"My skin became very rough and pimples began to appear on my face. They were very large, hard and red, and were in blotches. The pimples itched and by scratching them I caused sore eruptions. They disfigured my face, and through scratching the pimples spread to my chest. The trouble lasted over two years, and I lost sleep on account of them. "A friend told me about Cuticura Soap and Ointment so I purchased some and I was completely healed, after using five cakes of the Soap and three boxes of the Ointment." Germans Must Acknowledge Jewish Athletes

VIENNA, June 5.—(A.P.)—Germany must recognize the equality of Jewish athletes or the 1936 Olympic games will be held elsewhere than Berlin, Brigadier General Charles Sherrill, United States delegate, declared today upon his arrival to participate in a meeting of the executive committee of the International Olympic committee.

The question of Germany's treatment of Jews will come up for discussion as soon as the committee meets, said the former Ambassador to Turkey, and the American delegation will lead a crusade against any discrimination in the Olympics.

It won't be enough, Sherrill said, if Germany permits Jews to represent other nations in the games. Jews must be free to represent Germany as well, he declared.

ALL-DA'Y ENSEMBLE MAKES ITS DEBUT

PARIS, June 5.—(A. P.)—An all-day ensemble has made its debut as the latest economy fashion.

In a year when many of the smartest women have slashed their wardrobe budgets in half, designers have created a new costume ready for any semi-formal occasion from luncheon to supper, simplicity is its first rule; dark colors the second.

The design most often used is that of a simple frock cut on semi-princess lines with a waistline only slightly marked, a hem nine inches from the floor and a bodice fashioned with cap sleeves which barely cover the shoulders. If worn with a waist length cape, below or three quarter length coat usually made of the same material, it is ready for the luncheon appointment or for street wear; without the coat, the costume is suitable for an informal dinner.

ANGEL WINGS STYLISH

PARIS, June 5.—Angel wings appear in 1933 styles for modish mortals when Schiaparelli launched her midseason collection showing "angel wing shoulders" on little evening jackets.

These innovations are curved pieces of fabric extending from the top of the shoulder to the shoulder blade. They stand straight out on the mannequin's back.

Among the models was a little waist length evening wrap of pearly blue crepe sprinkled with white blossoms, designed with angel wing shoulders, and worn with a white crepe evening frock.

Hookless, buttonless frocks pulled over the head were another feature of the display.

GENUINE TRUTH

One of the best ways of knowing whether we have ever found anything of genuine truth in any special theory of life is to see what happens when we, as it were, pull the theory out of us as a dentist might extract a tooth.

It leaves behind it a big, aching, impotent hole, we may generally know we have been unconsciously in touch with something very valuable, and the sooner we get back to it the better.—M.

NEW POLICY IS ANNOUNCED BY BRITAIN

Renounces the Old Policy of Turning the Other Cheek—Economic Warfare to be Promptly Met.

LONDON, June 5.—Great Britain "renounces the policy of turning the other cheek" in international economic warfare, Chancellor of the Exchequer Neville Chamberlain told the House of Commons last week.

He made this statement during debate on the world economic conference in reply to a plea by David Grenfell, Laborite, that the embargo against Russia and the tariffs on Irish Free State imports be lifted.

"When economic warfare has arisen between us and other countries, we must maintain that warfare as long as it is the other country which has taken the part of aggressor and is unwilling to make any reparations or restitution for the wrong it has done," Chamberlain declared.

"The government must stand up not merely for the legal and commercial rights of its people, but for the rights and securities of their persons.

"We cannot view with indifference attacks on our nationals in other countries when these attacks are really directed towards internal political conditions."

This assertion was interpreted as directed squarely against Russia with whom Britain is waging a bitter economic battle as a result of the famous Moscow espionage trial, which ended with imprisonment of two British citizens in a Soviet prison.

The War Debt Payments

Chamberlain then turned his attention to a statement by Grenfell urging that Britain avoid default of the June 15 debt instalment to America and at the same time bring the debt question before the world economic conference.

He said it would be impossible for the British to lay down rigid terms of what it expects the conference to accomplish, but he classified its main objectives under these three headings:

1. Price levels.
2. Currency considerations.
3. Abolition or reduction of trade barriers.

He maintained that prices could not be raised by monetary action alone. A revival of international trade is essential for this, he added, and is bound up with tranquillity and the general restoration of international good-will and confidence.

Declaring that Great Britain's ultimate aim is to return to the gold standard, the Chancellor maintained that "as far as I am able to judge there is only one standard which is familiar to everybody and which I think inspires confidence provided certain conditions are observed—it is, of course, the gold standard."

The Gold Standard

"Before we can go back to any gold standard—and I am not now suggesting that we can go back at any particular time—before we can go back to any parity of the gold standard we must be satisfied that practical means will be taken to insure that the gold standard will work and will not be subject to those defects which brought it to the ground not so very long ago."

