Juvenile Royals Go Two Up In Battle For City Title Beating Canadiens 4-2

Walter Lawlor's Juvenile Royals won their second straight game in the battle for the city juvenile title when hey rapped in three third period goals at the Forum last night to defeat the Holy Redeemer Canadiens 4-2. Royals need one more win to place them in the Island finals against the winners of the Kensington-Borden series.

For practically the entire game last night the hard-fighting Canadiens were every bit as good as their opponents but wilted in the last moments of the game to allow the Royals to slam in the two markers that meant their margin of victory.

Leading the sniping parade last night for the Royals was the tall, hard-shooting Walter Simmons. Simmons(, teaming up with Pud Beer were the spearheads of the Royals' attack with the former getting three of the goals on close-in drives.

Both teams opened out wide from the opening whistle and for six minutes both goalies were called upon for spectacular saves. Finally, however, Royals capitalized, Beer going right in on a pass from Dakin to open the scoring. Canadiens hammered back hard and often and finally at 14:25 they accounted for the equalizer as Reggie Martin hard-working winger slammed the disc home on an unassisted play.

All through the second period with play moving rapidly from one end to the other both goalies were unbeatable and the teams started the final session still deadlocked 1-all.

Royals struck 53 seconds after the final period opened Simmons going in close on a pass from Beer to give young McKinnon no chance on a low, whistling drive. Cnaadiens forged back again and once more knotted the count as Earl McCourt, sturdy and dependable defenceman of the losers, slammed one behind Cudmore from the blueline.

But the Royals took control in the last 10 minutes of the game. Young McKinnon time and again made great saves but twice before the session ended Simmonds drove in goals. The first one came at 11:25 with McDougall and Beer getting assists and the final goal of the encounter was at 13:26 on a Beer to Sommons play.

Manitoba Meets First Defeat At Hands Of B. C. In Dominion Curling Bonspiel

By Harold Atkins
Canadian Press Staff Writer

QUEBEC, March 4—(CP)—The Campbells are coming—fast.

In fact, Donld Campbell's British Columbians and Gordon Campbell's Ontarians are doing their best to monopolize the proceedings in the Macdonald's Brier Tankard playdowns for the Canadian Curling Championship.

Don Campbell's Vancouver rink rounded out a day of brilliant play tonight by upsetting the hitherto unbeaten Manitoba rink skipped by J. Ken Watson 13-11 in a sixth round match. And the Hamilton rink skipped by his brother, Gordon, topped Alberta's John Slavik 14-13 in another sixth-round game.

The result of these matches was to leave Ontario and Manitoba tied with five victories and a loss apiece at the top of the standing while British Columbia, Alberta and Dan Connolly's New Brunswick rink, a victor 10-8 over Northern Ontario's Bill McMitchell in the sixth round tied with four triumphs and two losses each.

Tonight's other matches saw Nova Scotia, represented by John I. Hebb's Bridgewater rink, scoring its first victory by defeating the Quebec tema skipped by J. A. Ross, Jr., of Huntingdon 7-6 while Prince Edward Island's W. R. Cruikshank of Charlottetown won 10-7 against the Saskatchewan rink skipped by John Franklin of Rosetown.

Prince Edward Island led from the first end against Saskatchewan. Nova Scotia's skip, John Hebb, broke up a close struggle against Quebec when he drew to the button with his first shot on the last end. Ross, winless in six rounds, failed to displace the stone. Two dead ends featured the Quebec-Nova Scotia match.

Three shots on the 10th end by Northern Ontario almost spelled defeat for New Brunswick, which had held a lead from early in the struggle. But skip Connolly pulled off a nice double raise to fall in for shot at the 12th end, sewing up the game.

In an afternoon match the battle between the two Maritime rinks swung in favor of Prince Edward Island at the fourth end when Cruikshank pulled out four shots. The Charlottetown rink piled in four shots behind the button and the Nova Scotians were short on attempts to lie on the counting rock.

