COAL COMPANIES CANNOT SUPPLY THE DEMAND

NORTH SYDNEY, Nov., 8—The North Sydney Herald says:—Coal is certainly King, and never before in the histiry of Cape Breton have shipments been so large as at present.

At the colleries of the Nova Scotia Steel and Coal Company at Sydney Mines is this especially true. Where a brief while ago was piled up in a mighty pyramid some one hundred thousand tons of coal, today not even a vestige of the dusky diamonds can be seen. In fact, every colliery of the chain of six are working day and night in an unceasing effort to turn at least sufficient coal to fill the orders already booked.

But even with all this activity, contracts could not be filled without resorting to the American coal fields, and for the first time in many years the Nova Scotia Steel and Coal Company were last week obliged to purchase a shipment of Pennsylvania coal for one of their customers, while another of their chartered colliers had to take a cargo from the Dominion Coal Company.

All this, in view of the fact that during the month just closed the output of the Scotia Company was several thousand tons greater than for the month previous, goes to show that the demand is greater than the supply. No doubt the fact that nearly sixty thousand tons net of shipping was in port on Monday, to a great extent intensifies the situation, as each steamer, not to speak of the large fleet of sailing craft, required an immense quota of coal.

But even this does not by any means wholly account for the scarcity of coal, as the MacKay mine is to a great degree in the same straits. Scarcely a pound of coal is dumped from the latter mine for local use, as the Company as finding it difficult to keep up with their contracts.

On the whole, the coal situation at present Cape Breton establishes a precedent in the amount of fuel on hand and the extraordinary demand. On former occasions when shipping was brisk and various crafts found it hard to relieve supplies, the cause of the shortage was generally due to the fact that men engaged in the industry neglected work for various reasons. Such however, is not the cause today, as all the colleries are fully manned and in each case the possible output is obtained.

Yesterday the run on the shipping piers eased up, and from now henceforward the Scotia people will be able to cope with the situation without any further calls on the American market.

OBITUARY.

Fell asleep in Jesus on the morning of Oct 24th, 1911, at the home of her daughter Mrs Allan MacDonald, Oyster Bed Bridge, Eliza McWilliams, widow of the late John Kent, aged 84 years. The deceased was for many years a member of the Christian Church at New Glasgow and died, as she lived, trusting in God. She leaves to mourn four daughters and one son also a large circle of relatives and friends but they sorrow not even as others who have no hope for if they believe that Jesus died and rose again, "Them also that sleep in Jesus Will God bring with Him.

Dearest Mother we have laid thee
In the silent grave's embrace
But thy memory will be cherished
Till we see thy Heavenly face.

SEEN THROUGH A GIRL'S EYE.

Let me make a man laugh, and I care not who makes his coffee.

A confirmed bachelor is a man who loves himself so much that he doesn't need a woman to help him.

It isn't kissing a girl that constitutes impudence. It's assuming that she wants you to kiss her.

A man should choose a wife as he would a dish at dinner—not because he finds her attractive, or delicious, or spicy—but because he thinks she will agree with him.

A tear in the eyes of a sweetheart will cause a man more perturbation than a fit of hysterics on the part of a wife.

Turning the left cheek in a quarrel don't turn all the way 'round, so that a man can stick pins in your back.

Many a girl fancies she has a broken heart when it is nothing but may be brave and generous—but a sprained ideal.

CHINESE SECRET OF BEAUTY IF FOUND

That secret process by which for centuries the women of China made the women of the remainder of the world marvel at their complexions has been fathomed at last by a professor who has been delving into the cuticle question, and the method is known at last. All any ambitious young woman now needs to do to make herself surpassingly beautiful is to follow the instructions which have been wrested from the little women of the pagodas.

On those occasions when Chinese women of the higher class came to this country for a visit their complexions were at first the cause of wonder, and then of envy, on the part of many American women until it became whispered about that these complexions never were the result of any natural process, but were due to a system of delicate enamelling. But now it turns out that all this time the little women of the pagodas have been libelled, that they never did have their faces enamelled, but that as a matter of cold fact and cold cream they obtained their complexions by means of scientific massaging.

For many cycles of time, according to a scientific writer in the Press Medicale, Chinese women have had a perfect process of massaging which they have kept very much to themselves. The secret lies, according to the writer, not so much in the massage itself as in the method of application and also in large part, perhaps to the lotions and unguents used.

According to this writer, the Chinese woman has an expert masseuse who visits her daily and for at least ten minutes work over her face manipuling it delicately by gentle pinching with the thumb and forefinger. This process having opened the pores without straining them unnecessarily, a lotion is applied with which the heavy oils and other substances yielded by the pores are washed away, the lotion being laid on with absorbent cotton.

