Argentina To Halt U. K. Meat Shipments

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 25.—(AP)—Trade sources said Saturday Argentine officials have halted the issuing of permits for shipment of meat to England. They expressed belief the step was due to Argentine fears over the future value of the pound sterling in the light of French efforts to devalue the franc.

Argentina is paid in blocked sterling for meat. The trade informants said Argentina had asked a guarantee that future shipments be made in pounds of the present value.

If COUGHING Hurts Get RELIEF—This Way

Work Of Public Health Nurse For S' Side District

The following is a brief report of the work of the Public Health Nurse for Summerside and surrounding district for the year 1947.

Jan. 31st. School Work. 2198 school children were examined.

88 per cent of them were found to have apparent physical defects. 1128 children, or 51 per cent, had cavities in permanent teeth.

34 per cent were found to have defects other than teeth only, of which 148 had defective vision, 31 had defective hearing, 186 had abnormal tonsils.

564 defects found at previous inspections had been corrected, which shows the great concern on the part of parents in looking after the health of their children.

For the first time, parents of Grade I children in Summerside were invited to be present at the time of the examination of their children. In Rural Schools parents are always invited to be present. 183 mothers or fathers availed themselves of the opportunity of discussing the health or behaviour problems of their children with the public health nurse.

31 per cent of the nurse's time was spent in school work.

Feb. 7th. Infant Welfare. Baby Clinics were held each week in Summerside throughout the year and were very well attended.

Two new baby clinics were commenced in the Fall, to be of assistance to Rural Mothers, one in Albany and one in Wellington, and a third is to start in January in Kensington. At these clinics during the year 166 babies and preschool children made regular visits for health supervision. 358 visits were made to the clinics, 306 of them by infants under 1 year.

Communicable Disease Prevention.

Isolation Clinics were held in Summerside to protect children against diphtheria and whooping cough. These clinics were conducted by the local physicians assisted by the Public Health Nurse. Small pox vaccination clinics were conducted by Dr. B.C. Keeping, Chief Medical Officer of Health. The numbers of children treated were:

Inoculated against diphtheria and whooping cough—100; Inoculated against diphtheria alone—38; Inoculated against whooping cough alone—34.

Children receiving reinforcing doses against diphtheria—410.

Children receiving reinforcing doses against diphtheria and Whooping cough—16.

Smallpox vaccinations in 2 schools in Summerside, 10 schools in Queen's County, 69 schools in Prince County.

Total—2031.

With the exception of Summerside, Dr. Keeping did this great number of vaccinations unassisted by a nurse.

Feb. 14. Tuberculosis. Chest Clinics were held monthly in Summerside by Dr. P. A. Creelman. Several additional clinics were held throughout the district to follow up patients found to have abnormal chest conditions by the mobile X-Ray Unit.

Pneumothorax clinics which were commenced in the Fall of 1946 were continued weekly or twice weekly during the year. 241 treatments were given by the Public Health Nurse.

B.C.G. Vaccination against Tuberculosis: During the Summer and Fall about a month of concentrated work was done assisting with B.C.G. vaccination in about 45 families in Summerside and Miscouche. The results were very gratifying and it is hoped that the individual vaccinated will be 75 per cent less apt to contract tuberculosis.

Dr. Stewart of Dalhousie University assisted Dr. Creelman in this study.

Home Visits: To assist the nurse who is in charge of tuberculosis field work for the whole province, the district Public Health Nurse made 107 visits to tuberculosis patients and 515 visits to members of the families in contact with tuberculosis.

Home visits to other than tuberculosis cases. In the interest of Health Education 1283 visits were made to the homes. Among these were: 57 visits to infants; 98 visits to pre-school children; 256 visits to school children; 51 visits to crippled children; 286 visits to Doctors, Dentists, School Trustees, Members of Women's Institutes, Catholic Women's League, and other organizations.

21 per cent of the nurse's time was spent in making home visits.

Feb. 21. Crippled Children's Clinics. Under the auspices of the Red Cross Society, and with great assistance from the Rotary Club, three clinics for crippled children were held in Summerside by Dr. B. A. Keir of Halifax. He examined about 186 children and adults, applied plaster casts and performed several operations. In addition to the work done here several of our children were taken to the Children's Hospital in Halifax for extensive surgery. 24 per cent of the nurse's time was spent in all types of clinics.

Feb. 21. Dental Clinics. Although the Provincial Department of Health and Welfare is willing to assist any municipality wishing to hold a dental clinic, Summerside is the only municipality in this district which avails itself of the opportunity.

At the Summerside clinic, conducted by all of the Summerside dentists who gave six half days each, during 1947, 130 children were treated, and made 227 visits. The work done on these children was 283 fillings of permanent teeth, 55 extractions of deciduous teeth, 24 prophylaxis.

