LIVELY SESSION OF SUMMERSIDE TOWN COUNCIL

The regular monthly meeting of the Summerside Town Council was held on Monday night Mayor Manson presiding over a full Council Board.
 The meeting was rather stormy at times, differences of opinion arising as to the expenditure on the streets and the placing of new lights. Councillor Phillips, upon his motion being defeated, to have a light placed on Russell Street, walked out.
 The argument arose as to whether the Council was justified in spending money for additional street lights when there is such need for economy in view of the fact that the revenue of the Electric Light Plant has been falling at the rate of 10 per cent every month. Councillor Schurman pointed out that the plant was running almost to its full capacity and that by not adding to the load they had put off the purchase of a new unit this year. The more power used the more units were required.
 He was quite aware that one or two lights would not make much difference, but then if these lights were placed at the request of certain citizens, then other citizens would expect to be treated the same.
 Councillor Bell, also expressed the opinion that the Council should economize and try and get along with the least expenditure.
 The motion before the meeting was to have lights placed on Russell Street and Willow Avenue. When it was put to the vote, Councillor Schurman, McNeill and Bell voted against it and Councillors Phillips, Grady and Kelly in favour, Mayor Manson defeated the motion with his casting vote, as he explained it was against the rules for him to vote for expenditure.
 Mr. Phillips who had spoken quite strongly in favour of the motion, upon the Mayor giving his decision, left the Council room.
 There was also considerable argument in regard to continuing the concrete on Granville Street as far as W. T. Matheson's residence, Mr. McNeill, chairman of the streets committee said, that Mr. Matheson had asked him if the concrete could be taken as far as his place as he had been put to a great deal of inconvenience with clay, etc., when the street was being prepared. The Council was of a divided opinion on the subject. Coun. Bell said it would not be advisable to carry an overdraft and if the continuation of the street past Mark Gaudet's store would mean additional expense, he considered it should not be done, otherwise he had no objection to it.
 After some suggestions from the Mayor that the exact cost be ascertained, the matter was left in the hands of the Street Committee to find out the cost and bring in a report.
 Another cause for considerable argument was a complaint by Mr. Louis Romeke that on account of the way the concrete had been laid outside his place on Summer Street, the water has been coming in his cellar. A heated argument arose, Coun. Phillips declaring that he was willing to prove that the stakes for the street were laid according to the directions of Mr. Callbeck and Mr. Romeke. It was finally decided that the Street Committee with Coun. Phillips and Mr. John A. Lea, engineer for the streets, look into the matter and come to some arrangement.
 Coun. McNeill in his report on the Streets said that the work on Granville Street was almost finished. The approach at the East end at the new concrete bridge was also about completed and several sidewalks were being repaired.

Committee Report
 The different reports were brought in from the committees. Councillor Bell reported that the expenditures were well within the estimates for the different departments. The Mayor asked that a close watch be kept on the money spent.
 Coun. Schurman, chairman of the light committee reported a dropping off of the light and power used.
 Coun. Phillips, chairman of Police reported twenty-one convictions for drunkenness. Four arrests were made for driving to the common danger, out of which three were convicted. One case of manslaughter was before the court.
 Bills passed were as follows: Town bills paid $14,442.70. Unpaid $5525.56. Electric Light paid bills 2431.86. Unpaid, $957.52.
 Members of the Press express their thanks to the Mayor and Councillors for two comfortable desks, which have been placed in the Council room for their use. They are samples of the new desks to be used for Grade 11 at the High School and are the acme of comfort.

Progress Of Aerial Photography For Mapping Purpose

OTTAWA, Canada, Sept. 13 — It is just ten years since the new method of mapping by means of aerial photographs was commenced in Canada but the progress made has been almost unbelievably rapid. In 1922 the Topographical Survey Department of the Interior, arranged with the Royal Canadian Air Force to take aerial photographs over a few experimental areas. A few rolls of oblique photographs were taken in northern Manitoba and a small area in Saskatchewan was photographed vertically. During that winter original plotting methods were worked out and the following year several areas were covered by oblique photography. With the experience gained in that season's work a quite extensive program was launched in 1924. From that year on ward the work has steadily progressed. Each year has seen a deeper inroad made into the practically unmaped expanses of our northern territory, while at the same time accurate maps were produced of those special areas where important industrial or mining developments were taking place.
 Up to the present time a total area of 402,500 square miles has been covered with aerial photography comprising 125,000 square miles by vertical photographs and 277,500 square miles by oblique photographs. Vertical photographs are used for mapping on fairly large scales or where the country is rough or mountainous while oblique photographs are specially well adapted for the exploratory mapping of those extensive areas of forest and lake of fairly uniform elevation which constitute such a large proportion of Northern Canada. The photography has been done through a co-operative arrangement with the Royal Canadian Air Force. The Topographical Survey has been the central agency for the control of all the aerial photography required by the various Federal services. This control provides for the issue of technical instructions for the photographic operations, the indexing and filing of all photographic prints, and the plotting and compilation of maps from the photographs.
 The methods used in plotting the mapping information from the photographs have for the most part been developed in this country. In particular the oblique method is known as the Canadian method and it has been adopted for use in other countries where conditions are similar. This method because of its low cost, flexibility and the small amount of ground surveys required is very applicable to much of Canada and by its use, the geographical knowledge of northern Canada has been extended in the last ten years in a way that would have been quite impossible by former ground methods.
 During that period forty map sheets on the scale of four miles to one inch, each covering an area of between 5,000 and 6,500 square miles, and three map sheets on the scale of eight miles to one inch, each covering an area of roughly four times that of a four mile map have been compiled from oblique photographs and published. These maps are units of the National Topographic series which is designed to cover eventually the whole area of Canada. In the same time twenty-one sheets of the same series, compiled in whole or in part from vertical photographs have been published on the scales of one mile or two miles to the inch. In addition seven other map sheets compiled from vertical photographs have been issued.

