WILL LIKELY PERFORM HERE

Local promoters are busy these days paving the way for a ten-round boxing bout between Jack McKenna and another logical opponent, the fight to take place early next month. Jack's creditable performance so far in Uncle Sam's domain will surely go a long way in making him a big-drawing card on the Island. It is understood that McKenna plans on spending two weeks in the Province during the latter part of this month or early May, therefore according to the above it looks as if the "pride of the Maritimes" will be seen in action here.

"DAY OF SILENCE" AT ST. JAMES

There was a crowded congregation at St. James last evening for the "Third Day" of Passion Week—"The Day of Silence." Rev. W. Bruce Muir dealt ably with Our Saviour's sojourn in Bethany at the house of Lazarus and His sisters Mary and Martha, the spilling of the ointment over our Lord, and the jealousy and greed of Judas, who there and then conceived the idea of betraying His Master. Tonight, the Minister will deal with the Day of Communion, the prelude to Gethsemane. There was a good choir, and splendid congregational singing. The feature of the musical service was the solos by Mr. Robert B. Messervey who ably rendered "Our Faith Looks up to Thee," and "There were Ninety and Nine." The whole service was inspiring and uplifting. The services will be continued tonight.

Exercise For Long Life

BUT DON'T OVER DO IT SAYS FELIX HARBIC, AGED 97. OTTAWA, Ont., April 4.—"If you would live long and die happy, take plenty of outdoor exercise, but don't overdo it. Keep regular hours and retire early at night; eat plain food and not too much of it—and never worry." This is the recipe for the enjoyment of good health and long life offered by Felix Harbic, one of the oldest residents of the Ottawa Valley, who was born in the lumbering town of Hawkesbury, on the Ottawa River, ninety-seven years ago, and has lived there ever since.

Mr. Harbic, who stands nearly six feet in his stocking feet, looks a hardy type of citizen even with his weight of years upon him, and is very confident that he will celebrate his centenary three years from now. He takes a drink occasionally and has smoked a pipe, an ancient affair generally filled with "tabac Canadian," as long as he can remember.

"Tobacco never hurt anyone I ever knew," said the aged citizen, "but I can't see anything in those cigarettes, there isn't enough to them."

LONDON, April 4.—With the arrival of spring people who live in the countryside are again looking forward bitterly to the disfigurements of lanes, fields, and woods by the litter left by thoughtless holiday makers. The disclosure that the remains of the first Lord Avebury, who ironically enough, as Sir John Lubbock, induced Parliament, in 1871, to pass his Bank Holiday, were exhumed from Farnborough, Kent, and re-buried in a private enclosure because of the disrespect with which holiday makers treated the grave, shows that not even churchyards are immune from desecration. Around the wood to which Lord Avebury's remains were removed the barbed wire fencing has been renewed at many points, suggesting that those who are responsible know only too well the habits of visitors to the countryside.

Lord Avebury's grave was formerly near a public footpath through the churchyard. The exhumation took place 12 years ago, and among the villagers there is a sense of indignation over the cause which led to the action.

"Londoners came down and sat on the stone edging to the grave and threw their rubbish about," said one person to a reporter. "A couple of fellows were actually sitting on the grave with their lunch spread out, drinking beer from bottles, when Lady Avebury—the late Lord Avebury's second wife—came along, and when she spoke to them they made some insulting remarks to her." Memorials to two of the late Lord Avebury's sons who fell in the war are contained in the enclosure in the wood near their father's grave, and it is stated in the village that notwithstanding the barbed wire and strong fencing, a replica of a Military Cross has been stolen from one memorial.

Conducts Finishing School For Animals

NASHUA, N. H., April 4.—No big game hunter ever saw as many jungle beasts in the same area of the African wilds as may be found on the farm of John P. Benson of this city. Benson calls his farm "the most exclusive finishing school for animals in the world," and perhaps the right Lions, tigers, zebras, giraffes, pythons, yaks and numerous other species are to be found among his pupils. It is his farm that the great Hagenbeck organization of Germany sends wild creatures from the four corners of the globe for care, schooling and domicile, pending sale to circuses, zoological gardens and wild animal shows. And schoolmaster Benson laughs at the suggestion that he might be afraid of even the most unmannerly of his pupils.

Y. BOWLING

The second section of the Church League was opened last evening when St. James met and defeated the United team.

VOLLEY BALL AT THE "Y"

Four very interesting and hard-fought games were played in the "Y" gym last night between a team from the League and a team from the "Y" Business Men. These teams were indeed very evenly matched, and all men worked hard.

The "Y" won the first, 15 to 7; the League the second, 15 to 9; and the "Y" finally winning the third after a bitter struggle, 16 to 14; and the fourth, 15 to 10.

This series of games has created a great deal of enthusiasm and the next series will be awaited with keen interest.

"Y" Basketball

This league opened up last night at 8:00 o'clock with the College and Stars playing. This game was clean and exciting throughout. The Stars got away to a good start with R. Spillet doing most of the scoring. The College team came back towards the end of the period to have a final score of 18-16 in their favor.

Table with columns for Stars and College teams, listing players and scores.

In the second game the score on both sides was held down due to closer guarding and better body checking. The first period which was quite fast ended 8 to 6 in favor of the so-called Rovers.

