most effective and most economical. However odd it may appear, resort has been had to a distillation furnace originally designed for the handling of lignite coals. Such a graduated oven or retort now is being completed at Salome by its inventor, S. M. Darling of the United Bureau of Maine. The material, chopped into half-inch pieces, is subjected to a heat of 1400 degrees Fahrenheit and the volatile matter collected as formed.

The distilled material precipitated has many elements of value. Most important is a heavy gum, veritable rubber, that already has been tested for many uses. It vulcanizes as does rubber, but hangs to fabric better. In Los Angeles it has been used for automobile tires and found good, though rather too expensive for the purpose. Success was attained, in Indianapolis, in its use for waterproofing army equipment, for which it was found rather better than rubber. It makes an excellent insulation material. High value attaches to its use in waterproofing concrete, as is needed in the making of concrete ships. This is not new, however, for South American Indians use a similar gum for making tight the reed "balsas" in which they navigate the Andean lakes. Besides the gum, distillation yields a good percentage of wood alcohol, creosote and several wood acids.

Mr. Darling believes that value also will be found in the creosote bush, Larrea Mexicana, usually misnamed "greasewood." This plant is the commonest of all Arizona desert shrubs. We know when the fates are against us, we know when we're losing a fight. But we don't seem to know, as the days come and go, when everything's really all right.

MAKING A DESERT PLANT YIELD RICHES

PHOENIX, Arizona, Nov. 26.—Large commercial value has been found in the ocotillo, "Coachman's Whip," or candlewood, botanically known as Fouquieria splendens, a plant of columnar green stalks, of flaming red flowering found on tens of thousands of Arizona acres, generally where foothills break upon the rocky detrital deposits that lead down to the plains. The plant has had no practical use in the past, save as fencing by Mexicans the resultant hedge most beautiful in the time of flowering. It is of very slow growth the average matured plant probably having a life of 40 years, till its growth is such that it is blown over by the wind, for its roots are small. Some plants have been found even 16 feet in height.

The first utilization of the ocotillo now is in progress at Salome, a station on the Arizona & California Railroad, 90 miles northwest of Phoenix. In a district notable for the growth of the desert shrub. For a year the ocotillo Products Company has been experimenting on processes for practicing the gum of the plant. Though a relative degree of success was secured by the solvent method with distillate or gasoline, this plan has been rejected and distillation has been adopted as

A Sure Method

Two sailors at a dog show were gazing at a valuable Skye terrier, which had so much hair that it looked more like a woolen mat than a dog. "What end is 'is 'ead, Tom?" asked one.

"Blowed if I know," was the reply "but, 'ere, I'll stick a pin in him, and you look which end barks!"—London Bightly.

SWITCH OFF!

Put aside the Salts, Oil, Calomel, or Pills and take "Cascarets."

Are you keeping your bowels, liver, and stomach clean, pure, and fresh with Cascarets, or merely whipping them into action every few days with Salts, Cathartic Pills, Oil, or Purgative Waters?

Stop having a bowel wash-day. Let Cascarets gently cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour and fermenting food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the colon and bowels all the constipated waste matter and poisons so you can straighten up.

Cascarets tonight will make you feel great by morning. They work while you sleep—never gripe, sicken, or cause any inconvenience, and cost so little too.

PILES

Do not suffer another day with itching, bleeding, or protruding Piles. No surgical operation required.

Dr. Chase's Ointment will relieve you at once and as certainly cure you. 50c. a box; all dealers, or Edman, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Sample box free if you mention this paper and enclose 2c. stamp to pay postage.
