

'STOMACH PAINS WERE DREADFUL'

Operation Prevented by Fruit Treatment "Fruit-a-tives"

For years I was a sufferer from Chronic Dyspepsia, Indigestion and Constipation; the stomach pains were dreadful. I was advised that my condition strongly resembled cancer of the stomach. Dreading an operation, I consulted my physician, but grew steadily worse. Then I decided to try "Fruit-a-tives". Immediately my condition began to improve and soon Dyspepsia and Constipation were things of the past.

There is no other medicine like "Fruit-a-tives". The effect of this fruit treatment in all cases of Constipation is wonderful. 25 and 50 cents everywhere.

MR. J. B. McDONALD ON BUDGET DEBATE

Speaking on the Budget Debate in the Provincial Legislature April 2nd, Mr. J. B. McDonald, Conservative member for Second King's expressed the sense of responsibility he felt in rising to speak on the present occasion. He felt it to be a duty which he owed to his District to take part in any discussion which has in any way a tendency to better conditions generally in the Province. It should be the object of every gentleman who occupies a seat in the House to give his serious attention to questions which come before the Legislature.

He was not a little surprised at some of the members who had preceded him in the debate. They raised questions regarding the debt of the Province, notwithstanding the fact that our financial condition has been fairly and fully set before the House by the Premier and other hon. members of the Government. The Leader of the Opposition however, figures it out in a way best known to himself. He figures that there is an increased indebtedness of something like $100,000, over and above the real statement. If that were the case, one would naturally think that the members of the Opposition would feel serious over the situation. But instead, they are actually trumpeting their desks as if they rejoiced to think that the Province was in that deplorable condition. Another gentleman extended that statement a little further and declared that instead of being $329,000 it had reached $350,000. And again there was thumping and pounding from the Opposition benches. What is the reason for this? Is it that the country is benefited by such actions? It would appear that a spark of hope had kindled in their breasts that some day they might occupy seats on the Government side. Whether or not they would legislate in the interests of the Province and their districts, one thing is apparent—they would legislate at least in their own interests! (Laughter.)

Mr. McDonald recalled briefly the attitude of the Liberal members a little more than four years ago, when the election campaign was on. Two gentlemen, as energetic as any in the Liberal party, contested the speaker's district, and one of them later secured a seat at the Council Board and became, Mr. McDonald believed, the mouthpiece of the Bell Government when he went through the District. He was considered a gentleman beyond reproach, and when he came to the electors he said, "Elect us to power and we will guarantee that there will be no further increase in the taxes." Mr. McDonald was at the time in the poll, and vote was taken on the School question, and this candidate was asked if he intended to vote on that question, whether the Government should raise an additional $75,000 from the people to meet the increase in teachers' salaries. What was his reply? He said, "Certainly, by I am, and I am going to vote it down, for there is plenty of money in the treasury of this Province if properly used, and with good house-keeping we should have a little to the good."

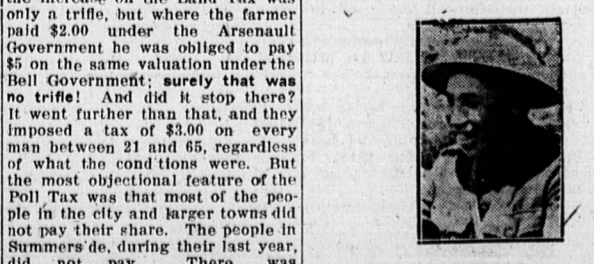

Was it any wonder, when that Government was formed, that the teachers were up in arms? They thought the Bell Government was sincere and that they were not going to tax the people to make up this necessary revenue. The teachers had laid their claims before Premier Arsenault and he considered those claims were just. He told them that to secure the $75,000 additional revenue required it was necessary to put on an educational tax. Is it any wonder it was voted down on that occasion, when here was a party willing to assume that liability and do it without any further taxation? Consequently upon that with some other mis-statements—they gained the confidence of the people.

One of their first actions was to increase the taxes very materially. The Leader of the Opposition said the increase on the Land Tax was only a trifle, but when the farmer paid $2.00, the Arsenault Government he was obliged to pay $5 on the same valuation under the Bell Government; surely that was no trifle! And did it stop there? It went further than that, and they imposed a tax of $3.00 on every man between 21 and 65, regardless of what the conditions were. But the most objectional feature of the Poll Tax was that most of the people in the city and larger towns did not pay their share. The people in Summerside, during their last year, did not pay. There was some $7,000 collected, and the rest was collected from the farmers of the Province, who were paying the other taxes as well. It was not collected of those very people who were escaping the other taxes, therefore it was not at all a just tax. How different this conduct was to the action of the present administration, continued Mr. McDonald. They went to the people with a printed manifesto, and every candidate who went into the field knew that he had a leader behind him who was prepared to carry out his promises and who had given every member of his party to understand

WHY THEY WERE SMALL

A newly married woman was shopping, and was determined that the grocer should not take advantage of her youth and inexperience. "Don't you think these eggs are very small?" she said critically. "I do," answered the grocer, "but that's the kind the farmer sends me. They are fresh from the country this morning." "Yes," said the shopper, "that's the trouble with those farmers. They're so anxious to get their eggs sold that they take them off the nest too soon!"