The work of the public health nurse in this regard was in inspecting the teeth of the children in school and making appointments.

The report concludes: "Although the area served by one nurse is very large, and includes 100 schools with 177 classrooms, and although visits are not made often enough because of shortage of time, still I feel that much is accomplished, and many mothers are helped over difficulties because of the Public Health Nurse's willingness to share her knowledge with them."

Indian River C.W.L. Meeting

The regular monthly meeting of the Indian River C.W.L. was held in the church vestry on Sunday afternoon, January 18. Mrs. B.C. McLellan was in the chair and opened the meeting with prayer. The secretary, Mrs. Gertrude McLellan read the minutes of the last meeting.

A letter was read from the convener of lay retreats, Mrs. W.J. Sullivan. Several letters of thanks for Christmas boxes received were read. Mrs. Daniel Noonan expressed her appreciation for a letter of sympathy received on the death of her mother. The president announced that a spiritual bouquet would be presented to the chaplain, Father McDonald, on the occasion of his silver jubilee.

A letter had been received from the superior of the Orphanage regarding the two children from this parish placed in the orphanage. After some discussion it was decided to contribute $10.00 monthly to their support.

Other charitable work was discussed and approved by the chaplain.

The funds of the branch were augmented since last meeting by the proceeds of a card party held at the home of Mrs. Edgar Hickey. The meeting adjourned and was followed by Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament. — K.

Mayhew-McLeod, Wedding

A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of the bride on Wednesday evening, Dec. 31st, 1947, when Myrtle Mary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. McLeod, Breadalbane, became the bride of Wendell Leith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Mayhew, Westmorland. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. W. B. MacPhail in the presence of immediate relatives and friends of the contracting parties.

The bride entered the parlor on the arm of her father by whom she was given in marriage. The room was tastefully decorated for the occasion.

The young bride looked charming in a floor length gown of white satin, tight fitted, beaded bodice with sweetheart neckline, full skirt with length veil with coronet of orange blossoms and carried a bouquet of American beauty roses. Her bridesmaid, Miss Dorothy MacRae, close friend of the bride wore a floor length gown of pale blue embroidered net, finger tip veil, with coronet of blue flowers and carried a nosegay bouquet of pink and white asters.

The groom was ably supported by his cousin Mr. Myron Matheson. The bride's mother wore a street length dress of Robin-egg blue with corsage of Tallman roses. The groom's mother wore a tailored suit of navy blue with bright blue accessories and a corsage of yellow roses.

After the signing of the register and congratulations had been extended by those present the bridal party repaired to the dining room where a delicious wedding supper was served. The dining room was decorated in pink and white. The table was centered by a four tier wedding cake.

The toast to the bride was proposed by Rev. Mr. MacPhail and responded to by the groom.

In charge of the refreshments were Mrs. Wm. Graham, Mrs. Guyler Matheson and Mrs. Arthur Newson. Those serving were Miss Mary Morrison and Miss Annie MacDonald. After supper a group of jolly serenaders arrived to extend their congratulations to the happy pair.

The following morning Mr. and Mrs. Mayhew left on a short honeymoon trip to Saint John. On their return they will reside at Craupaud where the groom is operating a successful radio and bicycle business. A host of friends join in wishing them a long and happy wedded life.

Prior to her marriage Myrtle was tendered a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Graham at which she received many useful gifts, besides a substantial sum of money. Myrtle thanked her neighbors and friends for their gifts and good wishes also Mr. and Mrs. Graham for the use of their home, after which a pleasant evening was spent in luncheon was served by the ladies.

Bedeque United Church

The History of a Methodist Circuit in Prince Edward Island

Tracing its Roots in the Cultural, Educational and Commercial Fields of the Community.

By E. S. D.

The first Presbyterian minister to settle on the Island was Rev. John Urquhart of the Church of Scotland who, coming in 1800, made Princetown his headquarters. He organized a congregation which, including Bedeque on the south, extended from Cavendish on the East to Lud thirteen on the West. This congregation was governed by an elected body of elders who, though drawn from various parts of the congregation, exercised their office in the different churches of the congregation without regard to the district they represented. Of the eleven original members of this very first Prince Edward Island Session four were Bedeque loyalists whose names should be remembered: Alexander Anderson, Major Hooper, David Murray and Jesse Strang.

Mr. Urquhart's stay on the Island was short. He removed in 1802 to Chatham, N.B. His work was not under the official supervision of the Church but his organization of the congregation was recognized as being truly Presbyterian when on November 9, 1807, the Session met at Princetown and was constituted by Rev. Peter Gordon, the first of the settled Presbyterian pastor on Prince Edward Island. Mr. Gordon's pastoral charge of St. Peter's, Covehead and Bay Fortune was the fact that David Murray, one of the Bedeque elders, was appointed in 1808 to go to St. Peter's and assist in the ordination of elders, might suggest that Presbyterian government for that congregation was only then being set up.

