

"It takes PRACTICE..."

"I blow into it so sweet, and it comes out so sour!" That wall of the beginning "tooter" is the common plaint of the inexperienced. It takes practice to master a musical instrument. And it takes practice to compound a complex prescription in accordance with the doctor's directions. For your protection we employ only skilled Registered Pharmacists, and double-check every compounding step to assure accuracy. Be sure to bring your prescriptions here.

Radio Pioneer Robert Thomson, Dies

Robert Thomson, an electrician for the Public Service Company of New Hampshire, died at a Boston hospital Sunday morning. He was born in Scotland and had lived in Manchester for the past 28 years. Mr. Thomson was a pioneer in the radio business in Manchester and was engaged in that business for many years. During recent years he has been employed by the Public Service Company. He was a member of the Masonic fraternity in Scotland and was a member of St. James Methodist Church. Surviving him are his wife, the former Amy Trowsdale, Crapanza, P. E. I., a son, Stanley R. Thomson, of North Bay, Ont.; a daughter, Miss Eleanor Thomson, of Manchester; one grandson; four sisters, Mrs. Alex Watson and Mrs. Jack Davis, both of Montreal, P. Q.; Mrs. Ann Dunbar of Philadelphia, and Mrs. Adam Allen of Aberdeen, Scotland, and a brother, Andrew Thomson, also of Aberdeen.

Mixup Over Release Date of Prince's Pictures

(By The Associated Press)
LONDON, Dec. 30 — Britons got their first look today—by way of a picture from the French press—at their infant Prince Charles with his eyes open. It touched off an uproar. At the tender age of six weeks, the infant who some day may be king was in the centre of a dispute over release of the first official set of pictures showing him nestled in his crib and wide awake. It happened this way: Cecil Beaton, a court photographer, took portraits of the Prince at Buckingham Palace before the Dec. 15 christening. The portraits were circulated by news photo agencies for use on or after Jan. 2. The date was set by the Palace, to permit simultaneous publication throughout the world. Soon isolated instances of newspapers in the United States, Rome, Copenhagen and Paris printing the pictures despite the embargo were reported back to London. Buckingham Palace stood by the Jan. 2 release. Today the Evening Standard printed a reproduction of the front page of the Paris Samedi Soir. There, almost as big as life, was the photo of bright-eyed Prince Charles. Cries of protest from the Standard's evening competitors—the Star and the Evening News—echoed in Fleet Street. Hurried telephone calls to Gen. Sir Frederick Browning, master of the household of Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh, brought permission for a general release of the pictures. The Star and Evening News late editions then appeared with the original pictures splashed over their front pages. Then, too late, the office at Buckingham Palace declared that the Jan. 2 embargo stood. Representatives of all picture agencies in London held a hasty conference. They decided on an immediate general release because publication of the pictures had become so widespread by now that the embargo no longer was considered valid.

IN MEMORIAM

In fond and loving memory of our dear son and brother, Boyd, who departed this life on January 4th, 1946. He has gone across the river To the shores of ever green, And we long to see his dear face But the river flows between. But some day we'll cross the river Away from this weary land And we'll find dear Boyd waiting With a little welcoming hand. Always Remembered by Father, Mother, Sisters and Brothers.

IN MEMORIAM

In fond and loving memory of our darling baby, William Lloyd Campbell, who departed this life January 3rd, 1948. With tears we watched you sinking, And saw you pass away, We tended you with loving care, But could not make you stay. Some may think we have forgotten, As a smile may hide the tears, But your memory we shall cherish As it dwains another year.

PERPETUATED NICKNAME

The real name of the 15th century printer Gutenberg, was Johann Gansfleisch. Gutenberg was his mother's home city.