Following this the nourishing unguent is applied, also gently and with great care, that there may be even distribution, after which it is worked into the skin by delicate kneading. This process requires extreme care also, the work beginning at either side of the nose and extending backward toward the ears.

BRUCE RIDPATH A POPULAR ATHLETE.

TORONTO, Nov. 10—D. Bruce Ridpath, the Toronto professional hockeyist, was struck by an auto at Yonge and Alexander streets and seriously injured. Bruce played hockey for Ottawa last winter.

Bruce was one of the most popular athletes that ever appeared before the Toronto public. He was a brilliant hockey player, and probably the best all-round trick and speed canoeist in the world. He came originally from Lakefield, but has lived in Toronto for the past ten years and every person was his friend, as he was of a most likeable disposition.

Ridpath played hockey in the junior O. H. A. for Parkdale in 1903 and also the following year. In 1905 and 1906 he played senior O. H. A. with Malboros of Toronto, his position being right wing. Bruce then turned professional and played for the Toronto pro. team in 1907 and 1908. In 1909 and 1910 he played for Ottawa, where he was a sensation.

Ridpath as a canoeist had no superior. He has been for years a familiar figure on Toronto Bay in his canoe and developed into quite a trick performer. A couple of years ago he toured the principal cities of European, giving exhibition in a large tank, and was well received wherever he performed. Recently a local theatre showed the films of his great water performance, and the place was crowded for the week.

Ridpath was slated to manage the Toronto pro. hockey team this winter. He was a young man of exemplary habits and always in perfect physical condition. His younger brother "Kernel" Ridpath, was captain of the Parkdale senior O. H. A. team last winter.

ODE TO PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND

On the boundless waste of ocean,
Sitting like a bird at ease,
Ever quiet—ever silent
Thou shalt sit till Time shall cease
Storms will rage,and the sea monsters
May come snorting to thy shore,
But thou'lt stand in silent glory.
Until Time shall be no more.
Ever silent,
Lovely Island,
In thy bed beneath the sea.

Precious stone set in the ocean.
And ever glist'ning brightly,
Rich in all that makes men stalwart
And nations great and mighty;
Small thou art but rich in blessing
To the tillers of thy soil,
When they're frugal and contented
Plenty compensates their toil
Shower and sunshine
Are ever thine
Sitting in the rolling sea;
Fruits and flowers
Are thy dowers,
Blessed Island of the sea.

Like the swift winged bird reposing
In the storm-tossed waters,
Thou manifests the self-same spirit
Of all thy sons and daughters—
Sitting stolid—yet aspiring
Thy great destiny to fill,
Ever wearing—slowly rising
Grandly high and higher still.
Little Freeland,
Lovely Island,
In the restless, roaring sea;
Thou art peerless,
Ever fearless,
For thy children all love thee.

In the rolling waves of ocean,
Lying silent in thy bed,
Mantled deep in dark-green verdure;
Soil, and rock, and sea-shore red;
Fields of grain and grove abounding,
Ever charming to the eye,
These and other things so lovely
To the mind, can never die.
Ever fairest,
Always rarest,
Fare thee well and God bless thee
Little garden of the sea.
Ever my land,
Tiny Island,

J. H. FLETCHER.

BOTH ADMIRED HIS BENEFICENCE.

Two elderly gentlemen, both decently clothed in sober black, were sitting side by side in a Euclid avenue car. Each was reading a morning paper. Suddenly one of the men uttered an exclamation of pleasure and the other peered at him over his glasses, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"I see here," explained the first with a beaming face, "that Mr. B., who died last week, has left his entire fortune to various charitable enterprises. This will be a surprise to his many relatives. It is to me a glad surprise in my case, for I am the pastor of a church to which he has left $10.000."

The second man looked at the article and his face, too, became wreathed in smiles. "God bless him! Ah, sir, I like to see money left like that. I do indeed!"

"Are you also a clergyman?"

"No, sir, I am a lawyer."

The will of the late William Lowther, Cornwall, has been presented for probate. The document was dated Oct, 29; 1911, and by it he appointed as his executors Lea Howard and Frank Howard, both of Cornwall. He devised to his widow all his real and personal property. Upon his son Frank attaining the age of twenty four years he directed that his 105 acre farm at Cornwall should become his property, also all the live stock and implements. This bequest is subjected to an anniuty of $160 payable to his son Frank, after he takes possession of above bequest, to his mother. Special directions were given with one respect to the use of the rooms in the house, also use of carriages, orchard, household furniture, etc., To his daughter Leal he left $200 to be paid after her mothers death. The inventory showed real estate valued at $4000 and personal property worth $2397.

KITCHENETTES.

