Roundup of Polio Cases In Canada

By The Canadian Press

Montreal, where 106 cases of infantile paralysis are being treated, is the only place in the Dominion where the disease has reached serious proportions, a survey by the Canadian Press showed last night.

In some communities near the United States border authorities are stepping up precautionary measures to prevent more serious outbreaks in that country from spreading into Canada.

First reports indicated Montreal has more cases of the dreaded polio than all the rest of the Dominion.

In many sections health officials said the incidence of infantile paralysis was greater than at the same time last year but was not considered serious.

In Nova Scotia, three cases have been reported this year. All were in Halifax, the two most recent in June. None has resulted in death.

Five cases have been reported in New Brunswick, two of them in Miramichi and the other three in rural areas.

Health officials in Quebec, said one case of polio had been reported in the city in the past few weeks, and that they saw no reason to fear any spread of the disease, all visitors have been temporarily from the children's ward at Laval Hospital.

In the Ottawa district three polio cases were reported.

A Washington newspaper, quoted Mrs. Shadd, witness of the ceremony, as describing the bride as "beautiful—one of the angels."

On this point Mr. Shadd said: "That may be one person's conception. I am not going to comment."

Mr. Shadd said he was ordained as a Baptist minister in Boston in 1914. He said he had travelled widely in Europe and Asia and had lived in 17 different Canadian cities when he was an employee on the sleeping cars of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

At present, he said, he is teaching classes here in "metaphysics and philosophy sciences." During the war he said he was employed in a secret capacity at navy headquarters here as "supervisor of the confidential mail room."

He said Father Divine has followers in "all parts of the world" but the largest foreign unit, he believed, is in Canada. "I always see more Canadians than any other non-Americans at his meetings—and a very high class of people too," Mr. Shadd said.

EDINBURGH STAGES HEALTH WEEK

The Scottish Council for Health Education reports that Edinburgh recently staged a most successful HEALTH WEEK.

It was the first effort of its kind in Scotland, and the Edinburgh Scotsman commented that the results provided positive proof of the wide interest of the general public in health problems.

The program included dancing, music, physical training demonstrations, community singing, health tableaux, the showing of health films, lectures and a health exhibition. These events were attended by more than 120,000 people, and the very comprehensive program designed to make Edinburgh residents health conscious probably had some kind of impact on almost the entire population of 500,000.

Press Facilities Good At Paris

(By Robert Eunson)

PARIS, Aug. 7 — (AP) — The "good old days" at the Versailles peace conference 27 years ago, when practically every session was closed and reporters seeking information sometimes had to resort to "crashing the gate," are recalled at the current conference by Henry Wales of the Chicago Tribune, who has covered big stories in Europe since 1915.

If the conference opens all its sessions to the press, as its rules committee has proposed, there will be no need for a Herbert Bayard Swoppe to dress up in striped trousers and high hat and stalk majestically with the delegates into a closed session.

Wales said Swoppe adopted this method to witness the scene at the Trison Palace when the treaty terms were handed to the Germans. There were only six press tickets and the New York World didn't get one when they were drawn from the hat.

The 1,000 correspondents covering this peace conference have access to an elegant restaurant in Luxembourg Palace where meals cost from 45 to 125 francs. Night club champagne sells for 1,300 francs a bottle. The exchange rate now is 119 francs to the dollar, however, compared to a fraction over five in 1919.

Six cable and wireless companies are operating at Luxembourg Palace. The big press associations are filing directly on their own teleprinter circuits.

In 1919 when the first conference opened "in the clock room of the Quai d'Orsay," Wales said, a few reporters were allowed in the first plenary session, but there weren't enough tickets and most of us could only squint into the room. One photographer rammed a delegate in the pants with his tripod in trying to get a shot through the door."

QUEEN MARY SAILS

SOUTHAMPTON, Eng., Aug. 7 — (CP Cable) — The Queen Mary sails tonight for Canada with 1,150 wives and 600 children of Canadian origin.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7 — "Father Divine," Negro leader of the Harlem-bred "Peace-Its-Wonderful" cult, was married here last April 29 to Edna Rose Richings, 21, of Montreal, described on licence bureau records as "white" and "The ceremony was performed by Rev. Albert I. Shadd, Canadian-born Baptist minister who told the Canadian Press he had been a close friend of Father Divine for many years.

The licence bureau records gave names of the participants as Major J. Divine, 41 Philadelphia, and Edna Rose Richings, 21 white, Montreal.

Mr. Shadd, who said he was 63, said he was born in St. Catharines, Ont., and left there in 1900 to go to the Boer War. He said his father was a "British African" born in Canada and his mother a British Indian, born in Ceylon.

All details of the ceremony were "confidential," Mr. Shadd said, and he was in honor bound not to discuss it. He referred questions to Father Divine's publication house—The New Day Publishing Company, Newark, N. J.

The weekly newspaper "African Dawn" came out today with a front-page feature of the dual leader's wedding based on Father Divine's own message published in New Day Aug. 1.

It carried an old picture of the leader and his first wife—"Mother Divine"—with the caption, "What Happened to Mother Divine?" The marriage licence record showed "I am surprised the news agencies have not dug up this story before," Mr. Shadd said. "It was there on the records in the district office for all to see and the name the father used was his own name familiar to everyone.

"The press must have been asleep. For three months I have been expecting every day to be approached by reporters."

The New Day quoted Father Divine as telling his flock of the marriage in the prophetic and somewhat confused language typical of his preachings. The New Day says: "Why did she want to marry me? You might ask her and she can tell you. (The bride then stood before the people and answered) "Because I know you are God."

The revelation indicated a sort of phenomenon in that Mr. Shadd was represented as waiting "for 40 years" to perform this particular