MIND YOUR Own Business

(The following is issued by the Montreal Board of Trade.) Nobody likes to be told to mind his own business. Yet there was never a time when people needed to be told that more than now, because nine out of every ten men and women are not minding their own business. They do not seem to know that public business is their own business. Whose business is it that every family of five in Montreal now pays an average of about $150 a year in interest and over $3,000 on account of money borrowed and spent by the Dominion, the Province and the City? Surely it is the business of those who pay the taxes and carry the debt; and that means you. Whose business is it that the country is spending far beyond the means and borrowing tens of millions every year to do it? Surely it is the business of those whose earnings pay the interest on the money borrowed; and that again means you, for you are paying it every day in high rents and high prices. The credit of our Country and our City is not a thing apart from ourselves. They have credit only because they can pledge our property as security for the money they borrow and tax our earnings to pay interest on it. If we had been minding our own business, the debts of the Dominion, the Province and the City would not now be so large and taxes would not be so high. When we do not mind our own business we are always safer for it. But this free spending of public money—your money—need not go on. The electors can stop it whenever they like. You are an elector. See that your name is on the voters' list and at election—Dominion, Provincial and Municipal—vote for men who are pledged to public economy and reduction of the Public Debt. MIND YOUR OWN BUSINESS!!

For Mother's Day

By Mary Carolyn Davies. Red carnations! A proud flower a flower that means motherhood. Homage to motherhood! All the world today bows its head to us, the mothers. Are we worthy? We bow our heads in shame for the many mothers when we were impatient, or too busy, or too occupied with our own distractions, or too sad. Young mothers, middle-aged mothers, grey-haired mothers—we are all conscious of the times when we have failed our children, failed to understand, failed to make allowance for their heedlessness of youth, failed to realize the need of the young to play, even if the play seem extreme to our more cautious age. How many times we have been too busy to listen to the little boy made; or the poem in the daisy without a stem or the little girl picked—or years later, the love-flower. Eager interest in their toys—have always given it to them? Are we worthy of the red carnation? Mothers, girl-mothers, or calm matrons, all the mothers of the world—let us strive this year to be more worthy of the reverence our children so generously bring.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS COVERING SOILGRO

What is Soilgro? It is a scientific culture of various soil bacteria. What does it do? It changes the elements in or added to the soil into available plant food. What effect has it on the plants? By increasing the available plant food, it promotes a sturdier and faster growth, better root development, more extensive yield and quicker maturity. Can it injure or burn the plants? No, it merely increases the natural functions. You cannot use too much. Can it be used on all kinds of plants? Yes, it may be used with advantage on trees, grains, vegetables, shrubs, flowers, lawns and pastures. Must fertilizer be used with Soilgro? Not necessarily, but the function of Soilgro is to supply the bacteria necessary to make the plant food now in the soil available for use by the plant and the more added, in the way of fertilizer or manure, the better. How often should it be applied? It cannot be applied too often. Once a season, but successive applications will tend to increase growth and hasten maturity. Is humus necessary when Soilgro is used? Yes, humus is necessary as this provides sponginess in the soil which retains moisture and no plant life will exist without moisture. Must it be applied every year? It can be with advantage. Under favorable conditions the bacteria build a reserve supply of plant food but if the plants are assimilating it and increasing their productivity rapidly, it is advisable to provide all the food they may require. How should Soilgro be mixed? Empty the bacteria food first and pour contents of Soilgro can onto it and then add five times the amount of the Soilgro can, of clear water. (Rain water preferable, but not necessary.) Stir well and cover with cheese cloth or mosquito netting. Let stand in a warm shady spot for five days. Do not expose to the direct rays of the sun as sun rays affect the life of bacteria. Why do you have to mix it as directed? This releases the bacteria from captivity in air tight cans and provides food on which they thrive and multiply. Can part of contents only be mixed? Yes, but it is better to mix it all at one time as it keeps better in that form. Does Soilgro have a disagreeable smell? Only when first opened. As soon as the harmless gases that have formed in the can come in contact with the air, this odor immediately disperses. Does it smell when applied to a lawn? No. How long will it keep after mixing? From six to eight months. Will mixture evaporate? Not to any great extent. Why should the mixture be covered with cheese cloth? Because mosquitos and other insects eat the bacteria. Why should Soilgro be applied in the evening or on a cloudy day? Because the direct rays of the sun will kill the bacteria before they have a chance to work into the soil. Who discovered Soilgro? Dr. J. E. Davis, Ph.D., Oph.D., a Canadian chemist and bacteriologist. Is it a new principle? No, it is rather a perfected method. Bacteria cultures have been used on legumes such as alfalfa, clover, vetches, beans, etc., for the past 15 or more years. What is the advantage of Soilgro over other culture? It is cheaper, easier to apply and is adaptable to all kinds of crops, while other cultures are for specific crops only. Is there more than one kind of bacteria in Soilgro? Yes, numerous others serving a specific purpose. What are the different kinds of bacteria in Soilgro? Different groups of nitrogen fixing, ammonifying, nitrifying and decomposition bacteria. Is Soilgro poisonous? No, it is not injurious to any living thing. Can Soilgro be used on all kinds of soil? Yes, it improves any soil. How much Soilgro should be used to inoculate seed? Enough to thoroughly moisten it. Where may Soilgro be obtained? From the Soilgro Selling Agency, 176 Kent Street, Charlottetown; Murdoch MacKinnon, Manager.
