

Don't Be Mistaken About Constipation!

A great many people, when they are constipated, open the medicine chest, take a purgative, and try to forget—until the ailment returns. And generally it comes back—more and more often—until you find the cause.

If, like most people, you eat bread, meat, potatoes—the cause of your ailment is probably lack of "bulk." And "bulk" does not mean quantity of food, but the kind of food that is incompletely assimilated and leaves a soft mass in the bowels that helps the bowel movement.

If that is the reason for your ailment, eat a good bowl of Kellogg's crispy All-Bran for breakfast. It forms the necessary "bulk," and contains Vitamin B₁, the natural intestinal tonic.

Get some All-Bran every day, drink lots of water, and become "regular." Made in London, Canada, by Kellogg. At all grocers.

EARTH SLOWS DOWN

The tides, acting as brakes on the earth, are causing the period of the earth's rotation to lengthen very gradually. The momentum that our earth is losing by this tidal braking is transferred to our satellite, the moon, thereby causing it to travel in a slowly growing orbit.

FEEDING THE FRENCH ARMY AT HOME

Fresh, Hot Bread at Supply Station Brings to Canadian Correspondent Memories of Home.

PARIS June 4 — Before the Germans pushed through neutral countries around the northern end of the Maginot Line to attack France, the serving daily of from 10,000,000 to 15,000,000 meals from the giant army kitchens of the French army had become an established routine, writes Gladys Arnold.

It is still routine along the major part of the line and any woman with the job of keeping the budget, menu and the food fancies of a family unit, can imagine the headache somebody has with armies of millions.

In earlier wars the problem was comparatively easy. Napoleon, for instance, simply foisted his army upon the citizens. Chickens and baby pigs disappeared as if by magic. Gardens were ordered to supplement the meagre army rations.

It took four years of the first Great War to perfect a feeding system suitable to modern warfare. On occasion the chickens and so on vanished as in Napoleon's day—but more or less illegally.

ONE BIG CENTRE

How is it done in the present war? "Somewhere in France," I visited one of the supply stations which like many others are scattered all over the country. After several hours travel in the direction of "X" we stopped at the little city to visit the provisioning depot for more than 200,000 men in one sector of the front lines.

An American journalist, surprised by the appearance of the soldier-guarded exterior, remarked disparagingly: "Why, it might be anything in a large ground, and banked on two sides by vegetable gardens we discovered a number of weathered, low-lying stone sheds and buildings. Nothing new on the spot but a more recently built elevator.

The tantalizing odor of fresh hot bread greeted us at the entrance to one of these long buildings. Here bread for several hundred thousand men was being baked. Not a modern bakery with mixing machines—but a battery of mobilized bakers in their white caps and aprons handle the huge tubs of dough in the way it has been done for centuries—and can be duplicated by any farmer's wife in Canada. The odor was indeed a whiff right out of home and the colonel-judge immediately recognized the hungry look.

The bread is excellent. The loaves are round, seven inches deep and about 15 in diameter. It is baked with golden crust about a quarter-inch thick which preserves freshness. Little water is used, thus the bread is more nourishing and will keep 15 to 20 days if necessary. In adjoining room impressive racks with many shelves held battalions of loaves—nearly 300,000 ready to be loaded on the evening train.

COFFEE AND MEAT

In another shed coffee was being roasted at the rate of 18,000 pounds a day, in huge iron balls about the size and appearance of a mine-dia, stirred over a coal fire. Two soldiers, stripped to the waist, and dressed in brown as the coffee itself, kept the beans turning in each ball. Then they were spread in great vats to cool before being packed into 100-pound sacks for transportation.

Other sheds held thousands of pounds of dried vegetables—peas, several kinds of beans, lentils, "canned" foods, sugar, condensed milk, eggs and so on. While on one corner the soldiers were rolling barrels of wine to waiting carts. "What about meat?" we asked the animals alive—easier to transport than in the form of meat—and it keeps better. We don't need refrigerators," said the officer.