Whipped whites of eggs stirred into a chocolate jelly while it is stiffening makes it a sponge instead of a jelly.

Fancy Italian pastes should not be tender and then drained from the juice, make a nice addition to a lemon jelly.

Hickory nuts, ground fine in a meat chopper, seasoned with salt and then moistened to a paste with cream, make a nice sandwich filling.

Parboil spareribs and when partially done place in bakepan and season. Do not bake fast nor brown too much. Serve with baked apples.

Fancy Italian pastes should not be cooked a moment after they are done or they become flabby and lose shape. The instant they are done pour a small cup of cold water into the soup rto stop the boiling immediately.

THE COST OFA AVIATION.

There is every reason to believe that as long as men like Atwood, Beaumont, Vedrines and other present day champions of the air, race for purses that hold thousands of dollars no attention will be paid to reduction of operating costs. When the public has wearied of aviation meets (and there is evidence that in Europe at least the cross-country light has compietely displaced performances in an enclosure for the benefit of thousands in the grand stand, and on the field) when newspapers have extracted all the notoriety they can by offering huge sums for successful flights, the engineer will step in and provide us with machines and engines that will transport us through the air at a cost no greater than that of a present-day automobile tour. So long as $900 a day is the cost of a flight from Chicago to New York, so long will the aeroplane be the exclusive property of aerial performers with itching palms.

The establishing of telephone communication between Afton Hall and New Haven via Song Creek, fills a long felt want for the people of that thriving section of country south of West River. Early last winter the West River Rural Telephone Company was organized and an agitation started for the construction of the line. The Board of Directors consists of A. A. McNeill, Nine Mile Creek, President; Hector McLean, New Dominion, Vice President; Neil McCannell, Long Creek, Secretary; Alexander K. McPhee, Long Creek, Treasurer, Hon John McMillan Fairview, Frank J. McLean, Long Tree, P. J. Berrigan, Dunedin. The work on the line was completed about the last week in August and communication established. Public offices have been opened at Dunedin, Long Creek, New Dominion, and Nine Mile Creek (Afton) the agents in charge of the offices being respectively, P. J. Berrigan, A. K. McPhee, Hector McLean and Donald McNeill.

On Wednesday the 5th inst., the residence of Mrs. Annie McEwen, Harbor View, York Point, was the scene of a most interesting event, the occasion being the marriage of her youngest daughter, Ella May, to R. Percy Mutch of Mount Herbert. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Beck, assisted by Rev. Mr. Styles of Pownal, in the presence of a large number of guests, relatives and intimate friends of the contracting parties. The handsome bride, who was gowned in Alice blue silk and carried a bouquet of white chrysanthemums and Maiden Hair Fern, was given away by her brother H. Leslie McEwen. The wedding march was played by Mrs, H. Leslie McEwen, sister-in-law of the bride. After the ceremony a very elaborate supper was served, and the remainder of the evening passed all too soon, being enlivened by entertaining music and conversation Special mention must be made of the instrumental selections rendered by both the officiating clergymen, as well as vocal solos by Mrs. Beck and Rev. Mr. Styles. The popular and winsome bride was the recipient of numerous and costly gifts, which included substantial cheques from her brothers. The party broke up about midnight, with many good wishes for the newly married couple, after having enjoyed a very pleasant time.

AGE OF MAN NOT LESS THAN A MILLION YEARS

LONDON, Nov. 9—That the age of man is not less than a million years is the conclusion that Dr. W. Allen Sturge, president of the Prehistoric Society of East Anglia, reaches from studies based largely on the neolithic flint instruments found in Northwest Suffolk.

He may say "Neolithic man goes back to some period between 200,000 and 300,000 years, and it would seem that we have not even then reached the begining of the period. Drift man was flourishing from 1,000,000 to about 700,000 years ago. Neither figure is a limit; a limit than the earlier. Between the end of the drift and the beginning of the neolithic we have the greater 'cave' periods, which would thus seem to have occupied anything from 200,000 to 400,000 years. Behind drift men are vast ages of which we are now only beginning to get the first glimpses.

"But it now seems evident that man was already on the earth in early Pilocene times, and we must not be surprised if proofs are ultimately brought forward that genus homo goes back even further than that. It has become almost a shibboleth that man first appeared in Pleistocene times, but I affirm that it is no more than shibboleth."

Dr. Sturge has found flint instruments which, he contends, were scratched by glacial action. That a glacial period has occurred since human instruments of neolithic types were made is against all views of glacial geology. Since neolithic man came to Britain, the doctor holds there has been an ice age, not continuous, but divided into sub periods of glaciation. Proof of this is found in humanly worked flints presenting sharply defined types of scratching.
