U. S. Steel Prices To Advance Soon

CLEVELAND, July 13— (AP)—Increased wages for coal miners and earlier increases for steel workers will boost steel prices an average of $5 a ton within the next few weeks, the magazine Steel predicted today.

"Announcement of the new steel price schedules is expected early in August," said the publication. "Metalworking officials are already studying the effects of the cost increases on the prices of their finished products. For many, advances in selling prices will be necessary."

The coal wage settlement, said Steel, clears the way "for a long period of high and uninterrupted steel production, giving promise of a new record peace-time year, and presaging fairly early balancing of supply and demand for steel products."

Steelmaking probably will resume "the pre-coal-crisis rate by the end of this week," said the magazine. Its index of the national ingot rate rose last week to 86 per cent of rated capacity, up 13 points from the preceding week.

An Experiment in Refrigeration

Photographs show the method of recording the temperatures. The instruments being set up in a combination coach-sleeper car. The recording instruments include a thermo-couple which generates an electrical voltage which is registered on suitable meters. One of the photographs shows an engineer embedding a thermo-couple in the combination of salt, ice and ammonium nitrate in the overhead bunker of the refrigerator car and the other shows another of the experts taking hourly readings.

Thirty tons of halibut moved recently over the Canadian National Railways from New Westminster in two refrigerator cars, one for Toronto and the other for Montreal, under a new system of refrigeration which it is expected will revolutionize the movement of perishable traffic by railway. Under the old method ice and salt were used but the new system is a combination of salt, ice and ammonium nitrate, which permits of zero temperatures being reached. With ice and salt it has not been possible up to the present time to lower refrigerator car temperatures below 10 degrees. Railway experts along with experts from the National Research Council and the Pacific Fisheries Experimental Station accompanied the shipment.
