and the hop overland would be comparatively easy, he thought. On the trip to Sydney the "New York" flew through fog of such density that it was impossible to see the water, and the machine was only about ten feet above the surface when the plane burst out of the haze and the flyers sighted the lights of Glace Bay.

FEELING OF RELIEF

"It gave me such a feeling here," said Simon, laying his hand on his heart and indicating the relief he felt when after seven hours wrestling with alternate heavy weather and fog, he struck the Cape Breton coast at a point indicating that his calculations had proved correct.

FUEL LOW

The plane was about fifty minutes on the water off Glace Bay checking position with a group of fishing boats. At that time there were fifteen gallons of gas on board and only four gallons were left when the seaplane settled on Sydney Harbor near the international piers. Simon had been advised that the refueling barge would carry a bright red light and possibly some moving white lights, and there was general surprise when he came down more than half a mile off. He had been misled by a red range light supplemented by moving white lights of small fishermen.

"ALL IN"

As the youthful pilot—he admitted twenty seven years but looked more like a schoolboy—stepped out of the plane, observers noted that he looked "all in" and badly in need of sleep. He came ashore for supper but remained in the machine supervising refueling.

When the New York left here she was crammed with gas and oil and had heavy radio and other equipment which with the strong head winds, would restrict her speed to well under one hundred miles an hour, and account for her not making Cobequid Bay before 3.30 a. m.

"Sleep?" Simon said before the takeoff. "Oh, I will get sleep when ship leaves." This was interpreted, perhaps erroneously, to mean that after the plane got under way the second pilot would take the controls for a time. Driving to the harbor in a car after his meal, Simon lagged down on the cushions, from weariness.

About five feet nine inches tall, and very slim, Simon seemed to weigh about 125 pounds and it was apparently that flying blind through heavy fog had exacted heavy toll. As the plane circled the city after taking off, watchers thought the engine seemed to be missing slightly.

Yesterday's flight was to have been the last ship to shore mail hop by way of Sydney for the present season. Simon said he had tried it three times before but had been forced by fog over the Grand Banks to return to the Bremen. He thought they would be resumed next spring, in April.

ADD MAIL PLANE

NO TRACE OF "NEW YORK"

MAITLAND, N. S., Oct. 6 — A wide search of Cobequid Bay waters adjacent to this Hants County shore turned up only the detached gas tank of the German seaplane "New York" which almost certainly carried Fritz Simon and Rudolph Wogeknecht to their deaths this morning. The search boat from Tenny Cape which found the tank floating in mid-channel, some five miles from shore this afternoon, had discovered no other trace of plane or men when darkness shut down tonight, nor had Lieutenant Louis Leigh, in his Maritime and Newfoundland Airways plane "Pioneer" been able to sight wreckage. Lieutenant Leigh arrived over Noel late this afternoon from Sydney, whence Simon and his companion had hopped at midnight for New York with mail from the west-bound liner Bremen.

The plane was heard by several people along this shore during the night, and was sighted, flying low, by William Faulkner, the light-house keeper at Burncoat who later heard the shouts of the airmen and gave the news that the plane had come down on the waters and impassable mudflats of Cobequid Bay. The engine was said to be making a terrific noise, and seemed to be missing. The weather was calm at the time.

BULBS

This is positively the last call for planting outdoor bulbs, except possibly in a few southerly districts of Canada where there is not much frost before December. Good results can be obtained, however, if we can get our tulips, daffodils, crocuses, hyacinths and so on planted before the ground freezes hard, although for best results it is well to have these in before this as some root growth is possible then, we have a wider selection of varieties and there is no risk of winter stepping in and preventing our planting altogether. However, there is no compensation at this late date. Usually at the end of the season prices are reduced in order to clear out the remaining stock, but of course we have not the selection, most popular varieties having been sold out. Plant in clumps of at least half a dozen bulbs of one variety. With tulips, place the early flowering type about three inches deep in clay and four in lighter soil, with the later and taller Darwins and Breeders going in a little deeper. Place about from five to eight inches apart in the clump. Daffodils and hyacinths should be planted about two inches deep and the crocuses only about half an inch. The latter will bloom a few days after the snow disappears and because of this they are often planted through the lawn where they are among the first things to gladden the eye after the long winter. The early tulips, daffodils and hyacinths come on from two weeks to a month later while the big, late tulips will bloom from May until well on in June if the proper selection is made of early, medium and late varieties.

