

Woman's Realm -:- Social and Personal -:- Fashions -:- Literature

What the Fashionables are Wearing

Illustrated Dressmaking Lesson Furnished With Every Pattern

By Annabelle Worthington

A new straight slim type for general day wear or for active sports. You'll appreciate its serviceability as well as its extreme smartness.

Of course it platts its skirt to give youthful animation to the hem.

The long-waisted moulded bodice joins the skirt in unique scalloped outline to narrow the effect through the hips. The inset chemisette yoke may be made of contrasting colour or fabric.

A yellow shantung made the original with brown patent leather belt and brown buttons.

Style No. 3051 is designed for sizes 16, 18 years, 36, 38 and 40 inches bust. Size 36 requires 3 1/2 yards of 39-inch material.

Linen, men's silk shirting, pastel flat crepe silk, cotton mesh, printed batiste, novelty pique, linen and eyeletbatiste are ideally suited to this model.

Be sure to fill in the size of the pattern. Send stamps or coin (coin preferred).

Price of pattern 15 cents.

No. 3051. Size

Name

Street Address

City

State

ICE CREAM A CHOICE FOOD

"The older ones of us look back on the ice cream of our youth as a luxury, to be expected on festivals and holidays. The rising generation however, is coming to look on it as a food." These are the words of a food expert, Prof. Walter W. Prisk, of the New York State College of Agriculture. Prof. Prisk has said a truism here, as we older ones quite realize that it was a rare treat in our boyhood days to get a dish of ice cream.

A welcome change has come in the dietary of our people. We are eating lighter and more wholesome food. Ice cream is entering more largely into our diet. In 1930 our consumption per capita was one gallon, as compared with 5.26 pints in 1921. The reason is obvious—ice cream is now considered a food, rather than a luxury, and a good food it is, and highly recommended by the best medical and food authorities.

A noted authority says, "Ice cream is one of the best foods for children." Another says, "Ice cream is the one food which combines in a most unusual manner—rare palatability and high food value." "As a food, ice cream ranks among the best; as a dessert, it is unexcelled standard dessert in many homes and at community dinners, because it is so simple to get and to serve, and may be enjoyed by all, young and old. It certainly lightens the job of the hostess; in fact, ice cream is called the "first aid to the hostess."

In this age of motoring, we frequently have calls from our friends. The average housewife wishes to serve some refreshment. Naturally she does not want to serve a heavy, burdensome collation, nor even something commonplace. Her thoughts turn to ice cream—the food of gods—which is just the thing. If not in the "refrigerator," it may be had at a few minutes' notice, as ice cream service has become so perfected that there is rapid delivery.

And then—ice cream for the children's, or even the grown up's party. What is better or more delicious to serve? It goes right to the spot. Ice cream for the children? Yes, 'tis the children's delight. It tastes good and is good. Who does not relish an ice cream cone, or ice cream sandwich?

Here's a story to finish: Banker Filroy looked up from his desk to see two pretty girls, perhaps four years old, smiling at him. "Is this where you get money changed?" asked one of them. He told them it was. "Well," she went on, "here's a nickel we'd like to get changed for two nickels, so we can each buy an ice cream cone."

Did they get their nickel changed? Well, I should say. And two happy small girls trudged across the street to the Kandy Kitchen, from which they emerged a little later with an ice cream cone apiece.

End Piles Quick

No Salves — No Cutting

Your itching, bleeding, protruding piles will go when you actually remove the cause—bad blood circulation in the weak, flabby parts—and not one minute before. Salves or cutting can't do this—an internal remedy must be used. HEM-ROID, prescription of Dr. J.S. Leonard, succeeds because it stimulates the circulation, drives out congested blood, heals and restores the almost dead parts. HEM-ROID has such a wonderful record right in this City, that Geo. Hughes says one bottle of HEM-ROID Tablets must end your life agony or money back.

YOUR CHILD Not Stupid—Handicapped

The seeming stupidity of many school children, is directly chargeable to faulty vision.

Correctly fitted glasses often work wonders.

Have your child's eyes examined NOW

G. F. HUTCHESON F. Gordon Hutcheson Optometrists—At your service.

Quicker, Better Repairs—

In the home can be made when you use our high grade tools. Sturdy, well-made planes; hatchet screw drivers that always work; saws that cut free and easy—these are but a few typical suggestions for the handy man in the home. An inspection of our large stock will be well worth your while.

