

Woman's Realm / Social and Personal / Fashions / Literature

THE HOLY TERROR!

Story of a World Dictator

By H. C. WELLS
Copyright, 1938, by The North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.

The doctor had hoped the boy wouldn't be disturbed in that psychological work of his, but the rising tide had got him. The tide of disaster was coming in faster than they had thought.

They had discussed this breakdown towards war and disorder. Dick had been very strong on what was it—the idea of "scavenging." All this present disorder in the world, he had said, was the breakdown and clearing away of outworn creeds, dynasties, classes, nationalisms, bad industrial organizations, bad monetary and financial methods. Possibly Oh! Probably—! was so. But what had Dick to put in the place of all this debris which the scavengers had taken it away? There was no doubt we were going to have the ruffians, the scavengers, no doubt at all now, all over the world they were busy, henas on the battlefield, wolves following the sheep, but who were these other fellows, where were these other fellows Dick had talked about, who were going to take hold of things and set up the great modern scientific world-state of our dreams and hopes? That was where Dick had become mystical.

What was it he had said? Something about a lot of tacit fellows, with a common clear-headedness. Secret, natural aristocrats—something like that. Yes, he had the words now, a World Civil Service, based—that was it—a World Civil Service based on a World Public Opinion.

"But my dear Dick," said the doctor, addressing his absent son aloud, "how the devil do you propose to get a World Civil Service based on a World Opinion when all the good school-masters and mistresses have been beaten to death, when all the universities, have been turned inside out and filled with bullies and subservient professors scared out of their wits? When all intellectual revival now, much less a great educational reconstruction, and no effective World Public Opinion anywhere. That World Civil Service was a dream."

"Pessimism of old age?" asked the doctor.

"Isn't it so?"

Enough of this thinking! Who had enough knowledge for prophesy? No one. We had to take the blows as they came. Maybe it wasn't going to be as bad as it looked. Not so bad as all that. Maybe he was missing some hopeful possibility.

"And now for the morning's dictators!" he sighed.

He picked up a newspaper and saw the Fight for the Purple House, Political Monkey—Lord Horatio or Rud Whitlow.

"Whitlow?" he repeated. "Now where have I heard that name before? Rud Whitlow?"

A small recalcitrant white-faced boy appeared scowling before him. "Oh! he had gone up to Camford! On some scholarship. There had been talk of speeches he had made."

"That infernal little beast!"

CHAPTER XIV
MAKING OF A REVOLUTIONARY

The two years that followed his encounter with Chiffan had been crowded with experience for Rud. He had come up again to Camford with a greatly enhanced self-confidence. Chiffan had inflated and confirmed and strengthened his enormous, certain slowness in making personal contacts had diminished. He began to expect things from people, to demand them and get

Night Coughs

Terribly wearing on the system is the cough that comes on at night and prevents sleep.

Sometimes it is the constant cough, cough that will not be quieted. Sometimes it is a choked-up, stuffed-up feeling that makes breathing difficult.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is the remedy you need to give you relief, for the reason that this preparation contains the healing virtues of the Norway pine tree with which is combined wild cherry bark, and the soothing, healing and expectorant properties of other excellent balsams, herbs and oils.

The T. Milburn Co., Ltd., Toronto, Ont.

To-Day's Popular Design

By Carol Jones

DOG DESIGNS
NO. 720

Miss Jones receives at least 200 votes for each design before it is accepted for this column. Send us your votes. We print all the popular designs.

Dear Readers: Here are two fine designs that I know will find immediate favor in any household. There is a friendly "realness" about them that is going to appeal particularly to the masculine taste, so if you are looking for a couple of cushions for the den or recreation room, here is just the thing. Personally, I would like to have them in every room in the house. Besides the two large designs shown, the pattern also includes eight small dogs that would be ideas for matching seat ends to your cushions.

The pattern includes transfer sheet of designs together with material requirements, stitch details, color suggestions, and instructions for embroidering.

Send 20 cents, coins preferred.

Pattern Order Form—To be used when ordering Patterns and Votings for POPULAR DESIGNS.

I suggest the following as a POPULAR DESIGN

To the Charlottetown Guardian
Needlework Dept.
NO. 720

Name _____
Street Address _____
City _____ State _____

All reproduction rights to this Design reserved.