Over the rest of the distance, Cruikshank held away and skip John Hebb made only one threat to pull up a heavy deficit when he scored three shots at the ninth end, which the Islanders got back at the 12th to take the match 15-7.

Memorial games In Basketball

TORONTO, March 4—(CP)—Basketball teams in various parts of Canada have taken part in the "Golden Ball" games. The proceeds are going into Canadian Victory Bonds to be used eventually in the construction of a Memorial Hall at the Y.M.C.A. College in Springfield, Mass., in honor of Dr. James Naismith, a native of Almonte, Ont., and graduate of McGill University, Montreal. The late Dr. Naismith founded basketball at Springfield College 50 years ago.

Similar "Golden Ball" games are being played all across the United States and the proceeds from them are to be held for the duration of the war in United States Defence Bonds.

The Canadian committee for the Golden Jubilee year of basketball is composed of Dr. A. S. Lamb of McGill University; J. H. Crocker of the University of Western Ontario; A. J. Hardy of Toronto; A. M. Harding, Secretary of Physical Education, National Council Y.M.C.A., Toronto, and Miss Dorothy Jackson of Margaret Eaton School, Toronto.

Some of the teams which have already taken part in "Golden Ball" games are: University of Western Ontario; Assumption College, Windsor, Ont.; Pickering College, Pickering, Ont.; Central Y.M.C.A., Montreal; Comm. Y.M.C.A., Sudbury, Ont.; University of New Brunswick; Moose Jaw Y.M.C.A., Sask.; University of British Columbia; McGill University and many others.

Canada's Hockey Swept Up And Up In Its 77 Years

By Scott Young
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, March 4—(CP)—About 77 years ago, on the Dartmouth Lakes in Nova Scotia, icehockey was born. There were no rules, no set number of men to a team. Schoolboys played it, and Indians. The sticks had shorter handles, rounded heels, blunt blades and were called hurleys. A ball was used, not a puck. The goalposts were rocks set on the ice.

Today hockey is Canada's national game, with 25,000 registered players and an undetermined number—probably about 50,000—unregistered. From Dartmouth it spread to Kingston, Ont., and Montreal, its main exponents in Kingston being a garrison of British troops which had been moved there after service in Nova Scotia. The game followed Canadians to many parts of the world; first to the United States, then to Britain, the mainland of Europe, and Ausralia.

Crowds mounting into millions watch hockey in North America every year, in professional, senior, junior and minor leagues across the continent. In North American professional team sports, it ranks second in importance only to baseball. Among Canadian professional sports, it is second to none. Hockey is going only one way: up.

Hockey on the River

In 1879 a few students at McGill University in Montreal drew up crude rules and played a type of hockey on the St. Lawrence river. The next year the game progressed into a loose inter-class league, and within the next couple of years other Montreal clubs were formed. McGill won the world's first icehockey carnival in the winter of 1882-83. In 1888 a Royal Military College team was formed at Kingston and played what has been termed erroneously the first game of organized hockey.

The sport's first controlling body was the Ontario Hockey Association, organized in 1890. As the game became popular in Quebec, the Maritimes and later Western Canada, other provincial associations were formed.

But provincial organizations became unwieldy without a central authority, a position not quite filled by the Amateur Athletic Union. So in 1914 a group of hockey enthusiasts from many parts of Canada met in Ottawa to form the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, with Dr. W. F. Taylor of Winnipeg the first president. The guiding hand of the A.A.U. rested heavily on the game until about 10 years ago, when hockey began to shake loose. Soon the break was complete, and the C.A.H.A. has become one of the most enlightened sports organizations in the world. The A.A.U. is little but a shadow in the background.

Col. Byron A. Weston of Halifax remembers playing hockey's primitive version on the Dartmouth lakes in 1865-66-67. He recalls only one rule, and it was a flexible one and more a matter of conscience: The players were not supposed to raise the hurleys over their shoulders and slash at the opposition. That rule has been maintained in the modern game, although it still is more a matter of conscience—both of the players and referees—than of actual fact.