Of course for indoor bloom we can go on planting bulbs right on until January. This is a most satisfactory form of gardening as good results are guaranteed if we get high quality bulbs and follow a few simple directions. Moreover, while flowers are welcome at any time they are never admired quite so much as when they are no longer possible outside. For indoor bloom, select those tulips specially recommended for forcing, which will mean varieties in the early types. If we want our hyacinths in a hurry it will also be necessary to take those particularly specified in the bulb catalogue for early bloom. The paper-white Narcissus will come into flower first, averaging about nine weeks from the time they are planted, and because of this bowls of them can be planted in succession to start blooming around Christmas and continuing at weekly or fortnightly intervals right through until spring. Tulips, hyacinths and daffodils require from two and a half to four months, depending upon the variety, before blooming. These bulbs can be planted in fibre, or soil, while some of them such as the hyacinth, paper-white narcissus and Chinese Lily will do well in pebbles or just plain water with a few pieces of charcoal. The water should be changed about every eight days to keep it sweet. In fancy bowls or gaily wrapped earthenware pots started bulbs make excellent Christmas presents, particularly if they are given when in full bloom or when ready to come up out of the cellar. Incidentally it should be stressed right here that all bulbs to bloom satisfactorily must be started in some cold, dark place like a corner of the fruit cellar or the outside garage, or lacking such places simply in a covered box outside. Narcissus are ready to come out of this place in from four to six weeks while tulips, hyacinths and daffodils require from eight to ten weeks. If they do not get this sort of a start, essential to developing proper root growth, they will only produce weak tops and very little or no flower at all. After the cold, dark start, bring out to full light and temperature of about sixty-five degrees, though this should be done gradually, taking about a week to make the change.

strong and firm in their affection and loyalty; and I can assure you, Sir, that in no section of his far-flung Dominions is that affectionate loyalty more genuine or more active than in this remote corner of his wide Empire, our little "Province by the Sea."

"The high office to which your Excellency has been called has always been occupied by illustrious statesmen who have won great distinction in the Empire's service and have contributed not a little to the progress of our constitutional development; yet your Excellency represents our beloved Sovereign in Canada in a more intimate and personal sense than any of these, because you have been appointed by him on the recommendation of his Canadian advisers, and His Majesty's Canadian subjects will have an additional reason to regard your Excellency as a fellow citizen of Canada."

"But not alone as a representative of His Majesty do we greet you. Your brilliant record as a soldier in the World War is not unknown to us, nor is your no less distinguished service in the post war reconstruction, and we feel assured that the experience gained in these and many other public activities cannot fail to be of great value to yourself and to Canada in the discharge of the onerous duties of your high office."

"We have in this Province but little to show Your Excellency in the way of material wealth. We have no great factories nor organized industries. Apart from the fertility of our soil and the wealth of our fisheries we have but few natural resources. We have no great wealth centred in the hands of a few. But on the other hand you will find no Lazarus sitting by the gate with hand outstretched for the doles of the rich. We have no individual jealousies nor envies between poor and rich, for we have but few of either, and we are free from the distracting friction between Labor and Capital."

"We can show you a Town whose affairs have always been honestly and efficiently administered, there never in all its history has there been even the shadow of civic scandal, and which now owns and operates its own public utilities of electric lighting and water and sewerage systems. We can show you several commercial houses, controlled and managed by enterprising young men, whose wares find their markets in all parts of Canada and beyond it. We can show you a well equipped and well managed public Hospital whose doors are ever open to rich and poor without distinction. We can show you a modest but substantial school building, furnished with modern sanitary equipment, and surrounded by school grounds perhaps unexcelled in Eastern Canada. And better perhaps than all these, you will find throughout our country districts, as indicative of material prosperity, fine farm steadings owned and operated by intelligent and progressive farmers, who in peace and comfort continue to enjoy the fruits of their own labour."

"It is to us a matter of sincere regret that Her Excellency the Countess of Bessborough is not today present to receive the no less cordial welcome of our people, though the occasion of her absence is and doubtless will be in the future a source of rejoicing to the people of Canada. We trust, however, that in the not far distant future we shall have an opportunity of joining her with Your Excellency in an equally cordial and loyal greeting."

"We trust your visit to us will in every way prove agreeable to Your Excellency and that the present will be but an earnest of many future visits to our Province, where you may always be assured of a cordial welcome."

"On behalf of the citizens and members of the Council of the Town of Summerside."

"I have the honour to be your humble, obedient and loyal servant."

