor, Ont., spotted a night fighter just below the bomber on the fringe of the target. "To make sure he wouldn't give us any trouble we went down after him," said WO2. W.E. Woodward of (45 Olmstead St.) Ottawa, the pilot. "The rear gunner gave him a burst as we closed in, but apparently he had spotted us and broke away into the clouds and we didn't see him again."

In the aircraft with them were PO. J. Lyng (4627 des Erables St.), Montreal, bomb aimer; PO. L. L. Anderson, D F M. (506 Balmoral St.), Winnipeg, wireless operator; Sgt. D Harrison (45 Van Brugh Ave.), Scarborough Ont. flight engineer; Sgt. A.L. Gabel, Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., mid-upper gunner; and PO. W.R. Knowlton, Amherst, N.S., navigator.
