HOW A HOMER WAS SCORED ON A 2 FOOT PENT.

Baseball is filled with freak plays, ones that sometimes bring about seemingly impossible feats. Of course, there's a lot of fun in them when they go with the home team, but when they're against the home club you bet they're far from funny.

Whenever a bunch of ball players gets to talking baseball the subject often turns to freak plays of the diamond. One of the freakiest on record happened in Minneapolis some seasons ago.

The Minneapolis club has a little shortstop named Andy Oyler, who was a corking fielder, but wasn't much on heavy hitting. He was one of the smallest men in baseball, and, to make it worse, when he stood up to the plate he crouched all up in a knot. It was horrible on the pitchers to have to throw to Oyler.

One day Minneapolis was playing St. Paul. There was deadly rivalry between the teams and the game was for blood all the way through. It had rained the day before the game, and the ground was sopping wet. The base runners had floundered around like chickens with their feet tied, Minneapolis needed one run when little Oyler came to the bat.

Andy crouched down in his peculiar way, and the pitcher wound up.
Bing! He let a hot one go straight for Oyler's head. Andy ducked down, bending his knee and leaning his hat over his shoulder. The ball hit the hat a crack and every one at the park heard it.

Where the ball went no one knew.
It hadn't gone up in the air, for the St. Paul catcher was gazing around the sky and wishing for a telescope.
The first baseman was looking under the bag to see if the ball got stuck there, the pitcher was shouting unintelligible things at everybody, and the third baseman was accusing the umpire of standing on the ball. Every one on the St. Paul team was crazy mad.

What was Oyler doing? He was going like a streak of lightning around the bases. Some one on the bleachers yelled, "He's bot it in his pocket!"

When the second baseman on the St. Paul team heard that he started after Oyler, who had just rounded second on the dead run. Andy had the start, though, and he left the second baseman so far in the rear that people began advising him to hire a taxi. Oyler rounded third at top speed and pulled up at the home plate, scoring the winning run.

"What are you trying to do?" yelled the catcher. "Gimme that ball!"
"I ain't got the ball. There it is right in front of the plate. I got a home run on a ball that didn't go two feet."

Sure enough, there was the ball sticking right in the deep mud in front of the plate. It had gone off Oyler's hat so quickly that no one had seen it land but Oyler. The umpire, of course, had to allow the homer, for the ball had hit on fair ground.

A LITTLE MORE OF THE SAME

"There's many a true word spoken by accident," said F. Hopkinson Smith, the noted author and artist.

"You've heard about 'music and singing,' 'culture and women's clubs,' 'love and marriage,' and so on. Well, I saw an amusing example the other day. I dropped in at a picture sale that wasn't going very enthusiastically. The auctioneer displayed a daub and said:

"Now, ladies and gentlemen, what am I offered for this superb Velasquez, probably the best Velasquez that ever came from the master's hand?"

"There were no bids whatever, so the auctioneer took up another picture.

"Very well, ladies and gentlemen, he went on, 'I now offer you a Titian by the same artist.'"
