U. S.-BORN VISCONTESS AND HER DAUGHTER

This recent photo shows Viscountess Esher and her little daughter, the Hon. Priscilla Brett. The viscountess was Miss Antoinette Heckscher, daughter of August Heckscher, New York philanthropist, real property prior to her marriage in 1912. Her husband was assistant private secretary (unpaid) to the Secretary of State for India from 1905 to 1910, and was attached to the war office from 1915 to 1919.

When a tree in Rockcliffe fell, near Ottawa, was broken by the wind, a motorist had a narrow escape from death. Quick action on his part in applying his brakes, likely, saved his life. The tree break, the car, damaging it considerably, caught heavy electric wires across the road. The driver suffered no injuries.

week-end, and many establishments were closed down until Monday morning. Few features stood out in the general celebration, the nation following its usual course of observing its birthday in a quiet and thoroughly domesticated fashion.

RUM RUNNERS ARE CAPTURED AFTER BATTLE

MONTREAL, July 1.—Two hundred revolver bullets were exchanged today in a fight between Quebec Liquor Commission Police and the crew of the barge Skippalong, suspected of carrying illicit alcohol. The battle was waged along the St. Lawrence River, just below Montreal, resulting in the capture of the ship and 1,200 gallons of alcohol. No one was wounded, apparently.

Police had received a tip that liquor was to be landed at Contrecoeur early this morning. Two squads of fifteen men each patrolled the sides of the river all night. Before dawn the barge was found docked near Contrecoeur, unloading liquor into a truck. The officers advanced upon it but the barge crew saw them and pulled away from shore. The truck, with 200 gallons of liquor, was seized.

Automobiles loaded with police flanked the barge on its journey up the river. Flares were lighted when the barge was sighted and frequent shots were exchanged. The barge was eventually steered to shore and surrendered.

Surprise and only two men were discovered on board, the officers were told that the Captain and other members of the crew had made their escape in rowboats during the night.

The liquor, police stated, had been imported through St. Pierre and Miquelon, with no duty paid.

ANOTHER SEIZURE

The oil screw Sylvester of New York, a fishing boat, was seized off Montauk point today with 500 sacks of liquor, valued by coast guard officials at $25,000.

A patrol boat captured the 40 foot craft and her crew of three as the Sylvester headed for shore from run room.

The crew members were all of Greenvport, N. Y.

Hutton Denies Relations With Pasadena Girl

LOS ANGELES, July 1.—The well-trained voice of David L. Hutton, singer, husband of Almes Temple McPherson, ran the emotional scale with "I did not" and "no sirs" today as he denied from the witness stand the charges of Myrtle St. Pierre, a nurse suing him for $200,000 for alleged fraud of promise.

His testimony of "I did not" and "No, Sir" became a blanket denial of the nurse's charges that he forsook her to marry Mrs. McPherson, Los Angeles evangelist. He testified he attended a party at the home of Mrs. Nan Anthony Norbury, where he met the Pasadena nurse January 18, 1931.

"When you met Miss St. Pierre did you clasp her hand in both of yours and say 'where have you been keeping this gorgeous creature all my life?'"

"Did you say to her you were just back from San Francisco and that there was a wonderful moon and that you would like to enjoy such a moon with her?"

"I did not."

Hutton's baritone voice changed into a tremulous tenor when his lawyer asked him if he slipped a ring on Miss St. Pierre's finger.

"I did not," Hutton fairly shouted.

"Did you tell her 'I'll be the head of your house any time?'"

DEMOCRATIC

tion of the party, the serious minded Liberals from the south and the west. The more vociferous delegates, the galleries who filled last night's 12 hour session with horrid shrieks and howls, were disappointed in their endeavor to stop the Governor, and, in consequence, the victory demonstration while spontaneous and well-sustained, lacked the unrestrained emotionalism which would have greeted the nomination of say, Al Smith, the darling of Democratic hero worshippers.

The break in the ranks of the stop-Roosevelt forces came early in tonight's session with the announcement by William Gibbs MacAdoo of California that his delegation pledged to John Mance Garner, Speaker of the House of Representatives had decided in view of the dead end reached this morning with Roosevelt 88 short of the necessary 770 votes, to release its members. The galleries roared their disapproval in vain. Immediately the California flag, a yellow bear on a blue ground, was gently waved and the standards of the Roosevelt states moved from their places into the aisles, the organ struck up the favorite of the convention "Happy Days are here again" and a demonstration was on.

A Texas standard was rushed to the platform indicating release of its delegates from the necessity of voting for Garner, the issue was virtually closed.

The fourth ballot followed.

Despite two major errors in tactics the strategy of the Roosevelt captains first in obtaining blocks of votes throughout the country to give them more than a majority when the convention opened, and second in handling the convention after the election of their permanent chairman, Senator Thomas J. Walsh, of Montana, was successful.

