France Wakens From Dream

peasant and bourgeois populations, as the British people have accepted enormous burdens of war taxation, France would have been able permanently to submerge Germany and restore the prestige of the age of Louis XIV. But it is too late for that now. France has wasted her strength.

The political of the Quay d'Orsay in foreign fields has been admirably executed and showed farseeing vision of France's future needs. Had that policy been accompanied by financial strength at home, France would have made herself the dominant continental power for generations to come. Every advantage was hers. Germany could make no countermove. But it is impossible for a nation facing bankruptcy at home to counter-act the fall of the franc.

The fall of the franc alone has prevented the French people from being militantly led into world power. The peasants and bourgeois classes of France have never been interested in imperialism; but there are upper classes who dream of nothing else. The latter can carry their policies through only if they are financially successful. In this they have failed, and that is what will hinder henceforth will be able to deal with an increasingly chastened France.

Common Sense Coming

The righting of Europe is not far off. The Europeans have had to wait until France proved to her own satisfaction that either she could or she could not dominate in international relations. It is now being proven that domination must fall. Therefore, as soon as the French people have completely adjusted themselves to this new situation, common sense will begin to prevail in Europe's councils.

The reaction of France to the failure of her post war international ambitions will take some time to make itself felt. France has climbed to a great height, and the view has been heady. It is necessary to make an entire readjustment. France will have to recognize that she is entitled to an international position only commensurate with the number of her population and their capacity to pay their way in the world.

The financial abyss into which Germany has fallen will be far more dangerous for France. The Germans are double the number of Frenchmen and have more than double France's industrial capacity. The French people instinctively know this. They will not allow the farce, therefore, to follow the mark. Before that happens they will accept whatever terms the world decides are just.

Call Firemen to Save Baby

EVERETTE, Feb. 28.—The American Magazine story, in which a young mother describes how her two-year-old child was snatched from death after he had locked himself in the bathroom where gas was flowing from an unlighted jet, has a parallel in the experience of two-year-old Freddie Reed of Everett. Playing with the bolt on the bathroom door in the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Reed, of 151 Broadway, Everett, yesterday, Freddie locked himself in and though his mother tried to explain how he could unbolt the door, the child was too young to understand. Finally the boy's mother telephoned the Everett central fire station and a ladder was sent to the Reed residence. Climbing up to the second-story window, a fireman went inside and found Freddie sitting comfortably upon the floor, laughing. He unbolted the door and placed the little fellow in the mother's arms. (Mr. and Mrs. Reed formerly resided in this city having moved to Everett last fall.)

Bavarian Revenge Shown in Court

(British United Press.) MUNICH, Feb. 28.—Revenge against France was one of the strong motives behind the bear cellar Putsch, Colonel Kriebel testified at a resumed hearing today in the trial of General Ludendorff on a charge of treason. The hearing was delayed by Ludendorff's automobile breaking down enroute to court.

Kriebel snarlingly told the court he vowed he would get even with France and Belgium for the treatment of him and others at Spa during the day of the armistice. He revealed details of the Bavarian secret armed organizations, but insisted that the public first be excluded and the court agreed.

Like earlier witnesses, Kriebel condemned Von Kahr as the chief conspirator "double-crosser." He admitted he had been active trying to get Austria joined to Bavaria.

"In all these states the homicide rate is less than four per 100,000 of the population. The rate is the lowest of all in Maine, which abolished capital punishment in 1876. I think these facts sufficiently show that abolition does not mean an increased number of murders."

IN MEMORIAM

MRS. JOHN H. MCGREGOR

The relatives and friends in Canada were pained to learn of the death in Jacksonville, Florida, on Saturday, 16th inst. at 10 o'clock of Mrs. John H. McGregor, wife of John Hamilton McGregor at the age of 39 years. Both were natives of Kingsboro, P. E. I. In 1905 they went to Vancouver where they resided 12 years. The climate not agreeing with Mrs. McGregor they came East and resided in Moncton until some time in November last when they went to the South for the winter in the hope that the sunny South would be beneficial to her health and with their two boys located at Jacksonville, Florida, where she gradually grew worse.

All that medical skill and the care of a loving husband and friends could do, failed to bring relief to her and her spirit passed to Him who gave it, in the full assurance of a life beyond where there is no sorrow or pain. She was the youngest daughter of the late John McDonald of Kingsboro and leaves to cherish her memory her mother, Mrs. Mary Jane McDonald and one brother, Barton of Kingsboro. Frank McDonald, C. N. R., Lucerne, B. C., Edith, wife of John T. Stewart, Vancouver and Amanda, wife of E. D. Fraser, North Lake, and her husband and two sons in Jacksonville.

Her loving disposition and pleasant smile won her many friends wherever she went. Early in her life she gave herself to Christ and united with the Christian Church and lived a devoted Christian life to its close, and it may be truly said of her "she hath done what she could." To know her was to love and admire her many christian qualities.

The funeral was from the Moulton & Klye chapel, Rev. J. F. Boone pastor of the First Christian Church conducted the service. The body was placed in the receiving vault in the Evergreen Cemetery awaiting word from friends as to its disposition.

(Canadian Press) ST. JOHN, N. B., Feb. 28.—Fire exacted a terrible toll last night at a little farm house of Adelard Savoie, at Mattempeque, a village eight miles from Caraque, Gloucester County, N. B., according to a telephone message received this afternoon. Four children and a maid lost their lives when the flames broke out in the little home. Mrs. Savoie and infant son were rescued. The father was spending the evening away from home, but noticed the red sky in the direction of his home and with two other men hastened to the house. The flames spread rapidly and though every effort possible was made to save the children and maid, it was futile.

Mrs. Savoie was awakened by the flames and grabbing her infant effected escape from the house and placing the baby in the barn, attempted to rescue the other children, but was unable to break through the flames. The cause of the fire is unknown as