WINSLOE J. LIDSTONE, Mayor.

VICEROY'S REPLY

His Excellency made the following reply: "Mr. Mayor, I am very glad indeed to have been able to give the pleasure of visiting your town, and to have had an opportunity of getting a glimpse of the countryside, which is very beautiful. I appreciate indeed your kind reference to my wife and will convey to her my impression of your attractive province and of the friendly welcome I have received. In this time of depression it is particularly pleasing to hear expressed such contentment and confidence in the future. You have much to be thankful for in having such prosperity, which I feel is due in a great measure to your good sense and industry. May you continue to enjoy such contentment for many years.

"It is very pleasing as the representative of His Majesty to find such loyal citizens in this fortunate island, the smallest province of this fair Dominion."

His Excellency was then presented to the citizens, immediately afterwards the vice-regal party adjourned to Dominion Square where the members of the Canadian Legion formed a guard of honor round the soldiers' monument. An impressive moment was the placing by the Earl of Bessborough of a wreath at the foot of the monument. His Excellency read some of the names inscribed on the stone and was deeply impressed with the beautiful statue. Walking slowly round the grave followed by the other members of the party, His Excellency returned to his car.

LUNCHEON IN SUMMERSIDE

At 1.30 luncheon was served at the Clifton Hotel where His Excellency was presented to members of the City Council, members of board of trade, the clergy and other prominent citizens.

His Worship Mayor Lidstone presided. Seated on his right were the Governor General and Premier Stewart and on his left the Lieutenant Governor and Mr. Andre Paturel, French Consul. Others present included Chief Justice Matheson, Hon. Justice Arsenault, Hon. Justice Saunders, Hon. J. E. Sinclair, Hon. John McLean, Hon. Dr. W. J. P. McMillan, Hon. G. Shelton Sharp, Hon. L. M. McNeill, Hon. A. F. Arsenault, Rev. J. J. MacDonald, Rev. Dr. Monaghan, the Mayor of Kensington, the Mayor of Alberton; Mr. A. E. MacLean, M. P.; Mr. J. E. Wyatt, Mr. J. F. Arnett, Mr. R. B. Richardson, Mr. R. L. Allen, Col. Ulrich Dawson, Major E. H. Strong, K. C.; Capt. L. A. Moore, Lieut. Com. T. H. Scott Jackson, members of Town Council and others.

The dining room was very attractively decorated with autumn foliage, maple leaves and plants. On the tables were dainty crystal vases of flowers artistically arranged.

The menu was as follows: Cocktail, clam bisque, oyster on the half shell, lobster, broiled breast of chicken, sweet potatoes and cream potatoes, asparagus on toast, parer house rolls, ginger ale salad, perfection ice cream and sponge cake. Demitasse.

WELCOMED BY CHILDREN

An exceptionally pleasing feature of the Governor General's visit to Summerside was his enthusiastic welcome by the school children at three o'clock at the High School. The four primary grades were lined up at the entrance to the school and cheered loudly, waving small Union Jacks as His Excellency arrived. "Welcome" in large letters was written over the entrance and the stairway was entwined with maple leaves. Flags and maple leaves made a very pretty setting for the vice-regal party in the assembly hall, where the upper grades were gathered to extend a joyous greeting to His Excellency.

Accompanying the party were the Mayor and members of the School Board. The children greeted His Excellency by singing "O Canada." Dr. E. T. Tanton, chairman of the School Board, in a few remarks presented Lord Bessborough to the children. His Excellency addressed them and said how sorry he was to have kept them waiting. He was so pleased to see so many children to greet him as the representative of His Majesty the King, who, he assured them, took a deep interest in the young people of the Island, as well as other parts of the wide Empire. In a simple and interesting manner he explained the reason why a Governor-General was necessary. It would give him great pleasure, he added, to give His Majesty their message of loyalty to the Empire to which they belonged, and expressed the wish that they would do their best to increase the prosperity of this fair country.

SUGGESTS HOLIDAY OCT. 27TH

His Excellency then asked that the children be granted a holiday on his birthday, October 27th, a suggestion which was greeted with cheers. Master Thomas White moved a vote of thanks to His Excellency, which was seconded by Dr. E. T. Tanton. The motion was graciously acknowledged by His Excellency. Master Reginald Muttart gave the signal for three cheers for the Governor-General of Canada. The Island Gymn. the Flag Salute and God Save the King closed the very interesting program.