Realizing the Governor could not obtain sufficient votes to gain him the two thirds on the first ballot, Roosevelt's board of strategy had proposed the abrogation of the two thirds rule. From this position they were forced to retreat. Then they underestimated the personal popularity of Smith whose collection of 201 votes on the first ballot oversteered the Roosevelt bandwagon. Under the precise and arbitrary hand of Walsh, however, their tactics during the voting were perfect.

Walsh held the convention in all night session, permitted adjournment at the psychological moment and the Roosevelt lieutenants successfully bargained during the day to open this evening in overwhelming strength.

During the period of the convention Roosevelt himself played the most skillful hand. He it was who ordered abandonment of the move against the two thirds rule. Although known not to be in favor of the adoption by the convention of a recommendation for outright repeal of prohibition, he wisely announced that all delegates should vote upon the question as they saw fit.

In a general way the position of the two major parties may now be summarized as follows: Republicans: For President; Herbert Clark Hoover, ultra-conservative, standing on a standpat platform, in the matter of prohibition calling upon Congress for submission to the people of an amendment to the 18th amendment.

Democrats: Franklin Delano Roosevelt, Liberal, standing upon a Liberal platform in which the only downright plank recommends the 18th amendment be repealed and that pending repeal the enforcement law be modified to permit the sale of beer.

Roosevelt's Platform

ALBANY, N. Y., July 1.—Franklin D. Roosevelt, the presidential nominee of the Democrats, on the record of his past utterances, favors State control of liquor, reciprocal tariffs, a "wiser and more equitable distribution of wealth," and a reorganization of the Federal Government. He holds that "modern society," acting through its government, owes the definite obligation to prevent starvation or dire distress of its fellow men and women who try to maintain themselves, but cannot.

Mr. Roosevelt's diversified public life, brought him into contact with many national and international problems and gave him opportunities for expression upon them. Until he makes his acceptance speech they may serve as a guide to his position.

Speaking in Chicago in 1929, Roosevelt said: "Progressives, in the right sense of the word, mean those who realize that a government must grow and change; that what is wise government today may be foolish government tomorrow."

At Atlanta last May, he remarked, concerning the present social

This year there will be a slight change in the handicraft-course, Miss McLean hopes to instruct the campers in "tie-dyeing" and "wood carving."

PARKMAN-DOUCETTE

One of the prettiest of this season's weddings took place at the Holy Redeemer Church on Wednesday, June 29th at 8 o'clock when Mary Belle, daughter of Mrs. Mary Parkman was united in matrimony to Leo Doucette of Charlottetown, Rev. Joseph McGreel officiating.

The bride who was given away by her cousin, Mr. Arthur Bruce, looked charming in a pink gown of crepe-de-chene and over-lace with hat and shoes to match, and carried a shower bouquet of Ophelia roses and sweet peas. She was assisted by Miss Emma Whelan who wore a gown of green Brussels net with accessories to match and carried a bouquet of Briarcliff roses. The groom was assisted by Mr. Frank Doucette.

Immediately after the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's mother, after which the happy couple left by motor amid showers of good wishes en route to Montreal, Ottawa and Pembroke, Ontario where they will visit the bride's brother, Mr. Wilfred Parkman.

On their return they will reside in Charlottetown.

Their many friends wish them many years of happy wedded life.

and political situation: "It is common sense to take a method and try it. If it fails admit it frankly and try another, but above all try something."

Todd and Trampaglie were distanced.

The second heat got away on the first score, but there were one or two breaks. The Willys took the lead and held it to the quarter mile when he went to a break. Golden, who was in second position also broke. Yorkola took advantage of this and moved up to first position and held it to the stretch when he was overhauled by Golden, King Spruce third and The Willys fourth.

The third heat got away on the first score, Golden taking the lead and holding it throughout. The Willys who made several bad breaks came up strong to finish second, Yorkola third, and King Spruce fourth.

228 Trot and Pace

This race brought out some good horses and got away in short order for a big field. Emma Watson held the lead to the quarter when Hush moved up Al B. Jr. following suit, came second. Cyril F. J., who was some distance behind, moved up quickly finishing third, but was moved back to eighth for shifting from the pace to the trot. Enmore Watson finished fourth and was placed third, Mr. Squires, fourth.

The second heat getting away on the first score was a real horse race and kept the fans on their toes. Hush took the lead and held it throughout, Winnie Winkle in second only to be beaten out in a driving finish by Mr. Squires. Al B. Jr. finished fourth after a hard battle with Witty Jim and Cyril F. J., who finished in the above order. Hush again took the lead in the third heat which got away on the first score and repeating her performance of the previous heats won the three heats and the race. Cyril F. J., who had struck his stride, came second, Winnie Winkle, who was making her first start, finished third and Al B. Jr. fourth. This was a grand race, Hush being an outstanding performer and looks like a 2.10 pacer before the fall.

Great credit is due to Mr. George Calbeck, who spent a great deal of time and had the track in as good a shape as it has ever been in, which is proven by the time made in all the classes, also the others who were responsible for putting on this race.