CAHILL CASE REMANDED TO SUPREME COURT

Preliminary Evidence On Manslaughter Charge Heard Yesterday.
 The preliminary hearing of the case of the King versus Charles Cahill, charged with manslaughter in connection with the death of Philip V. Arsenault was opened on Monday morning at the Police Court, Summerside before His Honour, Stipendiary Magistrate E. H. Strong, K. C.
 Mr. W. Henry Noonan was acting for the Crown and Mr. Thane A. Campbell, K. C., and Mr. L. G. Lewis appeared for the defendant. The evidence of Dr. McPhee, Mrs. Frank Aitken and William Arsenault was largely a repetition of the statements made by these witnesses at the coroner's inquest, a report of which appeared in Friday's Guardian.
 Mr. James A. Reardon, highway engineer for Provincial Government, was sworn, and submitted a plan of Water Street west and intersections of Duke and Second Streets converging on to Water Street. The section of Water Street showed the scene of the accident, which was between Samuel Grady's store and the west side of a wooden culvert, 81 feet distant.
 The plan also indicated the position of the house of Frank Aitken, whose wife saw the accident from her window. The distance from this house to the bridge was about 76 feet. The street light was about 2 1/2 feet from the culvert where the accident happened. Mr. Reardon stated that the travelled portion of the road between Sam Grady's store and the culvert was 19 feet widening to 20 feet at the culvert. The contour of road was very good and more or less flat. There is a distance of 9 feet on the south side of the shoulder of the road, which could be driven on. The ditch on north side of sidewalk is 8 1/2 feet to shoulder of road, sloping down to two feet.
 These observations were made at the request of Inspector Fripps, Chief of Police Kane of Summerside, was with me at the time they were made stated Mr. Reardon.
 Frank Aitken, labourer, testified that he was in the front room of his house when he heard a crash. He had known the accused for 10-15 years. He first saw him that evening when he stopped the car after he had hit the wagon. Charles Cahill's car was on the bridge in front of Joe Arsenault's house. I went up to Cahill and said, "Look what you done with your fast driving. You have killed a man." He replied, "It's nothing, it's only a man." I said "you must be crazy talking like that." He replied, "I'll make you prove it. If I am crazy I'll see you now or later if you want to."
 Mr. Noonan: What was his condition?
 Witness: There did not appear to be anything wrong with him.
 He did not appear to be drunk. Witness saw the horse lying in the ditch between two lots, over from the sidewalk. He was lying about 8 feet from the sidewalk. Witness saw the remains of the wagon, some parts in the gutter and some on the sidewalk. Saw Philip V. Arsenault lying on Romeo Dolman's lot. Someone had put him there. A couple of men had just laid him down. He was groaning. He was taken to the hospital in Felix Gallant's car. The street light was a couple of feet west of the bridge towards my house. Witness was cross examined by counsel for the defense.
 Robert Grady, sworn, said he knew accused. He had known deceased for forty years.
 Witness stated he was standing in his yard about 8 o'clock when he heard a crash. He had seen a car passing but could not say whose it was. The car had lights on. It was dark. He could not see the wagon. Could not say at what

One car turned over on the road, the other plunged into the ditch. Both were badly damaged.

WANTED FOR CHICAGO CRIME 11 YEARS AGO
 (Special to the Guardian)
 CHICAGO, Sept. 12—Hunted for 11 years for the $388,000 mail robbery at the Dearborn street railway station, Harold Watkins was under arrest today.
 Long ago he was indicted with the late "Big Tim" Murphy, Vincenzo Cosmano, "Handsome Jack" Barry and Peter Gensberg, but Watkins was never apprehended and in the intervening years the indictment was dismissed. Yesterday, however, he was found living on the south side and Benjamin Landis, assistant United States district attorney, said he would ask the Grand Jury to reinstate him.
 It was on April 6, 1921, that bandits staged a sensational raid on the postal section of the Dearborn street depot and escaped with $59,000 cash and Liberty bonds worth $329,000.
 The rest of the robbers indicted, were convicted and sent to prison.

The walls were restored with modern Georgian-style panelling, and the house is stated to be in perfect order for occupation as a private residence, hotel, a country club, nursing home, convent, or other institution.
 The society is looking for a tenant who will pay in rent the small sum that would provide a reasonable interest on the society's purchase money.

In design the house is unusual for its period. It stands quite square with three gables to each face. The chimneys are clustered, and there is a fine cupola above the centre of the roof. In 1927 most of the panelling of the house was stripped and sent to the United States, where $20,000 was paid for it. The walls were restored with modern Georgian-style panelling, and the house is stated to be in perfect order for occupation as a private residence, hotel, a country club, nursing home, convent, or other institution.
 The society is looking for a tenant who will pay in rent the small sum that would provide a reasonable interest on the society's purchase money.