A Morning Smile

Was She Mad?

A lady who felt indisposed after attending a Society function, called her chauffeur to drive to her doctor's place. The doctor saw her at once, diagnosed her case rapidly, and gave prompt advice. "Drive straight home, get dressed, and go to bed."

Don't Miss This

Mrs. O'Jawish—Well, Mrs. Murphy, I'm glad to see you. How did you like your trip abroad this summer?

Mrs. Murphy—Well, I liked Paris, London and Rome, but the best part of the whole thing was the trip over. Don't miss that, whatever you do, if you ever go to Europe.

His revolutionary conviction increased. He knew the world was in a state of revolution and inevitably he had to play a part in it. He talked now to fellow undergraduates and even to young doctors, very much as Chiffan had talked to him. He took a first class in his stride though he did not get a fellowship. Then for a while he felt his progress checked.

He came down, he found himself a home for a time without a job and the vaguest of plans. He got into a rooming house, a college and took mean lodgings in a back street in Bloomsbury. His associates were few, but he found less than in his scholarship days, and London poverty is more obvious and galling than at Camford. He added to his income by writing a book for a publisher fortunately affected by the series mania, and by doing a little reviewing of sociological and historical books. For the better part of a year his political prospects ran along cramped, unpromising lines.

But nevertheless he had supporters, not a few, and a sense of reality about his activities. At first he had been disposed to conceal Chiffan from Camford; he did not want Camford to know that he had a certain Chiffan; then he felt the need of him and got him to come up for a week-end of talk with the new associates. Chiffan had formed a discussion circle and Chiffan came as their common guest. He did much to confirm and develop their impression of a certain large, resting, and confident Rud's imagination, his capacity for political enterprise and the political effectiveness of his storms of passion.

Now after a phase of loneliness, doubt and depression in Bloomsbury, Rud found his friends turning up in a certain large, resting, and confident Camford conversations with him. One of his most steadfast supporters was a rich young man named Steenhold. Steenhold was a member of the House and he was in his middle twenties. He had come up to Camford expressly to study, but he had not a degree; he did not need a degree, but he wanted to learn; he wanted to see what Camford had for him. He wore strange clothes, he drank excessively and then took to living on carrots and water, he tried poetry or a mystic, instead of the usual life of a painter's outfit, he tried on a purple shirt but stuck at Jew-baiting. He was drawn to Rud, and in his own while, he was a member of the Communist Party for a fortnight, and then he decided that what Camford had for him was not in the end, he decided to be Rud's disciple with a quite unprecedented steadfastness. He liked in particular the certain large, resting, and confident movement, in Britain and America. He displayed a strange prophetic insight. "Rud's real," he said. "Rud's real."

He established himself in two large flats in Camborne Square just out of the Eaton Road. In this upper floor he lived in the lower one, he set up a sort of headquarters for Rud and such Rudites as were gathering round him. He dissected bread, which they cut for themselves, cheese, carrots, plentiful carrots, bananas, bread, and beer. The cider and beer were in cans, and there were blue chequered earthenware mugs, but no plates. The floor of this lower flat was covered with carp carpet, bath-room and kitchen included, and the walls of its four rooms were adorned with a disorderly collection of election posters, caricatures and very modern pictures with a political bias. There were chairs, forms, a settee or so, two sofas, five or six folding beds, a spinet and several tables bearing piles of old newspapers and warmth was supplied by electric radiators and light from cornice lights and casually placed reading lamps.

A queer miscellany of people drifted into his place. It had points of resemblance to the crowd at the summer school, but there was a greater reality about it. There was a sprinkling of young scientific workers, there were rising and ambitious artists, there were unusual-looking young women who were models, there were incidentally bright and excessively usual-looking American girls, some rather encumbered with disconcerting mothers, there were journalists, the secretaries of one or two politicians and various peculiar friends of Steenhold's too diverse and irrelevant to describe. There were fewer school teachers and pairing arrangements played but a minor role in the interests of the company. Here Rud would sit in a corner and talk and improve his talking powers. The political atmosphere was much more various than the unchallenged, uncontrolled progressivism of the summer school, and he learnt to parry and

How to Keep Wife in Love

Dorothy Dix

Study Moods and Tenses

Learn to Say the Right Things the Right Way; Don't Let Your Appearance Become Slovenly and Don't Drop the Love-making of Courtship Days

If you want your wife to stay in love with you, and believe me it is money in your pocket and peace in our life to keep her thinking that she married Prince Charming—take these tips:

First. Don't allow our own stupidity and laziness and excuse your blunders by saying that you don't enjoy looking at a woman in a soiled wrapper and that no man can tell before hand which way the cat is going to jump.