In Bedeque the Rev. John Urquhart is remembered best by his descendants. His daughter Catherine who married Major Hooper in the early years of the new century, succeeded a governor's daughter in the Hooper home (Major had married Ann Patterson in 1794) and had the honor of bringing up six of Governor Patterson's grandchildren in addition to a large number of her own, all of whom turned out to her credit. With her name background it is perhaps little wonder that her husband was one of the original elders in Bedeque church.

Mr. Bulpit's Ministry

Rev. James Bulpit, the Methodist preacher on the Island in 1807, belonged to an itinerant ministry; one which believed that a new broom sweeps clean and that both pastor and circuit are benefited by frequent changes, as opposed to the permanent ministry of the Presbyterian system which held that a pastorate without time limit allowed the church and minister to grow together in close relationship. Mr. Bulpit on this point was more Presbyterian than Methodist and when in 1810 time came to go he was very loath to leave the Island, staying in Charlottetown as an independent minister and eventually retiring to Craupaud where he died at his son's home in 1849. His headstone quaintly states that he was a native of "Cockney England."

Methodism on the Island marked time for the period 1810 to 1813 until the arrival of Rev. John Hick at Charlottetown in August of the latter year, when it marshalled its forces and went forward under invigorating new leadership. Tryon and Bedeque were made preaching appointments of the Charlottetown circuit, and sometimes on foot and sometimes on horseback, the preacher made the rounds of his large circuit which included congregations in King's, Queen's and Prince Counties. Writing the next spring from "Charlotte Town, Prince Edward Island," Mr. Hick reported to the Missionary secretary in England:

"At Bedeque our congregations are remarkably large, but our society is the smallest of any in the Island, the generality of them being Presbyterians or what might be more properly termed Antinomians."

"But," he concluded, "I am not without hopes of seeing good days here also." Speaking more generally of the Island, he found the bulk of the people very poor, yet had no doubt that a young man on the circuit would be amply provided for. The Bedeque society or church circuit would be a membership of only six at this time of whom we can be sure Nathaniel Wright and his wife formed a third.

Mr. Strong's Arrival

Bedeque's best-known and best-loved pioneer preacher, the Rev. John B. Strong came to Bedeque on Saturday, 24th August, 1816, guided through the dense woods from Tryon by Jane Calbeck, eighteen-year-old daughter of Phillips Morris Calbeck, who was later Mrs. Joseph Sulliker of Bedeque. The bride-pat which only politeness could call a road had no farm homes on it but was arched all the way with oak trees which lent welcome shade for a summer day. On Sunday Mr. Strong preached his first sermon in Nathaniel Wright's barn at Centreville, (there being apparently no "frolie room" in the Wright house at that time similar to the Tryon one) from the text, "This is life eternal, that they might know Thee, the only true God and Jesus Christ Whom Thou hast sent." Mr. Strong, recently from Montreal where he had been fifth pastor of St. James Methodist Church had exchanged circuits with Mr. Hick of Charlottetown. The twenty-six year old minister, who eventually rounded out his days in Prince Edward Island and who with his family was to be very intimately connected with the Bedeque circuit, made his headquarters at Charlottetown, visiting Tryon River and Bedeque once every six weeks.

During his December visit of 1816, Mr. Strong, who had a year-old child in Murray Harbour and a six-months-old one in Charlottetown, held meetings in both Tryon and Bedeque to plan the erection of the first Methodist meeting house in Prince County. It was determined in both centres to get up the frames that winter, with friends giving either work or material. In Tryon, according to schedule, the men went to work in March and by the first of June had quite a credit-

Bedeque In Memoriam

Mrs. GEORGE WOODSIDE
"As one, whom his mother comforted, so will I comfort you." Isaiah 66:13, were the words on which Reverend L. M. Murray based his message to family and friends, who had gathered to pay their last tribute of love and respect to the late Mrs. George Woodside. A devoted mother, whose love was great enough to embrace each member of her large family, as well as grandchildren and others, who found a home in her home, from time to time, "The children rise up, and call her blessed."

Born Elizabeth Ann Davison, at Burlington 82 years ago, she was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Davison, and was the last surviving member of her family. Since her marriage, she had lived at Clinton until only a few years ago, she and her husband had retired from farm life and acquired a home at Kensington, in which to spend their sunset hours. On Tuesday, January 13th, 1948, she was called to her Eternal home after several weeks' illness, leaving a bereaved husband, the following sons and daughters, and a host of relatives and friends to cherish her memory: Edith, Mrs. Raymond Garnham, Charlotte, Mrs. Irene, Mrs. Elliott, Alora, Mrs. Welch Murray, Ester, Mrs. Eva, Mrs. Williams, Charlottetown; Mrs. Harry Forbes; Joseph, at Kensington; Leaman of Boston, Mass.; Jessie, Mrs. James Williamson, Grand Island, Nebraska; Stanley, of Moncton, N.B.; Ernest in Ontario; Carman, of Racine, Wisconsin.