The whole job, including the care of animals, the mixing of the grain, packing, preparation, a workshop for the preparation and pairing of sacks and so on is handled by 1,200 men, providing in this case the daily bread and what goes with it for an army of men equivalent to the population of, say, Winnipeg.

Two of the long trains pull out of the little city in their way east carrying a day's rations.

Rely On Police To Safeguard From Sabotage

OTTAWA, June 3—(CP)—The public must rely on the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and other police forces in Canada to safeguard the Dominion from sabotage by enemy aliens within its borders, Justice Minister Lapointe told the House of Commons today.

"It is essential that we keep calm and not become unduly nervous and not spread wild rumors which only hamper the work of the police," Mr. Lapointe said.

After nine months of war, the fact was that there was no complaint that police in precautions had not been effective. In that time there had been no case of sabotage taking place in Canada.

Nazi sympathizers were known to the police and all enemy aliens in the country had been listed, examined and finger-printed, he said. The R.C.M.P. numbered 2,460 men, and will be increased by 500 men, he added.

Enemy aliens not interned were being watched closely. Where events warranted the nationalization of enemy aliens would be revoked and deportation proceedings resorted to.

No Punishment Too Severe

Mr. Lapointe held "no punishment would be too severe" for anyone found aiding the cause of the enemy in any way. At the same time he warned against persecution of that minority in Canada of German origin and bearing German names, many of whose forefathers came to Canada to get away from the sort of thing Canada is fighting today.

He warned against the spreading of rumors which would cause dissension at a time like this. This sponsoring of dissension was a Nazi tactic which had already proven its effectiveness in other countries. Where citizens had reason to be suspicious, they should report their suspicions to the R.C.M.P., but should not discuss these suspicions with their neighbors.

Resolution Re Aliens

The Minister of Justice made his statement after reading a telegram from a cadet of 16 municipalities in Lower British Columbia which had been sent to G. A. Cruickshank (Lib. Fraser Valley) urging internment of all enemy aliens or military age naturalized or not, and confiscation of all firearms and explosives.

A committee of government officials on enemy aliens had studied these proposals, Mr. Lapointe said. It had reached a unanimous conclusion against internment of all such aliens, first, because the necessity of such a step in the public interest was "not at present apparent."

The order further provides that if any alien arises under the order with reference to anything done or proposed to be done thereunder as to whether any person is an enemy alien, the onus of proof that any person so suspected or charged is not an enemy alien shall be upon the accused in such proceeding," he said.

Mr. Lapointe said it was "a great disservice to Canada and the allied cause to spread stories that Canada is filled with enemy agents and enemy sympathizers."

The secret service of the R.C.M.P. were "in control of the situation" the Minister continued, and have built an organization which "keeps constant watch over the activities of subversive elements throughout the country."

He suggested it would be "nothing but a clear sign of unjustified alarm and weakness if arbitrary

THERE'S STILL TIME TO TRY THIS PRIZE RECIPE AND WIN ONE OF THE VALUABLE GIFTS!

HERE'S THE PRIZE RECIPE FOR AN EGGLESS CAKE

2 1/2 cups sifted Maple Leaf Flour, 1/4 cup cocoa, 1 teaspoon salt, 8 tablespoons butter, 2 cups (lightly packed) brown sugar, 1 cup sour milk, 1 teaspoon baking soda, 1/2 cup hot water, 1/2 teaspoon vanilla.

Measure flour and add cocoa and salt. Cream butter and gradually blend in the brown sugar. Sift in dry ingredients alternately with sour milk, combining after each addition. Dissolve the baking soda in the hot water and stir into batter; then stir in vanilla. Bake in two greased and floured 8-inch layer-cake pans in a moderate oven, 350°, about 30 minutes. Put layers together with Date Filling and cover with Chocolate Butter Frosting. Decorate with date halves, stuffed with nuts.
