War Horse Lives As Seely's Book Proclaims Deeds

BATTLE HONORS FOR OLD FRIEND OF CANADIAN CAVALRY RECALLED BY HIS MASTER-COMPANION OF MANY YEARS IN WAR AND PEACE

LONDON, Nov. 9.—(GP)—Carefully guarded from every equine trial and affliction Lord Mottistone's war horse Warrior spends his declining years in peace and plenty while his deeds in battle are immortalized by his owner and friend of 36 years in a recently published book.

Warrior was well known by Canadian cavalrymen during the war. His master and biographer, then Major-General John Seely, commanded the Canadian Cavalry Brigade for a long period. Warrior was a horse of parts and became a popular figure in the Canadian lines, evidently his achievements are still a matter of great pride to the distinguished and popular "Jack" Seely who rode him in war and in peace for more than an average horse's lifetime.

When the War ended Warrior found himself involved in victory marches. "How well I remember galloping along the grass in Hyde Park to the place where my Canadian cavalrymen were waiting," the author goes on. "A shout went up: 'Here's the War!' The men crowded round him to pat him, and make much of him. He knew many of them. He could greet some horses too who had survived the War with him, and most famous of them, Cass' General Archie Macdonnell's famous horse, who like himself, had served most of the four years and escaped alive. I had a feeling as I rode on Warrior through the streets of London that my horse was rather bored by the whole business."

Two Graves Mark Lost Mine Hopes