The Rogers Hardware Co., Limited

Etiquette

By Roberts Lee

Q. What must an acknowledgment of an invitation state?

A. Whether or not the writer will attend and an expression of sincere appreciation.

Q. How does a house guest get her laundry done?

A. By paying the maid of the house for the work.

Q. How many courses should the fashionable luncheon menu include?

A. Not more than four.

A Morning Smile

BILLY'S WISE CHOICE

It was the day before Billy's birthday.

"I want you to come with me to choose a new pair of trousers," said the boy's mother. "They will be a present from father and myself."

Reaching the village High Street, mother and son made a good inspection of the shops.

"Have you seen a pair that you like yet?" asked mother, as they were gazing into a clothier's shop.

"Not yet mum!" replied the boy.

Presently they moved on to another shop and before the boy's mother had time to look around Billy gave an exclamation of delight.

"I've decided mum" he said, "I'll have that pair marked 'Cannot be beaten.'"

For The Cook

APPLE AND ORANGE MARMALADE

Six large oranges 3 lemons 9 apples 9 cups sugar 3 cups water. Pare and slice apples then cover with the juice from the three lemons. Scrub oranges then cut into thin slices. Shred lemon rind. Mix together add sugar and water and let stand a few hours. Bring slowly to the boiling point and simmer until the consistency of marmalade—usually about one and a quarter hours. Place in small sterilized jars and seal.

CHINA SIGNS JUNKERS CONTRACT

NANKING, Aug. 20. (U. P.)—A draft contract has been signed between the Ministry of War and the German Junkers Airplane Company for establishing an airplane factory in Nanking. The contract provides for capital of $3,000,000 (silver), two-thirds to be taken up by the Ministry of War and one-third by the German company.

BIRDS TO FIGHT INSECTS

ASHELAND, Wis., Aug. 20 (U. P.)—Widespread construction of birdhouses has been advocated here as an aid in combating insect pests, more numerous this season than for many years. Birds are one of the greatest factors in controlling the pests, E. F. Pruett, county agent declared.

Salesmanship

Business Man—"What do you do with all these pictures you paint?"

Modernist Artist—I sell them, sir.

Business Man—Well, name your terms, my man. I've been looking for a salesman like you for years.

Sad

"Yes," he said sadly, and there was a tear in his eye. "Yes, my business has driven me to the wall."

"What did you give your husband for a birthday present?" "The cigarettes I have taken from him secretly during the year."

New Solution to Divorce Problem Dorothy Dix Discusses Ex-Wife As Cook For Husband

The Man Who Hired His Divorced Wife as a Cook Will Probably Live With Her Henceforth in Perfect Peace — For He Will Need to Behave to Keep His Cook, And She to Hold a Good Job

The newspapers have recently told the story of a man who got a divorce from his wife and immediately hired her as a cook. Thus simply was solved two of the great problems of divorce — how the woman shall support herself and how the man will get his food prepared the way he likes it and his buttons sewed on.

No doubt this arrangement furnishes a succulent morsel of gossip which the neighborhood in which this couple lives is rolling over its tongue, for the traditional attitude of a divorced husband and wife is held to be one of bitter hatred and rancor and reviling. The correct etiquette of the occasion is supposed to be for them to fly as far from each other as is possible and to pray heaven that her or she may never set eyes again on the villain who has wrecked his or her happiness.

But in actuality few divorced couples feel any animosity toward each other. Often they like each other and appreciate each other's good qualities far more after they are separated than they did while they were living together. They would even like to be friends except that public opinion forces them into a pose of enmity. For Mrs. Grundy would raise her eyebrows in horror if Mary Jones was seen having a pleasant conversation with her former husband, Sam Snooks, and the sewing society would call an extra session to discuss the matter if Sam Snooks took his ex-wife, Mary Jones, out to dinner and the theatre.

Yet all that was the matter with Mary Jones and Sam Snooks was that they were not congenial and didn't suit each other and couldn't hit it together. Each likes the other enormously as a friend, but not as a husband or wife and if that relationship could be eliminated they would get along peacefully and amiably enough and even enjoy each other.