VISIT TO CONVENT

The next place visited was St. Mary's Convent where Rev. Mother Superior and the Sisters welcomed His Excellency. In the concert hall 250 pupils of the academy greeted the vice-regal party with the song "Canada is Our Home."

The following address was then read by Miss Margaret McNeill: "To His Excellency Lord Bessborough, Governor General of Canada."

"May it Please Your Excellency—

"In union with the universal welcome ascending from the hearts of the people of this Province, the pupils of St. Mary's Academy bid you welcome to our Island home. Our hearts thrill with pride in receiving within our Convent walls, him whom Britain ranks among her noblest sons and whom she has chosen as most worthy to represent in Canada the Majesty and authority of the King."

"We fully understand your exalted position in our great Dominion and how much the prosperity of this young and progressing country depends upon a wise and prudent ruler. Your motto "Pro Rege-legegre" so rich in meaning is the sure harbinger of your devoted service towards the country you have come to guide. In the few short months you have been with us, you have shown yourself all to all and your past fidelity to law and sovereign is the gage of future security."

"Your Excellency comes to our shores at a time of the year when Nature, radiating her colorful beauty, proclaims that our Island is one of the most charming spots in North America. On closer acquaintance your practised eye will discern the proof of the undaunted courage and industry of our forebears who converted what was once a wilderness into what has been styled for many years the "Garden of the Gulf."

"The emotion that fills our hearts today can most fittingly be expressed in the united prayer of this youthful band that kind Providence who has already smiled so sweetly on your sojourn among us may continue to bless and guide your future days in our dear Canadian land."

A beautiful bouquet of flowers was then presented by little Jean McPhee, daughter of Dr. J. A. and Mrs. McPhee, to His Excellency for Lady Bessborough.

Expresses Pleasure

In reply His Excellency said that nowhere during his visit had he received such a charming and delightful welcome as in this beautiful institution. "You do not realize, perhaps," he continued, "how beautiful your Island home is, how I appreciate, coming from England the scenery of this Province, truly named "The Garden of the Gulf", as of all the provinces of Canada it is more like the English countryside than any other which links it with the island across the sea. Your pride in your citizenship and in your King will, I hope, continue."

Lord Bessborough made an interesting reference to the motto of his family which he was pleased to notice was written in autumn colors across the hall. The motto, "Pro Rege lege grege," meaning "For King, For Law and People", he had learned was also the motto of the Canadian people.

A holiday was granted at His Excellency's request to the convent children.

Rev. J. J. McDonald presided at this pleasant ceremony. The concert hall was very beautiful in autumn colorings and maple leaves. The children in their pretty sailor costumes made a pleasing impression on the distinguished guests.

Visit To Hospital

Before the vice-regal party returned by way of Bedouque and Victoria to Charlottetown they called at the Prince County Hospital. They were met at the door by the matron, Miss Pidgeon, and assistant matron, Miss Lavers; Mr. H. T. Holman, president of the hospital board, Mr. Charles R. Rogers, Mr. J. E. Dalton and other members of the board, His Excellency visited the female and male wards and talked pleasantly to the patients. He also visited the nursery where one little infant, quite unconscious of her distinguished visitor was sleeping peacefully. His Excellency admired the different appointments of the hospital. The party then left for Charlottetown.

Welcomed at Victoria

The return trip was made by way of Bedouque, Albany, Tryon and Victoria. At the latter place a brief stop was made, where a cordial welcome on behalf of the residents was extended His Excellency by Mr. W. M. Lea, M.L.A. On this route, also,

C.W.L. Meeting

The regular monthly meeting of the C. W. L. was held in their Hall last evening, with the President, Mrs. Casey, in the chair. Upon request the reports of delegates to National and Diocesan Conventions were read. These reports were read respectively by Mrs. M. M. Murphy and Mrs. J. P. McCloskey and proved very interesting to the members.

A satisfactory report was given of the bridge held recently in the C. N. R. Hotel, with Mrs. J. D. Hughes, Convenor.

The President reported a very successful envelope collection for the Sacred Heart Home.

It was announced that the C. W. L. had been authorized to collect clothing for the Western Missions, and members were urged to begin this work at once.

The matter of securing signatures for petition for world peace sponsored by the League of Nations had been attended to.

Reports from convenors of Standing Committees were read and discussion took place regarding the winter activities.

The Treasurer's Report showed that a substantial balance was carried over from the National Convention.

The meeting adjourned to meet the first Tuesday in November.