The Chancellor said he saw some hope of "yielding in the rigidity of views on the necessity of quotas."

"Britain tried the experiment of leaving herself open to the importation of foreign goods while others built tariff walls," Mr. Chamberlain continued.

"The result nearly landed this country in disaster and there can be few now who would like to go back to the so-called free trade which existed two years ago."

"We do not desire to make tariffs of a prohibitive character and we are quite certain that the continual raising of these walls, until they formed no longer a check but a complete bar to the passing of trade over their tops, was a policy which has been injurious not only to the countries against whom these tariffs have been erected but, also to those who tried to be self-sufficient within their own walls."

PLANS FOR CAMPAIGN IN NOVA SCOTIA

Provincial Election To Take Place Sometime Between June 26 and Mid-Fall

(By Charles Bruce)

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)
HALIFAX, June 5.—(C.P.)—After five years of comparative peace in the counties, broken once by a Federal election and once by a single contest in Halifax, the lines are drawn again for a full-dress provincial balloting. Premier Gordon S. Harrington's government has given no indication as to when Nova Scotians will be called out to make their choice. Rumor has set the date all the way from June 26 to mid-fall. But already the campaign is gathering way.

The last provincial general election was held in 1928, when the Conservative government under Hon. E. N. Rhodes was returned, 23 to 20. Three years before, the Conservatives had won an overwhelming victory 40 to 3, their first in more than 40 years in Nova Scotia.

Premier Harrington, who is also Minister of Mines and Minister of Labor, will be heading the party as Premier in an election for the first time. He took over the administration in 1930.

Late in May, Opposition Liberal organizations under the leadership of Angus L. MacDonald who did not have a seat in the last assembly, had chosen 14 of the 30 men who will take the field for that party. Among them was Mr. MacDonald, young Halifax barrister, who will run in Halifax South, one of the five single ridings created from the five men at large constituency by the 1932 redistribution which reduced the provincial total from 38 to 30. His opponent there is Hon. George H. Murphy, M. D., Minister of Health and Education, who came into the house at a by-election three years ago.

Dr. Murphy is one of the eight government candidates already named. So far the government has been holding its fire somewhat in the matter of nominating conventions, centering activity in the five Halifax ridings. Russel McInnis, in Halifax Centre, is the only government candidate yet named who is not a member of the assembly at present. The others already chosen are the Premier, in Capt. Bretton South; Hon. J. F. Fraser, provincial secretary, in Halifax East; Dr. Murphy; Dr. A. McD. Morton in Halifax West; Hon. O. P. Goucher, Minister of Agriculture, in Annapolis; Dr. B. A. Leblanc in Richmond and L. W. Fraser in Guysborough.

Against Hon. J. F. Fraser the Liberals place Geoffrey Stevens, Dartmouth druggist. Gordon B. Isnor will run in Halifax North, for which the government has not yet chosen a man. Dr. J. L. Proudfoot is in the field in his present constituency of Inverness, Dr. G. R. Deveau in Richmond, D. B. McLeod in Victoria, A. A. Martell in Cape Breton West, Luke Daye in Cape Breton North, M. A. Patterson in Cape Breton South, J. D. McKenzie in Annapolis, and R. M. Irving in Queens.

Three cornered fights are assured in several of the Cape Breton ridings. In the East division it will be a four-way struggle, with James McLaughlin, veteran radical, coming out on a "united front" platform, and Wilbur McLeod representing the C. C. F. In Cape Breton South Daniel McKay is running as Independent Labor.

Premier Harrington has indicated that he will be in the thick of the fight. Cape Breton (Sydney) is his personal field.

The Government is expected to put considerable emphasis on its record of social legislation including mothers' allowances, establishment of a minimum wage for women, creation of health and labor departments, provision for a cancer clinic. And financial steward-

GEORGE REGINALD SHERREN

The funeral of the late George Reginald Sherrin, son of George and Pearl (Cann) Sherrin took place on Saturday, June 3rd at 2 o'clock. The deceased boy who was ten years of age, came to his death by accidental drowning on Wednesday evening May 31st. The particulars of the sad and sudden event have already appeared in the press. Such events call forth the greatest sympathy, and the bereaved family have received many words and other tokens of the heartfelt and affectionate regard of their friends and neighbours in this their time of sorrow. Their dear boy stood in very high esteem among his young friends and playmates, and in the home where love and affection rule, the thought and memory of him shall be cherished while life continues. The funeral was very largely attended. Rev. Ewen MacDougall conducted the services. He would turn the thoughts and the desires of the mourning family to the true source of all comfort, that their faith might be in the One who was able to call their boy into the eternal rest and love. Viewed thus the event was no accident, and their stricken hearts would find comfort in a perfect reconciliation to God's will. The 23rd Psalm and the 2nd Paraphrase were sung. The remains were laid to rest in the family plot in Argyle Shore Cemetery. The pallbearers were Gordon MacLean