A short funeral service was held at the home of her son, Joseph, at Kensington, on Thursday, followed by a service at the Margate United Church. The Minister, Reverend G. S. Stevenson, was assisted by Reverend L. M. Murray, her pastor at Kensington, who delivered the message. The hymns sung by the choir with Miss Selma Johnston at the organ were, "The Lord's My Shepherd," "My Faith Looks Up To Thee," and "Abide With Me."

"Face to Face" was beautifully rendered as a solo, by Mr. Tryndal Semple. The pall-bearers were Messrs. Hugh Glover, Charles Woodside, Keir Duggan, Hugh Frizzell, George Casford and Francis Williams.

Burial was at Margate cemetery. Many beautiful floral offerings from friends in this Province and from other provinces and the United States, paid silent tribute to the esteem in which the late Mrs. Woodside was held.—Bur.

able building, which, though lacking pews, windows, pulpit and plaster, was considered a fitting place for the first sermon of their pastor following District Meeting of 1817. Their pastor then was no longer Rev. John B. Strong of Charlottetown for they were no longer a part of the Charlottetown circuit. Tryon and Bedeque had become a separate circuit with Rev. John Fishpool as missionary in charge. Writing in August of 1817, a few weeks after his arrival, Mr. Fishpool said: "Tryon and Bedeque is the present extent of my circuit and notwithstanding the poverty and poverty of the people, they are doing great things," and then went on to tell how he had preached his first sermon in the unfinished church at Tryon, later going on a begging expedition to Sackville and Wallace where he secured a stove and glass, and money to spare, to make Tryon meeting house truly a Maritime affair.

The proposed chapel at Bedeque did not make such speedy progress. Nathaniel Wright and his little band were growing; his own family of eleven children, two daughters-in-law, and four grandchildren made a sizable gathering in themselves but the Methodists were not nearly so numerous in Bedeque as Tryon. Not enough of them turned up in the winter of 1817 to cut sufficient Bedeque pine to erect the chapel that year. In the meantime the end of the conference year saw another change of missionaries. Mr. Fishpool and Mr. Strong exchanged circuits in June of 1813, so that Mr. Strong who had proposed the chapel in December 1816 was back in time to see it built. Still thirty years in the future another Bedeque church was to be built under his guidance.

The 1818 chapel was built with skill and despatch by men of the shipyards to whom the smell of pine chips and the feel of the adze were the breath of life. Ship-building in Bedeque Bay, not unknown from 1791 when William Baker built a forty-four ton square-sterned schooner "Prosperity," did not flourish till the beginning of the new century when William Schurman built the schooner "Lovely" to replace the "Mary" which for many years was Bedeque's chief link of communication with both Charlottetown and the mainland. In 1803 Schurman built the brigantine "William," a ship of one hundred and sixty-seven tons, which was not exceeded in size in the Bedeque shipyards for many years. The same year Alexander Campbell of Wilmet built a seventy-six ton schooner, the "Hess," which was followed by a succession of sister schooners, "Jane," "Betsy," and "Feronia"; but not till 1814 did he try a square-rigger when he built the "Sophia," a brig slightly larger than Schurman's "William."

Many of the Bedeque farmers built small schooners or shallops which like the motor trucks of their descendants were used for both business and pleasure. The Wrights, Prices, Murrys, MacFarlanes, MacCallumers, Greens and others all owned boats of varying sizes in which they transported Providence at various times. For the merchants of lost fortunes depending on weather and markets. Names of early merchants of Bedeque, otherwise long forgotten as culled from shipping registers include: Samuel Walsford, Thomas Townshend and Charles Stowe, all of them probably living in Lot 26.

The Bedeque House

Alexander Campbell, one of the early merchants of Bedeque and Provincial treasurer for some years, lived in the biggest house outside of Charlottetown, the famous Bedeque House, later to be known as the Laird House, at Wilmet. This centre for a short time showed signs of becoming the business capital of Bedeque Bay. Schurman and Campbell came to Wilmet around the same time and bought large tracts of pine from the MacDonalds. Schurman ran the mills, and Campbell had the shipyards. Both had stores; and beneath their shore farms at the entrance of Wilmet creek was the best anchorage in Bedeque harbor, where for many years much of the merchandise for Eastern Prince County was landed and much of the produce shipped.