Judges—Willard Kelly, Charlottetown; Walter Brown, Charlottetown; Harry Silliphant, Summerside.
Timers—Dr. A. A. Lockhart, Kennington; Jas O'Brien, Kingsdale; C. M. Lea, Summerside.
There were the usual side shows and a fine exhibition of acrobatic skill by a man with one leg, his feats performed with a table, two chairs and a basket, were marvellous of skill. He was assisted by his little daughter. The crowd was very orderly and in spite of the large number of cars no accidents were reported.

CENTRAL GUARDIAN

INJURED IN ACCIDENT—Several cuts on the head and a few minor injuries were received by a young man when an automobile turned over on its side on a hill near Hunter River. It is reported that while a companion was cranking the car, which was stopped on a slope, the machine slipped backwards down the hill, and ultimately reached the ditch, where it turned over on its side. The young man was brought to the P. E. I. Hospital for medical treatment.

CURTIS

ed to virulent attacks by Curtis' lawyers about the defendant's alleged "persecution" to win from him his famous hoax confession.

The surprise move came after a last-minute huddle of defence lawyers headed by Lloyd Fisher. Fisher explained he did not call Curtis because of the "indefinite nature" of the indictment and because the boat-builder on the stand would have to face Harry Stout, veteran lawyer who the defence vainly sought to oust from the prosecution staff at the beginning of the trial. Court observers interpreted this as a move by Fisher to leave the way open for an appeal should Curtis be convicted.

The case will go to the jury in the morning, Judge Adam O. Robbins announced after balloting an hour to each side for summations.

"I don't know what we are here to defend," said Ryman Herr, defence lawyer, "so I cannot outline our defence. All we can do is to prove John Hughes Curtis is a man respected and loved in the community in which he lives, a man whose word is accepted as the truth.

"That's all we will show. That's all we can show. I don't know what we are here for."

Colonel Lindbergh, who has remained at the prosecution counsel table throughout the five days of the trial, sat through the harrowing description by Harry Stout of the finding of the murdered baby's body and of the flyer's later identification of it in a Trenton morgue. His expression was changeless.

Curtis, too, was wooden-faced as Stout shook his finger in his direction and branded him "the most monumental liar we possess in the country."

"There's some reason I can't account for," said Stout, "why this man locks up in his boom the whereabouts of the kidnapper. He knows. Rather than disclose them he's willing to proclaim himself the most monumental liar on God's earth."

CUBS 11 S' SIDE 7

The Tignish Cubs proved themselves superior to the Summerside All Stars, when they met and defeated them on June 27th, by a score of 11-7.

FATALITIES

Two lost their lives when a stalled motorboat capsized on the Rainy River, near Fort Francis. They were Peter Johnson and Ray Cathcart of Narwick. Two others narrowly escaped a similar fate in the same upset.

Earl Dardiman, 11, of Hamilton attempted to display his prowess at bicycling along a retaining wall of the Burlington Canal and met death. His bicycle struck a water-logging post and went into the water, dragging him down with it.

Jimmie Ward, 16, was drowned when his raft was caught in the waters of Lake Ontario off Niagara-on-the-Lake.

Walter Paschke, 27, of Detroit lost his balance while fishing from a ferry boat in the Detroit River near Sandwich East and was drowned.

A headless body was found at Pointe Claire, Que., on the tracks. The victim, apparently over by a train, was believed to be Clarence Dawson, 44, of Winnipeg.

Noreen Evans, Heister, Alta school teacher, was suffocated when her automobile overturned and pinned her in soft mud near Carmore.

Harry H. Colpitts, 53, railway engineer, was drowned at Lake Hanson's, 40 miles east of Edmonton.

Prince County for a long time. The Tignish infield, behind their pitching hero, were working like a machine, and kept the All Stars from increasing their score, while they added four markers to their list before the game ended. The score now standing, as stated above, 11-7.

The teams played perfect ball throughout, and if the boys kept up the good work, undoubtedly the Island championship may be decided this year with greater difficulty than it has been during the last few years. Let's go boys.

It would be rather unfair to make any special mention of the different players, but Daley on the receiving end for Summerside, certainly took our eye, and surely was the Star among the boys from the Western Metropolis.

And to pick out a star from the snappy line-up from Tignish, given even greater difficulty, but the fielding and batting of Willie Allan and Oswald Murphy were superb.

The lineup follows: The Cubs Catcher All Stars H. Morrissey Pitcher Daley J. Dymer Doc Noonan J. Buote 1st base W. Peterk Murphy 2nd base McCabe W. Allan 3rd base Phillips Willie Allan Short Stop J. Young Married Couple Slain

NORTH WESTPORT, Mass., July 1.—Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Palletier, aged 24 and 23 years respectively, were found shot to death in their home today while their three-year-old son Arthur, Jr., lay crying in his crib. Police held Arthur D. Manchester, while they investigated his voluntary statement to police chief Norman B. Hopkinson that "I've killed a couple of people."