The period the form of play was even better, although as before, long shooting and close guarding kept down the score. The period and game ended 20-15 in favor of the Rovers. Jim Cameron had the high individual score of 15, followed by C. Connolly with a score of 7. The line-up and individual scores are as follows:

STARS WIN CHAMPIONSHIP OVER VICTORIAS BY A LARGE MARGIN.

Last night on the L. O. C. Alleys the last game of the three game play-off to decide the winners of the championship of the League of the Cross Alleys for the year (1927-28) was rolled when the Victorias by a large margin of 273 pins. The game was a real good one from start to finish and the fans who witnessed last night's game can say that they saw real good bowling as the Stars rolled one of the best games rolled on the Alleys for a long time, they made splendid scores in the first two games but in the third game the bad breaks came against them which spoiled them from making a record score.

The Victorias rolled a hard game last night and seemed to get bad breaks all through but in spite of this they showed the best of sportsmanship all the way through. The foul judges and pin judges done their work in a very satisfactory way. In last night's game W. Carmony had high single of 254 while I. McCabe had high total score of 777 pins.

BAPTISTS PREPARING FOR 7000 DELEGATES

World Alliance in Toronto Next June Will Exemplify Growth In Many Countries

TORONTO, Ont., April 4.—Large delegations from far-off countries are expected to attend the Baptist World Convention in Toronto next June. The functions of the Alliance meeting, the president explains, are advisory and suggestive, rather than legislative and binding. The Alliance does not deal with problems affecting purely local units of the Baptist denomination.

Dr. Mullins says there is no fundamental divergence between the dissenting groups of Baptists and many so-called fundamentalists will attend the convention here.

There has been remarkable progress in the Baptist denomination in Roumania, according to Dr. Mullins, especially since the granting of religious rights and freedom to Baptists by the Roumanian Government. "At one time," Dr. Mullins says, "they were terribly persecuted by the state, church and civil authorities, but this has ceased in consequence of a petition drawn up week to supervise the arrangements being made for the convention and gave a public address shortly after his arrival.

It is not anticipated that contentious matters of doctrine and interpretation—such as have caused upheavals among the Baptist churches in various parts of the world—will be discussed by the coming convention. It is regarded as improbable that insurgent fundamentalist groups who have withdrawn from attend the convention as invitations

Campaign To Save Fish and Game

BOSTON, April 3.—Thoroughly alarmed by the apparent diminishing of wild life in many sections of New England, sportsmen's organizations of that state are making a determined fight to save from virtual extinction many species.

In the Western section of Massachusetts efforts are being made to clean up polluted streams, and to prevent the pollution of others. Pollution is blamed for the loss of many fine fishing waters, as trout and many other fish cannot exist except in pure water. The Isaac Walton League of Springfield has arranged for 15,000 fingerling trout, which will be reared to adult, or near adult size, and then released in streams where it is believed they will have a chance to thrive.

The scarcity of grouse during the past open season is expected to result in a closed season next autumn on this bird. Ravaged by disease and by goshawks and white owls from the north during the past two winters, the king of American game birds, has all but disappeared from many localities where they were formerly plentiful. In many sections of Massachusetts, pheasants are being liberated. These birds, may be raised successfully in captivity, which is untrue of grouse or partridge. While sportsmen are supporting the stocking of pheasants, they do not regard the bird as desirable a game bird as the grouse.

State Ornithologist Edward How Forbush is one of those most active in preserving all forms of wild life. He keeps in touch with 600 trained observers throughout the country and Canada and is able to station closely the movements and numbers of various species. One of his most useful observers is Commander Donald MacMillan, the Arctic explorer, now on the Bowdoin, in Labrador. A recent radiogram from the explorer follows:

"Lapwings seen here December 22 and also at various other places that week. Very bad northeast storm from December 18 to 23. I think these birds came from Greenland with that gale. Had little snow but terrible winds. Old residents cannot remember anything like it. More snow this morning. Have just had two day howler March 6 and 7. Worst in years, air one mass of snow from interior. Am wondering if this storm hit you before or after."

Dr. Forbush sends messages to Commander MacMillan over commercial radio stations, but the explorer's replies are usually picked up by amateur stations.

Apparatus has been developed by a French scientist with which it is possible to study chemical reactions under a pressure of 20,000 atmospheres.

An attractive piece of furniture that serves as a writing desk or library table has been invented to cover and hide residence heating radiators.

Pin Judges—J. Donovan, E. Robin, H. Harley. Another large number of fans witnessed last night's game. The Stars are now champions of the League of the Cross Alleys for 1927-28. (Congratulations Stars.) On fishing trips take Minned.

INTERESTING WINDOW DISPLAYS—One of the most unique window displays ever featured in the Maritime Provinces was shown in Summerside yesterday afternoon when the Eastern Hosiery Co. of Truro, put on a special demonstration of their hosiery in the store of R. T. Holman, Ltd., using four live models for the purpose. The window was splendidly dressed and although a vision of the models was limited to the lower part of the thigh and the rest of the human figure which has made the Folies famous, it was enough to arouse great interest all over the town, especially with those who consider themselves experts on curves.