Study your wife until you know all of her moods and tenses. Fry into her mental processes until you find the key that works her. No time is better spent by a husband than in getting his wife's number. For it is never what a husband does or says that matters to his wife. It is the way he says or does it that lets him in for tears and reproaches, or the glad hand.

Second. Keep yourself easy on your wife's eyes. Don't think that marriage gives you the right to cut out shaving and go around looking like something the cat brought in and that ought to be buried. If you don't enjoy looking at a woman in a soiled wrapper and that no man can tell before hand which way the cat is going to jump.

Third. Don't cut out the love-making of courtship days. And great will be your reward if you do so, for you can stop a wife's fault-finding with a kiss, and with a kiss shut her eyes so tightly that she will be blind to all of your shortcomings.

Fourth. Use the salt-spreader instead of the hammer in dealing with your wife. No husband can drive his wife an inch, but he can jolly her into going wherever he wishes her to go. Criticism acts on a woman like a mordant does on a dye. It sets her in her opinions and ways.

So, if you want your wife to be a good housekeeper, don't fling her biscuit in her face and ask if she has a Government contract for making cannon balls, or tell her that her coffee has enough grounds in it for a divorce. Just mildly remark that the bread and the coffee are no quite up to her usual standard, and she will break her neck to live up to her reputation. If you want her to be economical, praise her thrift. If you want her to be a good mother, tell her how beautiful she looks when she wears that Mona Lisa smile and she will be glad to see Jack Robinson lest she break it up. Soft soap liberally applied will go further toward keeping a wife happy and contented and believing she drew the lot for her husband to possess all the cardinal virtues.

Fifth. Chum up with your wife. Little as you may expect it, your wife married you to get a companion. She wanted a steady date. Somebody who would like to do the things she liked to do, who enjoyed the things she enjoyed. Somebody to play around with. The bread and the coffee are no quite up to her usual standard, and she will break her neck to live up to her reputation. If you want her to be economical, praise her thrift. If you want her to be a good mother, tell her how beautiful she looks when she wears that Mona Lisa smile and she will be glad to see Jack Robinson lest she break it up. Soft soap liberally applied will go further toward keeping a wife happy and contented and believing she drew the lot for her husband to possess all the cardinal virtues.

Sixth. Use the salt-spreader instead of the hammer in dealing with your wife. No husband can drive his wife an inch, but he can jolly her into going wherever he wishes her to go. Criticism acts on a woman like a mordant does on a dye. It sets her in her opinions and ways.

So, if you want your wife to be a good housekeeper, don't fling her biscuit in her face and ask if she has a Government contract for making cannon balls, or tell her that her coffee has enough grounds in it for a divorce. Just mildly remark that the bread and the coffee are no quite up to her usual standard, and she will break her neck to live up to her reputation. If you want her to be economical, praise her thrift. If you want her to be a good mother, tell her how beautiful she looks when she wears that Mona Lisa smile and she will be glad to see Jack Robinson lest she break it up. Soft soap liberally applied will go further toward keeping a wife happy and contented and believing she drew the lot for her husband to possess all the cardinal virtues.

Household Scrapbook

(By ROBERTA LEE)

Removing Auto Grease

Automobile grease stains can be removed from silks and fabrics, which cannot be washed, as follows: Rub the stain with powdered magnesia and rub thoroughly into the fabric, allowing it to remain for two or three days. Then brush out. Any clinging powder may be removed with a soft cloth.

Basting Threads

Before pulling the basting threads out of material, cut the threads very few times. This will avoid leaving holes in the material.

Pie Crust

Don't forget that too much water in the pie crust will make it tough and hard, and that too little flour causes the crust to break too easily.

How Can I??

(By ANNE ASHLEY)

Q. How can I remove the discoloration on the inside of a bottle?

A. Fill the bottle nearly full with buttermilk and potato parings, letting it stand for several hours. Then empty, and rinse thoroughly with clean hot water.