For the thing that seems to be chiefly the matter with marriage is the sense of possession it gives so many people and the right to tyrannize over the party of the other part that they feel that it confers upon them. That is why most husbands and wives treat each other with a lack of politeness and consideration that they show to no other human being on earth and say things to each other that they would never dream of saying to any one else. To the outside world they are suave, courteous, tasteful, blarneying, but at home they are rude, ill-tempered and tell each other home truths with a brutal disregard of each other's feelings.

There is nothing else quite so pathetic as the fact that the average husband and wife ask nothing of each other except to be treated as well as he or she would if he or she were a perfect stranger. John Jones would go about beating upon the cymbals and calling upon heaven to witness the success of his marriage if he had a wife who never nagged him, who never reminded him of his faults, who recognized that an adult male who is capable of running a business and supporting a family is entitled to a little personal liberty and who nimbly side-stepped the topics that were as a red rag to a mad bull to him, who dolled herself up for him and made a conscious effort to keep him entertained and amused and who jollied him along.

And Mary Jones would spend her time on her knees thanking God for having bestowed upon her His choicest blessing, if she had a husband who noticed what she had on and told her that she got prettier every year, who complimented her good dinners and praised her for her thrift, who took her out to places of amusement now and then without having to be badgered into it, who handed her out his best line of conversation of an evening instead of grunting at her when she spoke and who generally made her feel that it was a pleasure and an honor to be married to her.

Why matrimony should have such a deleterious effect on people's manners, nobody knows. It merely does. Husbands and wives save a peculiarly offensive brand of rudeness for each other and reserve their choicest insults for home consumption. No woman, for instance, ever tells any other man except her husband that she has heard his pet story so often that she will shriek if she hears it again or that she considers him a fat old nitwit or twits him with not making as much money as some other man.

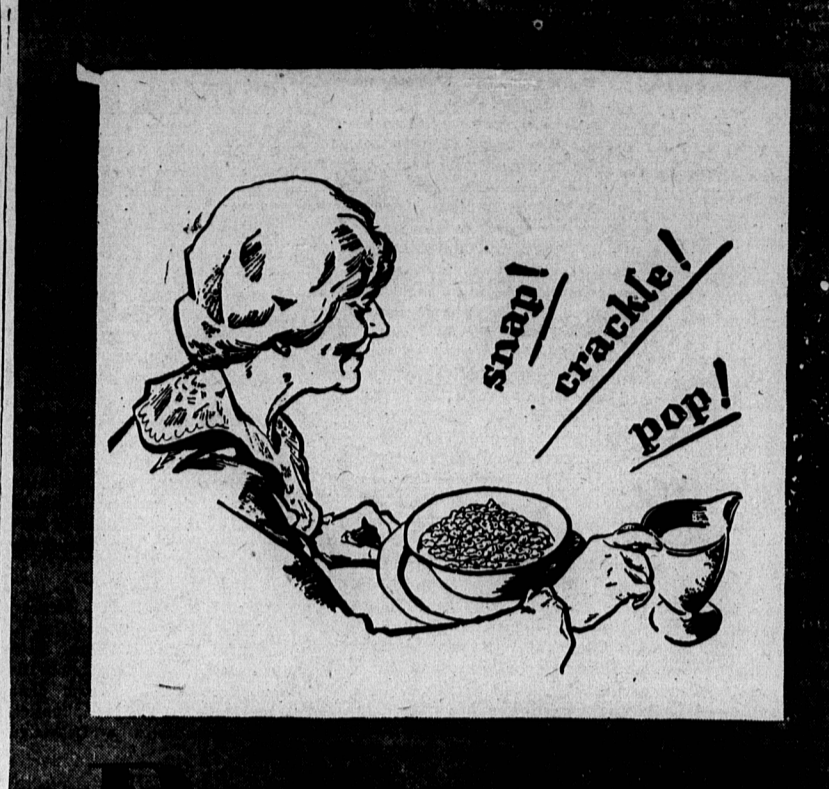

No man feels privileged to call any other woman except his wife a fool and to tell her that she doesn't know what she is talking about. This pleasant little repartee is reserved for the family circle.

