Pickering Bros., Clinton, knew a good thing when they obtained control for this Province of the celebrated Good, Shapley Murr Co. Gas Engines. These machines have been so long on the market that their reputation for usefulness is fully established. James Pickering is in charge of his firm's exhibit which includes a six, three and two and a half gasoline engine. But two or three pairs of water are required to keep even the largest size cool, as it is so arranged in a small upright tank that it circulates rapidly while the engine is in motion. These machines can be seen operating a grain crusher and wood saw both of which are of modern size and exceptionally advantageous to a farmer. The smaller engine is very suitable for pumping water.
