Dr. Coady Honored By Boston College

(C. P. by Guardian's Special Wire)

BOSTON, June 10—Rev. M. M. Coady, of the extension department of St. Francis Xavier University, Antigonish, N. S., was guest of honor at a Canadian Club luncheon here today.

Dr. Coady spoke on his work in co-operative development and adult education. In the former field his university has been so prominently associated with co-operatives their principles have become internationally known as the Antigonish movement.

Boston College honored Dr. Coady for his development work by presenting an honorary doctorate of laws at its convocation this week.

Among guests at the luncheon were speakers Horace T. Cahill of the Massachusetts House of Representatives, T. P. Pringle, local representative of the Canadian National Railways, George Montgomery, Boston manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia, and Prof. Ray Davis, dean of Boston University's college of business administration.

Change In Rules For Election-result Publication Mooted

(C. P. by Guardian's Special Wire)

OTTAWA, June 10—The House of Commons special committee on electoral matters agreed today that it is unfair voters in Western Canada should go to the polls in a general election knowing the trend of results in the east.

Members believed people like to vote for the winners and that many voters, especially in Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia, were influenced by reports of voting in the east.

By unanimous vote the committee adopted a resolution opposing the publication of any Federal election results until the polls have closed in all parts of Canada. There were three chief suggestions as to how this might be done and the committee members will ponder them before going into the details of how their decision is to be incorporated in the Election Act now being revised.

The three suggestions were:

That polls should close at the same time in all parts of Canada.

That counting of the ballots should be delayed until the same time.

That election officers should be bound to keep results a secret until all polls in Canada were closed.

Five time zones in Canada allow for a difference of four hours between British Columbia and the Maritimes. Voters on the west coast may go to the polls knowing how some voters in the Maritime Provinces have voted.

Maritime members agreed that it is desirable to keep eastern results from influencing western voters but there were some doubts expressed that Maritime voters would wait four hours to hear results which would be if the present hours of polling remain and secrecy is insisted on.

CHARGES GROSS

In this case they were the latter. Mr. Bradette demanded withdrawal and Speaker Sanderson ruled the word "impertinent" unparliamentary.

"Then I say they were not pertinent," said Mr. Bennett.

"I have never been called ignorant before. I demand that that word be withdrawn too," said Mr. Bradette.

"I say the honorable gentleman is lacking in learning. The word 'ignorant' is withdrawn," said Mr. Bennett.

As soon as Mr. Bennett had taken his seat Arthur Beaubien (Lib. Provencher) rose and said Mr. Bennett assumed a "holier than thou attitude" and sought to give the House a lecture of political morals. He was simply a "hypocrite."

Mr. Sanderson again intervened and the word was withdrawn. Mr. Beaubien continued: "I say it was the leader of the opposition who started bribery in 1930."

Again Mr. Sanderson intervened and the word "bribery" was withdrawn. Mr. Beaubien then proceeded to read newspaper reports of election statements made by Mr. Bennett in 1930.

Some of Mr. Bennett's statements concerning works at Kingston were:

1. Supplies resulting from the demolition of relief camps were stored in a large warehouse and removed, no one knew where.

2. Some 25 cans of white lead were taken away in the night.

3. The storekeeper was dismissed but was appointed to a position under the Ontario Government on the recommendation of A.E. Stansbury, president of the Liberal Association.

4. Stone belonging to the Government was used by Mr. Stansbury on the improvement of his garage.

5. The Frith Construction Company had a contract for work at Fort Henry and also one for the erection of a building at Queen's University, for which cement was supplied by the Ontario Government.

6. Some cement shipped in a certain car, of which Mr. Bennett gave the number, was taken to the University building and some to Fort Henry.

7. Empty cement bags from the University building were taken to Fort Henry.

OTTAWA, June 10—Prime Minister Mackenzie King, resuming tonight the debate on patronage, said he knew nothing of the request of Arthur Beaubien (Lib. Provencher) for tabling of a letter written Opposition Leader Bennett, then Prime Minister, before the last election by Ralph Webb, party leader in Manitoba. Mr. Beaubien's action was entirely his own. He was referring to Mr. Bennett's suggestion Mr. Beaubien acted as a mouthpiece for the Prime Minister. Mr. Bennett had said the Webb letter was private and confidential.

"It looks more to me like a circular letter," the Prime Minister said, observing that copies had been sent to three other ministers of the Crown, Messrs. Gordon, Lawson and Manion.

