Drugs Gain Hold On British Folk

(Canadian Press) LONDON, July 16—A warning that Britain was becoming a nation of drug-takers was given at the annual meeting of the British Dental Association.

Col. H. F. Humphreys, of Hampton-in-Arden, said the habit of private drug-taking in England was very much on the increase. People had been told if they would take this or that drug they would feel very much better than they ever before...

Dr. R. N. Craig of Exeter, said one reason for the increase in private drug-taking was the ease with which drugs could be obtained. "The Dangerous Drugs Act completely fails in some respects," he said. He named a particular drug, which he described as "an extraordinarily powerful addiction," which could be obtained over the counter just like petrol without any restriction whatever.

Dr. H. T. Roper-Hall of Birmingham, said that much of the fear and pain associated with dental surgery could be alleviated by the proper use of drugs, but it was large to remember not to give too large doses as they might interfere with the occupation of the patient. Especially was that the case with patients who drove their own cars when it was remembered that one of the charges now possible was driving a car while under the influence of drugs.

Plan Improving British Health By Recreations

(By Thomas T. Champion, Canadian Press Staff Writer) LONDON, July 16—Eminent medical men and representatives of practically every youth organization in the country are to serve on the Central Council of Recreative Physical Training, which has been formed in an effort to make a "fitter Britain."

The King and Queen have consented to give their patronage. Viscount Astor is president, and the Board of Education are to cooperate closely with the council. Physical training organizers, sports leaders and other connected with voluntary organizations in all parts of the country have been approached regarding the survey. It will be necessary to complete this in a very short time as it is intended with the data in hand to assist the trustees of the King George's Jubilee trust by submitting definite proposals for the co-ordination and development of recreative physical activities of young people of post-school age.

The object of the Central Council is to help to improve the physical and mental health of the community through the development of facilities for recreative physical activities. In February the British Medical Association set up a committee under the presidency of Dr. E. Kaye Le Fleming, to inquire into the physical development of the nation. The committee is not expected to report until early next year.

W.M.S Rally At Eldon

On July 11th Queens County Women's Missionary Society Rally took place in Eldon United Church. The afternoon session opened at 3.15 when Mrs. N. S. Morrison, Pinette, welcomed the delegates with a few well-chosen words and called on Mrs. D. H. Maser, Flat River, to preside. After singing Hymn 252, Psalm 93 was read followed by prayer by Mrs. J. N. Gillis, Point Prim. The Chatham theme song, "This is My Father's World," was then sung.

Mrs. Hazen Howard of Cornwall thanked the ladies for their kind welcome and presented the Question Box to the meeting. The reports of the various Presbyterial officers were then given and a most complete and edifying report of the Beach Conference at Chatham was given by Mrs. R. E. Mutch, Charlottetown.

Following the Auxiliary reports, Mrs. Hazen Howard described the Kingdom of God poster, which was prominently displayed. The Question Box was opened and showed evidence of keen interest in W. M. S. work on the part of the members, and both questions and answers proved very beneficial.

After the collection and roll call of auxiliaries, the meeting closed with the singing of hymn 249. The ladies of the church entertained the visiting delegates to a much enjoyed tea on the grounds, and a social time was spent together until the evening meeting at 8 o'clock.

Mrs. R. E. Mutch presided and opened the meeting with a devotion consisting of the singing of hymn 500, "Take Time to be Holy," and reading psalm 90. Mrs. Mutch gave a beautiful reading on the psalm which likened our lives to four Way Stations: the Station of the Morning Watch, the Station of Shadows, the Station of the Evening Rest, the Station of the Dawn.

Dr. Zella Clark, in Indian dress, gave a most enlightening talk on her work in India, and all felt the need of greater missionary efforts. During the evening solos were beautifully rendered by Mrs. Murchison, Mrs. West and Mrs. Weir that were much appreciated.

Mrs. Mutch in her efficient manner thanked all those who assisted her in making a success, and after singing hymn 256 Rev. Mr. Weir of Vernon pronounced the benediction (Patriot please copy)

CRITICS DECLARE ENGLAND'S PLAY LACKS VIRILITY

(By The Canadian Press) LONDON, July 16—South Africa's first cricket test victory in England has resulted in a barrage of criticism being levelled at the representatives of the mother country for their failure to measure up to the high standards of the youthful tourists.

When Herbert Wade and his South African colleagues landed in this country in April it was said the team was better equipped than any of the sides that had preceded it. His strength was said to lie in his bowling and fielding ability while a number of the players had gained good reputations as batsmen.

The truth of the assertions made on behalf of the tourists has been proved many times in the matches against first class county teams. Of 15 matches played in May and June 10 resulted in victories for the Springboks and five were drawn.

Although England had the better of the play in the drawn opening test at Nottingham lack of pep in its batting drew the fire of the critics. The team was at the wicket all day but could not claim a "wicket" was "dead easy" and a little more devil on the part of such famous bats as R. E. S. Wyatt, Herbert Sutcliffe and Walter Hammond would have resulted in a much larger score. One critic referred to the wicket on the opening day as one of "celestial saucers."

