FIVE HUNDRED PERSONS IN KLAN BATTLE

A Hundred Shots Exchanged - Casualties, if Any, Removed by Friends - Splintered Windshields Only Evidence Left on Field of Battle.

GROTON, Mass., Oct. 2. - A revolver and rifle battle between Klan and anti-Klan forces numbering more than 500 persons in which more than 100 shots were fired shortly after midnight this morning was under investigation today by local and state police.

The disturbance, latest of a long series which have occurred in various parts of the state in the past two years, was without apparent casualties, although police believed to the theory that the injured, if any, probably were carried off in machines of friends.

A field littered with the remains of splintered windshields was all that remained when a force of men under Chief Edward Leavitt, of this town, and a detachment of state police from the Lunenburg barracks arrived in response to calls of alarmed residents of the vicinity.

A party of 100 persons in automobiles surprised a Klansman in a field in a field of a side road and after felling trees to barricade either of the highway by the field they opened fire, according to the police.

Klansmen scurried to their machines meanwhile returning the fire and spread through the field seeking to gain the road without passing the trees behind which the attacking party had taken a stand. Police were unable to detain any participants as they fled from the scene but were confident that a day of investigation would bring them to bay.

It was the first Klan disturbance in the history of Groton but similar incidents on a varying scale have occurred at irregular intervals in different parts of the state.

Literary Giants In England Grind Away

LONDON, Oct. 2. - There seems to be no limit to the industry of England's veteran literary giants. H. G. Wells is grinding out a three-volume novel, Arnold Bennett is about to launch a new romance, Rudyard Kipling, recovered from his serious illness, has another book of short stories ready for his public.

Bernard Shaw, having celebrated his seventieth birthday, is hard at work again, lecturing and writing. John Galsworthy's new play is a success in London - and he insists it is not necessarily his last dramatic work. Besides his plays, Galsworthy has the fortunes of the Forsyth family to look after, and has turned out another novel about them.

IMPRESSIVE SERVICES IN ST. PAUL'S CHURCH

Commemoration of 157th Anniversary Yesterday - Eloquent Sermons by Rev. Canon Troop, M. A.

The celebration of the 157th Anniversary and Annual Harvest Thanksgiving services took place yesterday in St. Paul's Church. Large congregations were present at both services at which the preacher was Rev. Canon G. Osborne Troop, M. A., of Halifax, who delivered two eloquent and inspiring sermons. The church was beautifully and tastefully decorated with produce of the harvest which is to be donated to the Prince Edward Island Hospital.

Yesterday was the 157th Anniversary of the congregation of which the present minister is Rev. H. D. Raymond. St. Paul's is the oldest Protestant Church on Prince Edward Island, and one of the oldest in Canada. This Parish is commonly known as St. Paul's, Charlottetown. Its original name, however, is the "Parish of Charlotte." In his illuminating book dealing with the history of the Province, Judge Warburton tells us that there were only a few English settlers here prior to 1761. In that and the two succeeding years a survey of the Island was made by the Surveyor-General Holland, whose name has been preserved in "Holland Cove." The first Governor, Walter Patterson, came to the Province in 1769, bringing with him a company of settlers. This year marks the beginning of public worship in the Parish of Charlotte. There were occasional services conducted by a ship's chaplain, whose boat visited the port from time to time. The first Rector, Rev. Thos. Caulfield, apparently appointed about 1770, held the title for four years, and perhaps received the salary, but never visited the place. Our representations being made regarding Lord Willingdon Received With Traditional Pomp and is Installed in Office - Chief Justice Anglin, and Premier King Extend First Welcomes on Board Ship, on Mist Dims Brilliance of Welcome Ashore.

QUEBEC, Oct. 2. - Canada today received a new Governor General and his consort, Lord and Lady Willingdon landed at Quebec, scene of struggle which decided the fate of a continent and were welcomed with the dignity of a country with more than 200 years of traditions of two races behind it and a part of a great empire; and with the warm-heartedness of a country in its youth looking forward to its greatest destiny.

The weather was unkind. The city was shrouded in heavy mist. But through it loomed the befitting display of ceremony, the scarlet of military uniform, plumed and polished helmets, as the viceregal party was escorted through the historic streets of Quebec, up Mountain street from lower town and then through the broader avenues of upper town to the Provincial Parliament buildings. The installation took place in the Legislative Council chamber at noon.

The Empress of Scotland arrived in Quebec about daybreak. The ceremonies commenced at 10.30 o'clock, when the Right Hon. Francis A. Anglin, officer administering the government of Canada in the interim between the departing and incoming Governor Generals, and Right Hon. William Lyon Mackenzie King paid a courtesy call to Lord Willingdon on board ship.

Coolidge Not Opposed To Court Membership

(Special to the Guardian)
WASHINGTON, Oct. 2. - President Coolidge knows of no movement in this country for withdrawal by the United States of its proposal to adhere to the world court. As to the action of the recent Geneva conference Mr. Coolidge regrets that it did not take the form of an outright acceptance of the reservations proposed by the Senate as contingent to United States participation. He will await the replies of the individual nations to the state department letter setting forth the position of this country and asking that it be accepted, and before any action is taken on the court question he will confer with senators on the matter.

BETTER LET THE GRASS GROW UNDER YOUR FEET THAN OVER YOUR HEAD

So far as the reported movement for withdrawal of the United States position is concerned the president lacks anything like confidential information and the only movement of this sort brought to his attention has been that by senators opposed to court membership.

WEAVING THE WEB AROUND MRS. M'PHERSON

Chambermaid at Los Angeles Hotel Tells of Visits of Radio Operator to Aimee When She Took a Room at the Hotel.

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Oct. 2. - Aimee Semple McPherson, evangelist, was visited at a room in the Ambassador Hotel here by Kenneth G. Ormiston, her former radio operator, on two occasions last year prior to her visit to Palestine. It was testified today at her preliminary hearing on charges of conspiracy.

Miss Aimee Callahan, chambermaid at the hotel, placed on the stand by the State, declared she saw a man, whom she positively identified as Ormiston, enter the evangelist's room. The identification was made when the witness was shown the photograph of Ormiston.

Mrs. McPherson occupied room 320 at the hotel at least six times during last summer and fall and Ormiston was seen on the same floor of the hotel at least six times, Mrs. Callahan testified.

On two of the visits, the maid said she saw Ormiston go into the evangelist's room. The man had a decided limp, the witness testified. Ormiston, it has been brought out at the hearing, testified of the maid was given only after a bitter fight by W. I. Gilbert, defense counsel, to prevent it.

Mrs. McPherson's visits to hotels were touched on in her testimony before the grand jury, the transcript of which was read yesterday. She said the noise made by workmen engaged on her new Bible School frequently caused her to go to the hotels for a rest.

Mrs. McPherson heard from the lips of one who was baptized as a member of the flock, the positive declaration today that she was at a hotel in Los Angeles on the day of the kidnapping and at the same time and place a witness yesterday equally positively stated he had seen Ormiston.

The witness today, Thomas Scott Melville, hotel doorman, declared he saw Mrs. McPherson at the Hotel Clark at 10 o'clock on May 13, five and a half hours before her secretary reported her missing at ocean break.

Mrs. McPherson previously had stated that she was attending to business affairs in another section of the city at that time.

The State charges in the complaint against the evangelist that she left here in company with Ormiston, Mrs. McPherson, her mother and five others are accused of criminal conspiracy in connection with efforts to substantiate the kidnapping story.