Mr. Bennett's charges of patronage were nothing, the Prime Minister said, "when you have a Prime Minister and his colleagues conspiring together to see how three constituencies can be won by means of money appropriated for relief. That's the kind of thing we should look into."

Mr. Bennett had said he was "watching Kingston" to see if Mr. Rogers would be able to destroy the political machine or if it would destroy him. "Yet when he was Prime Minister himself he was conspiring with his colleagues to oil and give power to a machine to destroy the free will of the people of Manitoba."

In Manitoba in 1935 the people, suffering distress of the depression, had been "buoyed up" by promise of work when all the time the Government did not propose to go through with these projects, Premier King claimed.

"In all the history of the Canadian parliament never has there been so disgraceful an exposure of corruption and bribery."

"What about Beauharnois?" Mr. Bennett shouted above the cheers that rocked the chamber.

"He asks about Beauharnois," Mr. Mackenzie King shouted back, "when he sits in a cabinet as Prime Minister and does something infinitely worse than what was done by those who were not members of parliament."

W. A. Walsh (Con. Mount Royal) expressed regret at the trend the debate was taking and chided both sides.

"When I think," he said, "what one government has done in the past and what one is doing now, I wonder what the people of Canada will think when they read the newspapers tomorrow."

Mr. Rogers denied charges made by Mr. Bennett. There had been no political interference in the allotting of contracts. Two of the sub-contracts on the Fort Henry job went to Conservatives. Employees on the work were hired by the contractors for the men registered with the employment service.

Defence Minister Ian MacKenzie, whose name had been mentioned several times in Mr. Bennett's afternoon speech and who had crossed swords with the opposition leader on numerous points of order, entered the fray and dared the Conservative opposition to bring its charges before a committee of the House.

UNEARTH CANOES 2,000 YEARS OLD

NOTTINGHAM, England, June 10 —(CP) —Two canoes used by ancient Britons before the birth of Julius Ceaser have been added to the collection of Nottingham Castle Museum after their accidental discovery in the bed of the River Trent.

The prehistoric craft, estimated by experts to be between 2000 and 3,000 years old, were found by men operating a dredge. Both were buried in the river mud and were well preserved. They are dugouts made from oak logs. One contains seven seats, the other eight.

The largest is 27 feet long, two feet, nine inches wide and 17 inches deep. With the canoes workmen raised several pieces of ancient bronze.

Occurrence of good supplies of tin in Britain was one of the reasons leading to the first invasion in 55 B. C. by Roman forces under Julius Caesar. Tin and copper are the main ingredients of bronze.

Borden and Vicinity

Behind the eight hit pitching of young Bill McAleer. The Borden Terraplanes eased out a 11-10 victory over Kinkora. The large crowd that stood out all afternoon in a down-pore of rain to watch the game shouted their appreciation and went home keenly satisfied. It certainly looks as if Baseball is due for a big come-back in this part of the country if the boy's and fans continued to show their interest. It is hoped to see this team in the Island playdowns this fall. The Terraplanes are all juniors, and have lots of time to learn. With a decent outfit and a little coaching and practice, they should show a lot of improvement when they play Kinkora in Kinkora

Jane Withers Delights Large Audience At Capitol, S'Side

Fast, furious and frolicsome is the 20th Century Fox Picture "45 Fathers" starring Jane Withers which appeared at the Capitol, Summerside, last evening.

The laughter provoking picture is interspersed with little bits of tenderness and romance, which makes it a truly delightful production for young and old. As well as the lovable Jane, the cast includes Thomas Beck, Louise Henry and the inimitable Hartmans, eccentric ventriloquists and Broadway exponents of the dance.

This highly amusing screen play by Frances Hyland and Albert Ray based on a story by Mary Bickel, first finds Jane with the Hartmans, aboard a vessel bound for New York where she is to be adopted by the members of a millionaire explorer's club of which her father was a member.

A series of hilarious situations get under way when the inseparable trio, after arriving in New York, find their way to the club thrown into an uproar as Jane goes on a riotous rampage.

Taken by Richard Carle, "Lucky" winner in the drawing, to his nephew's home, Jane, in spite of her uproarious antics, takes time out to study the interest of Louise Henry, an attractive but scheming society girl, in Thomas Beck, and proceeds to rescue him from the entanglement.

With the audience limp from laughter, the picture rises to still greater heights of merriment when it reaches the climax in which Jane, aided and abetted by the Hartmans, throws a heart-balm trial into a carnival of laughter by exposing the snobbish society schemers with wild ventriloquistic tricks.

The picture was directed by James Tinling with John Stone associate producer.—S