A bowler's turf prevailed when South Africa batted and although dismissed for 220 the Springboks played superb defensive cricket which evoked general admiration. But their dismissal was not brought about by Hedley Verity and R. W. V. Robins, England's chief exponents of spin bowling. Morris Nichols did the damage. It was ironical that South Africa should incur a pitch calculated to suit such bowlers "down to the ground," only to fall to honest, straight balls sent down like lightning by the Essex star.

The Springboks' victory last week was not unexpected in the light of the experiences of the initial test. England made little change in its batting strength but Robins and William Bowes were dropped from the bowling staff. They were replaced by Tom Milne and James Langridge.

Once again the English batsmen showed their inability to cope successfully with the elusive spinners. Xenophon Balaskas, young Greek who went to Australia to take lessons from Charlie Grinnett, prince of slow bowlers, tied up the cream of England's batsmen. He finished the game with nine wickets in his bag at a cost of 103 runs and it was his first test match too.

There was little wrong with the wicket in the English first innings but Wyatt was the only player who seemed at ease against "E. B." England batted a second time on a wicket that suited Balaskas and A. B. C. Langton, medium pace spin bowler, and although Wyatt and company adopted devious methods to save the game, the team was dismissed for 151 runs.

Bruce Mitchell gave an object lesson in defensive play. Opening the South African second innings he hit out sharply but when his colleagues failed, he settled down to the stone-walling for which he is noted. His 164 not out was a splendid effort.

On their showing in the two tests the Springboks have justified the faith placed in them in South Africa. The selection of the teams to represent England in the next three tests will cause the English selectors no little worry.

REVIEW OF FLEET BY THE KING

(C. P. by Guardian's Special Wire) LONDON, July 16—A new poem entitled "Review of the Fleet by the King," was published today by Rudyard Kipling, the distinguished poet and author, now in his 70th year.

The poem is as follows: After his realms and states were moved To bear their hearts to the King they loved Tendering themselves in homage and devotion, The tide-wave up the channel spoke To all those eager exultant folk: Hear now what man has given you by the ocean.

There was no thought of orb or crown When the single wooden chest went down To the steering flat and the careless gunroom hailed him To learn by ancient and bitter use How neither favor nor excuse Nor aught have his sheer self defence availed him.

There was no talk of birth or rank By the slung hammock or scrubbed plank In the steel-grated prisons where I cast him blind. But niggard hogs and a narrow space For rest—and the named light on his face— While the ship's traffick flowed unceasing past him.

Thus I schooled him to go and come To speak at the word—at sign be dumb. To stand to his task, not seeking others to aid him. To share in honors what prize might fall For the task accomplished and—over all— To swallow rebuke in silence. Thus I made him.

I loosened every mood of the deep On him, a child and stork for sleep Through the long watches that no time can measure When he drove him deafened and choked and blind. At the wave tops, cut and spun by the wind Lashing him face and eyes with my displeasure.

I opened him all the guile of the seas— Their sullen swift-sprung treachery To be fought or forestalled or dared or dismissed with laughter. I showed him worth by folly concealed And the flaw in the soul that a chance revealed (Lessons remembered—to bear fruit thereafter).

I dealt him power beneath his hand and proof with his first command. Himself alone and no man to gainsay him, On him the end, the means and the word And the harsher judgment if he erred And—outboard—ocean waiting to betray him.

Wherefore when he came to be crowned Strength in duty heid him bound So that no power misled nor ease ensnared him. Who had spared himself no more than his seas had spared him.

After his heges in all his lands Had laid their heads between his hands And his ships thundered service and devotion The tide wave ranging the planet spoke On all our foreshores as it broke: "Know now what man I gave you—I, the ocean."

SPEED OF SHORT WAVE RADIO SIGNALS VARIES

PARIS, July 16—Short wave radio signals travel faster in some directions than in others, the International Astronomical Union meeting here recently was told.

Passage of the short waves through the aurora borealis zone was given as the probable cause of the variation of speeds by scientists of the Paris International Time Bureau, which reported the phenomenon.

They said the Bureau had discovered that signals sent from Paris to Saigon, French Indo-China, travelled at speeds ranging between 290,000 and 285,000 kilometers per second, while those from Paris to Buenos Aires did no more than 280,000 kilometers per second. In addition to the probable effects of the aurora borealis zone, the astronomers were told, the waves are affected in proportion to their proximity to magnetic poles.

The report expressed its deep regret and sense of loss in the death of Mrs. W. M. S. of the eastern division.

Evangelistic Lecture At The Forum

Another inspiring address was delivered last evening by Evangelist F. W. Johnston in the Forum where the prophetic Conference has been held for the past month. He opened his remarks by referring to a letter which he said was written by Christ and discovered on a mountain in Arabia. The people to whom this letter was written said Mr. Johnson was to be the justiciars of this sacred piece of literature and received instructions from Christ to deliver it to the world. It consisted of ten small paragraphs and since the ancient writings were at that time written on stone tablets & therefore required brevity yet comprehensiveness in