Skates in Col. Weston's time were blades fitted to wooden supports and screwed or strapped to the skaters' shoes. Capt. J. T. Sutherland of Hamilton, Ont., also was one of the earliest hockey players. He recalls hockey being played in and around Halifax before Confederation.

Amateur Control

The super organization of the C.A.H.A. controls Canadian finals in senior and junior divisions of the amateur game, but one of the most historic of hockey competitions stems from one of the childhood stamping grounds of the sport, Kingston. The R.M.C. began in 1923 an annual hockey game with West Point Military Academy. Until it was interrupted by the war (it will be resumed this year) R.M.C. won all but two games. In 1935 the game ended in a 4-4 tie, and in 1939 West Point won 3-2. There never has been a penalty in this series.

More important from a spectator standpoint are the annual Dominion competitions. Ottawa Cliffsides won the first playing of the Canadian senior championship in 1908. Eleven years later University of Toronto Schools took the first Canadian junior crown. The Stanley Cup, originally a challenge competition although the National Hockey League has eliminated the challenge aspect, was won first in 1894 by the Montreal Amateur Athletic Association.

A. M. Crosby of the Toronto Victoria club was head of the first hockey organization in the world, the Ontario Hockey association. He was elected Nov. 27, 1890, when the O.H.A. was formed. His vice-presidents were H. A. Ward of Port Hope and John A. Barron of Stratford.

Pro Co-Operation

Most healthy development in the sport since it spread from Dartmouth to Montreal and Kingston has been the increasing collaboration between amateur and professional organizations. The recently-approved subsidy paid by the National and American Hockey Leagues for amateur players turning professional takes much of the financial burden from men who have been responsible for the development of the game since it was placed first under organization in 1890.

Royals Meet N. B. Champs At Forum Tonight In Opening Game Of Junior Series

Fresh from an impressive victory over a strong Saint John team that netted them the New Brunswick title Moncton Wheelers meet the defending champions, the Junior Royals tonight at the Forum in the first game of a total goal series to decide the New Brunswick—P.E.I. junior hockey title.

And it is a strong, well-balanced team that will sport the Moncton colors tonight against the Royals, who for the fourth year in a row will be skating out to defend their Maritime junior title. Wheelers led by the Cormier, Drisdelle-Cormier line routed the St. John team in their final game to win 8-3 and that same line collected eleven scoring points. But the other combinations that the Wheelers will throw against the local youngsters are reputed to be every bit as strong as the above mentioned trio. They have a smooth-working goalie and a hard-hitting set of defencemen and judging from reports heard of the New Brunswick titlists Royals will face the strongest opposition they have been forced to ever since they won the crown three years ago.

But Royals last night were fit and ready to start out on the playdown trail. Stiff workouts and vigorous practice games has kept the squad in A-1 condition and from the coach down they were confident last night of giving the visitors a taste of the hockey that has kept them at the op of the heap so long. There isn't an injury in the entire squad and last night it was early to bed for the boys as they keenly looked forward to their first test.

And irrespective of the winners fans are bound to see once more the thrilling, wide-open rugged battle that only the juniors can produce. In the game just purely for the love of it the kids fight to the last ounce of stamina they possess in order to be returned the victors and it is up to the fans here to get solidly behind the boys and attend the encounter in large numbers. A big attendance will help the team both financially and morally and if they see the fans are really interested then they will work just that much harder in order to chalk up the all-important first victory of the series. It will not be a matter of getting the lead and then attempting to hold it but Royals will go out in search for goals from the opening whistle in an effort to pile up as big a lead as possible to carry into the second game to be played on New Brunswick ice.

Tonight's game will get away around 8.30 and it is hoped that the Forum will be packed to see the kids perform their stuff, stuff that will thrill, and elate and surprise you.