Q. How can I dry damp flour?

A. Sift it several times in front of the open door of a hot oven. The flour should be cooled before using it, or returning it to the container.

Q. How can I cause blue fabrics to hold their color much longer?

A. Soak them in a solution of one tablespoon of salt to one quart of water.

Q. Where should the attendants of the bride assemble to go to the church?

A. They should be at the home of the bride at least an hour before the ceremony is to take place.

Q. Should a boy of twelve or fifteen lift his hat when he meets a man of fifty on the street?

A. Yes; a well-trained boy will do so.

Q. What would be the proper salutation in a letter to a priest?

A. Dear Reverend Father:

Modern Etiquette

(By ROBERTA LEE)

Q. Where should the attendants of the bride assemble to go to the church?

A. They should be at the home of the bride at least an hour before the ceremony is to take place.

THE COOK'S CORNER.

ORANGE LEMON PIE

1 1/2 cups water
1 cup sugar
3 tablespoons cornstarch
1-2 teaspoon salt
1 lemon juice and grated rind
1 orange juice and grated rind
2 egg yolks
2 tablespoons butter

Method: Heat the water to the boiling point, then add the sugar, cornstarch and salt, sifted together. Add the lemon and orange juice and grated rind and cook until the mixture is thick. Add the well beaten egg yolks and cook for about 2 minutes longer.

Remove from the fire and add the butter. Cool, then pour into a wellbaked pie shell and cover with a meringue made of the 2 egg whites beaten stiff with 1 tablespoon sugar. Flavor with 1 teaspoon lemon juice and brown in a slow oven for about 15 minutes.

Don't try to cook a cornstarch filling to which you have added lemon or orange juice too long after adding the juice, or it will go thin and then no amount of cooking will thicken it again. Let the cornstarch cook for a while before you add the fruit juice, then cook only a few minutes longer.

If you get tired eternally rolling out pie crust if you can't always be certain of the results, try your next one with a graham wafer crust. You can't go wrong, and it's a pleasing change. The little spice in the crust makes it especially nice with the chocolate filling.

CARROT PIE

1 cup carrots
1-2 teaspoon cinnamon
2 eggs
2-3 cup brown sugar
1-2 teaspoon ginger
1-2 cup currants
1 cup milk

Method: Cook the carrots in slightly salted water and when they are tender, put them through the fine blade of the food grinder. Add the brown sugar, beaten eggs and spices.

I like to add the currants before I add them; it makes them plumper, but be sure to drain them well. Add these and the milk and mix well. Turn into a pan lined with pastry dough and bake in a hot 425 deg. F. oven for about 10 to 15 minutes. Then reduce the heat to 350 deg. F. and continue to bake until the filling is set. It takes from 45 to 50 minutes in all. Test with a silver knife as you would for custard before removing from the oven.

If you like lemon pie, try this one which uses both lemon and orange. It's the nicest lemon pie I ever tasted.

Charm Never Fails to Win Admiration

Keep the bowl of cut flowers out of a draught; it will cause them to wilt more quickly than when protected from the strong air.

2154

SMALL-POUR LADIES

Here's an exciting little Christmas gift apron and accessories... and all this excitement for a mere trifle... to stretch your budget! Cut this one-piece apron out of bright monotone cotton as aqua, sunny-yellow, purple, lilac, rose, royal blue, etc. It may have a straight or pointed lower edge. Sew the straps to the shoulders that by the way, cross in suspenders at the back and prevent slipping of the shoulders... then the sash lies to the apron that snug it to the figure at the waist. Now the apron is ready for ric rac or bias binds that finish the entire edge... for the pear or apple pockets of ray fabric or cotton print. Let me tell you a secret, use the pocket pattern for pot holders to match. Apple and pear appliques are also included for tea towels... To complete the kitchen ensemble. You'll want to sew half dozen or more... some for yourself.

Style No. 2154 is designed for sizes small, medium and large. The medium size requires 1 1/2 yards of 30-inch material with 1-4 yard of 35-inch printed and 1-8 yard of 35 inch dark contrasting and 8 1-2 yards braid.

Send fifteen cents (15) in stamps or coin (coin preferred) wrap coin carefully, address to Charlotteville, Virginia, Dept. 2154.

