Sporting Comment

With respect to Phil McDonald's training in Toronto, Captain Cornelius, head coach for Canada's 1924 track team, has kept his word as McDonald left Rothesay Saturday morning for the Queen city, where he will be during the remainder of his training, under the personal supervision and instruction of the "Cap" himself. Great things are expected from McDonald and if Cornelius can't make another Earl Thompson out of Phil it won't be for the want of good sound coaching and advice.

Barney Francis our fleet-footed and heady miler has arrived in Rothesay for training and latest reports have it that Francis is in the best possible condition for a strenuous training campaign. Although Barney's record time made at the Canadian championship's last fall is much slower than that which is expected for an Olympic miler, who knows, he may yet under good coaching make the grade.

Milers that start at Paris this summer have got to negotiate the distance in 4.11 or better in order to finish among the leaders, therefore Francis time of 4.32 1-5 looks very insignificant in comparison. But nevertheless in justice to the local Indian we may say that he has never had the advantage of expert coaching over the distance: the only teacher Barney ever had was experience supplemented by natural ability and a courageous heart. Francis is getting his chance now and all that remains to be said at the present time is—time will tell.

The most fascinating thing about sport is not always the game. To one who has followed sport there is often a greater attraction in the crowd. Take your bull-throated baseball fan for instance. Watch the fan in full cry when he is on his native heath—the front row benches, and observe him. You will get a kick out of his battle cries, his general references, and his hearty antipathy to the umpire sometimes far greater than the ringing crash of oak and ball, the snappy repartee of coaches, or the occasional work afield. Your true sport fan gets as much out of observation of the crowd as he does out of the game.

FASCINATION IN OBSERVATION

Of all crowds that which goes to a race track is the most fascinating. There is fun in abundance if one can station himself for a few minutes near a wicket and observe the women as they pick their steed then watch them march boldly up to nuzzle the man-lading out the pasteboards, and generally accepting his advice as to the chances of this, that or the other equine. Note them after they have picked a long shot by a color or a name, and listen intently to their hysterical shrieks as the horses charge down the stretch in that last dash. Watch the men more methodical, but none the less changeable, looking intently at the mutual boards which mean little or much as the case may be. Mingle in the arguments that rage about the merits and demerits of certain horses. Take a tout for a ride occasionally and note their consternation when you get off the line. There is more fun at a race track and more insight into human nature than in any other sport. The race game has its Jack Keefes as much as baseball. Some time when you have the chance listen in on a dice game between the disky stable boys. There is a bundle of laughter and a study in temperament well worth the while. There is a chance to make or lose money at the race track but apart from that there is joy and laughter, comedy and tragedy, humor and heartbreaks.

THE GUARDIAN STILTS RACE

League of the Cross Band Will Furnish Lively Music During The Races.

All our stilters are gone and some one hundred boys have been made happy in the ownership of a nice pair of "tite-locks." The boys are now busily engaged in getting accustomed to their free gift in preparation for the big race on the lower part of Prince of Wales College Grounds on Monday evening, June 2nd at 7 o'clock sharp.

It is gratifying to the Guardian management to have the boys show such keen interest in this first attempt at promoting a stilters race in Charlottetown. The race is going over big is already assured; the boys in large numbers are to be seen daily on the squares, streets and on the course picked out for the race, getting acquainted with the use of their new "speed legs" and all are seemingly confident that they will be among the winners of one of the Guardian's big prizes.

The citizens of Charlottetown are due for one of the most entertaining evenings yet put on in the city, everybody will have a good chance to see the races, without crowding the contestants or blocking the progress of the races in any way.

The grown-ups who have not outgrown their childhood-days and there are few if any in Charlottetown will be on hand to show the boys they are really interested in their welfare and help to boost some new blood in the line of athletics.

The Guardian Staff had a great time giving the stilters away, now you come to the Prince of Wales College Grounds Monday evening, June 2nd and have a great time seeing the boys use the stilters in real good competition for real good prizes.

List of officials will be published shortly.
