AN UNFORTUNATE GIRL.

She's never in a novel, And she can't get into fiction. For, though her face is fair, Her cheeks as pink as roses, Her teeth as white as pearls, The authors all ignore her, 'Cause her hair won't curl.

At the Races.

"Oh, George! How much do we win?" "About $6 worth of experience, I guess."—Chicago American.

The Answer Was Easy. The teacher was explaining to her pupils the use of the words senior and junior.

"Now, if John Smith had a son John Smith, they would call the son John Smith, Jr. The father would be John Smith, Sr. Now, supposing John Smith, Sr. had a grandson John Smith, can any one tell me what the grandson would be called?"

Promptly up went the hand of a boy on the front seat. "Well, Eddie?" said the teacher. "He'd be called John Smith, sophomore, ma'am."—New York Times.

Cratty. Mrs. Testy—I don't know how it is, Bridget, but it looks as though you took pleasure in breaking dishes that cannot be duplicated. Bridget—It's not pleasure, mum, but common sense. If a dish can't be duplicated, as you call it, of course you can't expect me to replace it when I have broken it.—Boston Transcript.

A Reproof. "It strikes me that this is about the slowest railroad in the country," said the impatient tourist. "I knew you were going to kick," replied the conductor genially, "as soon as you asked for a time table. You are one of these people who believe everything they see in print."—Washington Star.

The Mistake About That Rib. Little James loved to attend Sunday school and was always ready to answer questions. The teacher asked: "What happened to Adam's rib?" "He gave it to Eve," quickly spoke James. "Cause he know'd there was a mistake—ladies should always be served first."—New York Times.

Bought Out. "Come now, Johnnie, say your speech for the gentleman and I'll give you a penny." "Really, mother," replied Johnnie, "should like to oblige you, but the gentleman has already given me a dollar to keep quiet!"—Atlanta Constitution.

He Seemed No More. "He (after a tiff)—Going home to your mother, eh?" "She—Yes, I am." "He—Hub! What do you suppose she'll say to you?" "She—She'll say, 'I told you so.'" (He made up).—New York Weekly.

Safely Out of It. "Jinks says that he has been very successful in love." "I don't see how he makes that out. He has been married to three women." "But that isn't the way he puts it. He says he's been divorced from three women."—Town Talk.

Bowed Out. "Hello, old man!" exclaimed Boreas as he meandered into Busby's office. "I just dropped in to kill time." "Sorry," answered Busby, "but I haven't any time I want killed. Good morning."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Still Unsettled. "Yes, Bliggums has at last settled down. I saw him with a baby carriage awhile ago." "What! But Bliggums has not settled up. I saw the bill for the baby carriage."—Baltimore News.

Notes

The modern world, having plunged into a civilization which, with its factories and railroads, seems to promise a continual crescendo of noise, has at last discovered a fact which the medieval world was fortunately unable to discover. This fact is that pleasing and deafening noises prolonged through the twenty-four hours are not only offensive to the ear, but injurious to the health. It becomes necessary therefore for the modern world to combat loud noise just as it combats heavy smoke and poisonous odors.—Chicago Tribune.

Louise—He is such a manly man! Mary—What do you mean by that? Louise—Why, he dresses well, you know, and smokes a pipe, and reads that sort of thing.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Not yet. My doctor has advised me to be careful.—Atlanta Constitution.

Are You Bilious? Blame the Liver.

Secrets of the Common Ills of Life Due to Disorders of the Liver and Curable by the Use of DR. CHASE'S Kidney-Liver Pills

If you are bilious, blame the liver. If your digestion is impaired and you suffer from headache and dizzy spells, blame the liver. If your bowels are irregular, constipation and looseness alternating, blame the liver. If you have pain under the shoulder blades, feelings of fullness after meals, aching limbs, a yellow, muddy complexion, blame the liver.

Though bile, which the healthy liver filters from the blood, is nature's cathartic and is necessary to healthful and regular action of the bowels, it is poison when left in the blood and gives rise to many distressing symptoms. The use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills promptly cures torpid liver and biliousness, and because of their combined action on liver, kidneys and bowels, ensure a thorough cleansing of the system.

There is probably no one organ responsible for so many ills as the liver. Over-eating, excessive drinking or irregular meals are very likely to upset the action of the liver, overload the system with bile and bring on biliousness or sick headache. Keep the liver in health by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and you will avoid many of the common ills of life. There will then be no constipation, no stomach troubles, no danger of kidney and urinary derangements.

The position which Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills hold to-day as the leading family medicine is undoubtedly due to their wonderfully prompt action on the liver and their combined effect on the kidneys and bowels. There is no medicine obtainable which is more useful in cases of emergency when the digestive, urinary or excretory systems are deranged than this great prescription of Dr. A. W. Chase. One pill a dose, 25 cents a box, at all dealers of Edman's, Bates & Co., Toronto. To protect you against imitations, the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box.

is now open for the Fall and Winter Course and invites all who wish to secure a sound, practical, business training. Since last term every department has been strengthened, many new Typewriting machines secured and one thousand feet of Tipping capacity added. Students are assured of the very best in Business Education that a long experience and first-class teachers can give. No other college in the province has better facilities, and the student has the satisfaction of attending a college thoroughly established in the confidence of those who employ skilled labor. It is no experiment. Our graduates are almost everywhere (enjoying good positions) and are always anxious to assist a O.B.C. in getting employment. NOW is the time to enter for a FULL or PARTIAL course. Some tide and opportunity wait for no man. Should a position present itself to you to-morrow are you qualified to fill it? If not, is it wiser to delay getting an education such as can be had at the Charlottetown Business College. Consult your interests by writing or applying. Ask for full information to L. B. MILLER, Principal.

A Third Thought

ADVERTISING IS THE BEST KIND OF ADVERTISING. The only lastingly helpful advertising that a dealer can do for his goods and his store is to tell of the trading opportunities he offers. If the trading opportunity is a trading advantage like that coming from the sale of Reid's Tryon Tweeds, the telling of this advantage—making it the feature of his advertising, will easily put him above the level of his competitors, who have to handle imported goods with heavy duties added, and freights and which do not give half the satisfaction that the Island Tweeds give and are much higher in price than Reid's. He will surely outsell them in the tweed line. Wearer's of Reid's Home-made Tweeds will endorse this statement, and many other interested inquirers will become attached customers of the store that handles this grade of goods. They will also buy of the other good things offered for sale, for they will reason that the merchant who offers them such a thing, which is the best of his kind, will probably have the business wit to offer other good things too. Mr. Merchant, always encourage Home Manufacture, and bear in mind that we want every pound of wool from your district. We are always willing to pay the highest price in cash or trade. Tryon Woolen M'fg. Co., LIMITED.