Style No. 2154 Size ...

Name _____
Street Address _____
City _____ Province _____

The Housewife

- AND -

Her Activities

CHRISTMAS

A million candles softly gleam again
And people bearing gifts pass to and fro,
For golden echoes of the long ago
Are wafting, "Peace on earth, goodwill to men"—
The selfsame anthem angels chanted when
The Holy Babe was born; when heavenly "O'w
Shone round the troubled shepherds who bowed low
And on that far-off hillside worshipped then.

With holly here and greetings kind and gay,
All in the sunset season of the year,
While little children play their winsome part,
The joy-bells bring another
Christmas day
And age-old carols of The Christ-
Child dear
Etch loveliness on every listening heart.

—AMY BISSETT ENGLAND

Household Necessity

The bride may feel she has all the cleaning implements she needs when she has a vacuum cleaner, but she will find a carpet sweeper must be on hand for the time between vacuum cleaning. These spilled crumbs from each meal and the tiny pieces carried in one's shoe can be whisked up in this practical cleaner in no time at all with no drastic action on the rugs.

More Shelf Space

If your bath room is very small and your medicine chest so shabby that it is of little use, buy one of the little cabinets that are built to place on top of the toilet tank. They are surprisingly roomy and take up no extra space in the small bath room.

Muscadine—a very deep purple—and Schiaparelli's shocking pink—are two very new colors which are being used together.

FASHION FLASHES

In full garments, wastelength slim but not fitted bolero look newest, done in black Persian and more occasions, black wool dresses. Similar shapes are seen in mink. Most are collarless or with very small shawl or hand neckline, and simple sleeves, wrist or bracelet length.

Fox or skunk combined with felt or fabric and the fur used so that it fits forward over the forehead are already well established in millinery fashion.

Silver fox wraps are still numerous. Many muffs are predicted for later on.

SPARKLING EVENING DRESS

Evening fashions are all agleam this winter. Your upwrest curls may be adorned with stars and circles or diamonds, or sprayed with silver or gold. Or you can purchase a Juliet cap of any conceivable shade of sequin.

New materials for formal occasions are finished with a dull shine and embellished with shoulder clusters, brooches, buckles, which seem chiefly to be bunches of flowers or fruit wrought in gold and shown to advantage against a background of glassy blue or green.

Frocks can have stars sewn on to the material itself, and capes of sequin are worn with sparkling bags and slippers.

ENCOURAGE CHILD TO DO FAVORS

The majority of parents are inclined to warn their children not to be easy marks. While this is true, and we have to champion them sometimes, and show them how to stand up for their fair rights, we should not destroy their willingness to be generous.

Generosity is cultivated by generosity—allowing the natural ten-

TIMELY TIPS

- FOR THE -

HOME SEWER

What a honey I've drawn for this date! I think Jerry. "Snappy dresser and, oh boy how comfortable she makes a fellow feel!" Constance knows the secret of a winning personality—making those about you appear witty, handsome, good-natured. "How clever of you," she says—and means it—"to guess that I adore gardenias for my hair!" Nothing shows your poise like speaking well of others. Remember, too, that charm begins at home. You can't put it on and off like a party dress. In taking Grandfather for that drive, thanking Mother for the telephone message, you're laying the foundation for a charming, many-sided personality.

To subdue unattractive traits and make the most of desirable ones, read our 32-page booklet by a famous psychologist. Gives personality chart, hints on developing vibrant charm.

Send 20c in coins for your copy of Developing Your Personality to the Guardian Home Service, Address. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

Name _____
Street Address _____
City _____ Province _____

TILLIE THE TOILER — A PRESENT FOR THE BOSS.

HERE'S ONE LITTLE TITTERBUG TOY I SAVED FOR YOU, TILLIE

THANKS, ANDY. NOW I HAVE TO HURRY BACK TO WORK

CAN I HELP YOU WRAP YOUR PACKAGES, TILLIE?

THANKS, MAC, I'M ALMOST FINISHED NOW

HERE'S A LITTLE PRESENT FOR YOU, MR. SIPPKINS

WELL, THAT'S NICE OF YOU TO THINK OF ME, TILLIE... THANKS

OH, I SEE THERE'S A STRING TO THIS GIFT, BUT IN THIS CASE IT'S A RIBBON

By Westover