It is because husbands and wives think that marriage gives them some inexplicable right to be mean and hateful to each other that makes marriage so often a failure. For it is only husbands and wives who feel that they do not have to bother to keep each other placated. No woman "sass" her boss as she does her husband or takes the chances on losing a good job as she does on losing her wedding ring. No man expects any other woman but his wife to work without wages or says the things to his secretary, who can get up and leave, that he says to his wife.

The chances are that the couple mentioned at the beginning of this article who fought their way to the divorce court, but who emerged from it with the wife employed as the cook to her ex-husband because he liked her pies, will live together henceforth like suckling doves, because, no longer being married, they will have to try to please each other for the man to keep a good cook and the woman to keep a good job.

And in this situation there is food for thought for all husbands and wives.

DOROTHY DIX.

Believe it or not...

Kellogg's RICE KRISPIES

THERE'S one delicious ready-to-eat cereal that actually crackles out loud when you pour on milk or cream. It's Kellogg's Rice Krispies.

Tossed rice. Nourishing. Packed with flavor. Easy to digest. Crisp beyond compare. No wonder grown-ups and children love it.

Serve for breakfast, lunch — with fresh or canned fruits or honey. Have for the kiddies' supper. Enjoy a bowlful before going to bed.

And be sure to try in cookery. Kellogg's Rice Krispies take the place of nuts in delicious macaroons, candies, desserts. Sprinkle into soups.

You'll want to get genuine Kellogg's Rice Krispies in the red-and-green package. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario. The only cereal so crisp it crackles in cream.

You'll enjoy Kellogg's Slumber Music, broadcast over WJZ and associated stations of the N. B. C. every Sunday evening at 10:30 E. S. T. Also KFI Los Angeles, KOMO Seattle at 10:00, and KOLA Denver at 10:30.

In The Silver Chest

It is one thing to decide to "give silver" to the season's crop of brides and quite another thing to know how to select it wisely and with reasonable economy.

In this day of small homes, for example, it is quite permissible to make up an assortment built around the unit of four instead of six or eight, as in more expensive days. The question of selection then becomes . . . what pieces will be needed to serve nicely the bride and groom and two invited guests. The list works out about like this:

- Soup Course—
- 4 dessert spoons
- Meat course—
- 4 dinner forks
- 4 dinner knives
- 4 tea knives (for bread and butter.)
- Salad course—
- 4 dessert forks
- Dessert course—
- 4 dessert forks
- 4 dessert spoons
- 4 coffee spoons
- Miscellaneous use—
- 12 teaspoons

In selecting soup spoons you may prefer the round-bowled type, but the dessert spoons are equally correct and have the advantage of being suitable for serving and for cereal at breakfast.

Likewise because of their possibility for greater duty, for the salad course dessert forks, and tea knives

MAYOR PEACEMAKER KILLED

PANAMA, Aug. 20 (U. P.)—A martyr to his own efforts as peacemaker, Mayor Antonio Moreno, of the small interior town of Los Santos, died from the effects of the bullet wound in the abdomen, fired at random in a drunken brawl. Mayor Moreno attempted to stop a quarrel between two brothers. A he interfered, one of the brothers fired his revolver and a bullet struck the mayor. A by-stander also was wounded.

WEBSTER'S DIRECTORY FOUND

BOSTON, Aug. 20.—A Boston directory issued to Daniel Webster in 1827 and bearing his signature has been found in the files of Sampson & Murdock, publishers of the Boston directory at present. The book listed 12,000 persons and their occupations, compared with 430,000 in the 1931 issue.

MAYOR GOES BACK TO DRILLING

FREESPORT, O., Aug. 20 (U. P.)—Mayor Jess Jenkins has found it necessary to return to his occupation as a well-driller to make a living. His salary of $80 a year isn't enough for him to subsist on, he says. Jenkins achieved notoriety when he sent council members home from council meetings because they wore overalls and blue shirts.

RIOT FOLLOWS MACHINE

TOKIO, Aug. 18. (U.P.)—Genri Li and 100 other Korean laborers face trial because they fought a machine and lost. The men were leaders of workmen employed in digging gravel from the bed of the Tama River for use in road building. When an automatic machine was installed to replace the, they attacked it and injured a number of police, who were guarding the handful of operatives. Thousands of Korean laborers in Japan are idle because of the continued installation of heavy machinery.

MR. AND MRS. And There Are Probably Three More In His Winter Overcoat By BRIGGS

