LONDON, Nov. 28 (CP)—Some London restaurants, seeking to recapture their chic pre-war clientele, inline equivalent, but their aspirants have put the stamp of approval on white ties and tails and the fashions are more easily expressed than fulfilled.

Continental Influence

There is a look about these dresses that suggests Paris, but they are all made in England. Dressmakers from Paris and Vienna have been working in London since the war and have had their influence on London designers.

Montague and Vicinity

About forty service men and women, each accompanied by a friend attended a banquet in their honor which was held in the Legion Hall, Saturday evening, November 17th, Mayor R. G. MacDonald was Master of Ceremonies. This was the second banquet held for service personnel, under the auspices of the Women's Institute, the first having been held in August.

Mrs. Wm. Garrick was hostess to the members of the W.M.S. of the Presbyterian Church, last week. The president, Mrs. James Currie, presided. During the devotional period she was assisted by Mrs. A. C. MacKay and Mrs. Emery MacNeill.

The many friends of Mrs. Ed. Ward Kerr will be pleased to learn that she is convalescing satisfactorily at the home of her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Nelson, Mrs. Kerr underwent a serious operation in the Kings County Hospital last month.

DONAHUE — FLOOD NUPTIALS

One of three, pretty Autumn weddings solemnized in St. Joseph's Church, Kelly's Cross, on November 7th, was that of Mercedes Anne, daughter of Mr and Mrs. James D. Flood of South Melville, when she was united in the holy bonds to Harold Leo Donahue, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Donahue of Cornwall.

The ceremony was performed and Nuptial Mass, celebrated by Rev. Eugene L. Murray of Summerside, cousin of the bride.

She looked winsome in a floor length gown of white silk jersey in long tulle effect, with sweet-heart neckline, her finger tip veil arranged in bridal cap style, and carried a bouquet of American Beauty Roses and maiden hair fern, with long streamers of white satin.

Her only ornament was a string of pearls, the gift of the groom. She was attended by her sister Miss Sylvia, who also looked lovely in a gown of dusty rose sheer with matching veil, and carrying a bouquet of pink and white gardenias and maiden hair fern, with white maline streamers.

The groom's gift to the bride was a beautiful gold rosary, and to the groomsmen, a gold tie set.

During the ceremony and Mass following, Mrs. Frank Murray of Charlottetown, aunt of the bride, presided at the organ, and appropriate hymns were sung by her uncle, Frank J. Flood.

The church was pleasantly crowded with relatives, friends and neighbours of all the contracting parties.

After signing the register, and receiving happy felicitations of all present, the bridal party proceeded to the brides home in South Melville where a reception was held and a bountiful wedding breakfast served to over seventy guests, comprising near neighbors and intimate relatives of both parties. The table was centered by a beautifully decorated three tiered wedding cake topped by a white horseshoe, bearing the inscription of "Good Luck," and from which was suspended a white wedding bell.

The color scheme of both living and dining rooms was pink and white, while a cluster of white wedding bells hung over the bride's table.

Father Murray was among those present and at the conclusion, proposed the toast to the happy couple, in a few well chosen remarks.

Those assisting in serving were: Mrs. Emmett McQuaid, Misses Mary Monaghan, Della McLaughlin, Florence and Ursula Malone, Margaret and Marcella Donahue, while Mrs. Peter Greenan, Mrs. Frank Bradley, Mrs. Emmett Gorman and Miss Mary Trainor replenished.

Several happy hours were whiled away in dancing, by young and old, music being furnished by Francis Doyle, of North River and Blanche Murray of Tyrone.

Musical selections in the living-room were songs by Mrs. Frank Murray, Mrs. James Carragher of Charlottetown, and Mrs. Thomas McKenna of Vernon, the groom's aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Gorman and Miss Mary McKenna also sang pleasing selections.

In the evening the happy couple left on a honeymoon trip through the Maritimes, and for travelling the bride wore a fuchsia wool dress with black trimming, black coat with silver fox collar and fuchsia hat trimmed with black sequins.

On return they will reside in Cornwall where the groom is a popular and prosperous young farmer.

Their many friends join in wishing them Bon Voyage through life.
