Expand Cadets: The expansion of the Canadian air cadet organization to a force of 50,000 teenagers in the next year was announced today by Group Capt. D.C. McNeill, national director of the air cadet program in Canada, on the occasion of the 10th anniversary of the program.

Group Capt. McNeill said his program was based on air cadet program during the league's first year, when more than 15,000 boys enrolled in the program.

It is hard to realize that two years ago the site where this air school now stands was a barren field, but now under the supervision of Group Capt. Fullerton has developed into a training centre for classes of air cadets and ground crew. It is very commodious and speaks for itself.

The Premier spoke with pride of the graduates of the Maritimes, other parts of Canada and also those who are now doing their part in the great air battle over Europe.

He made special reference to the part the Canadian airman are playing in the present great offensive.

A new agreement to continue the freight payments on coarse grain shipped east from Port William and west from Charlottetown and Edmundson was being considered, Mr. Gardiner said. The present agreement expired this month and a decision on a new one was expected within a week.

NEW YORK, June 2 (AP)—Mussolini's young son-in-law, Count Galeazzo Ciano, is rapidly becoming one of Italy's richest men.

The speed with which this handsome playboy has become a dictator's favorite child, Edda, has built a fortune is a greater private scandal in Italy than the rapidity with which he rose from vice-consul at Shanghai to foreign minister at Rome.

The ways in which Ciano has acquired his wealth are various. Some say he has figured as one way. His official position has enabled him to play the market, buying the depressed stocks of prosperous companies until he and a few cronies have gained control.

Ciano's agents have bought great areas of rich Tuscany farmland in the famous Chianti wine country for him. His own corporations, a newspaper—Il Tevere di Leghorn—and other valuable properties. His apartment, which occupies a whole floor of a modern building in Rome's most fashionable quarter, is richly furnished and incidentally the reputed scene of lavish entertainments.

Ciano enjoys life in a lusty way. He likes a crowd of girls around him, at dinner or on the beach. He prefers check-to-check dancing to diplomatic conferences.

When the chambers of the world were feverishly preoccupied with the German-Soviet bombshell pact of August, 1939, Ciano was on the beach at Ostia with a beautiful blond within view of half-a-dozen foreign diplomats.

He and Edda lead more or less separate lives.

beef because of the difficulty in obtaining help and low prices obtainable for dairy products. These arguments were a high-light of the afternoon's discussion of agricultural matters while the House was in committee on the war appropriation resolution. The argument was made that because many of the complaints from members representing agricultural ridings were based upon the operations of the price ceiling control for which Finance Minister Lisle is responsible and his department was not under discussion.

Several members contended the price ceiling and wage controls were so out of line so far as agriculture was concerned that it was being made increasingly difficult for farmers to carry on.

At question time, Munitions Minister Howe was asked by Howard Green (Con. Vancouver South) about a report from Washington that a production council was being set up this week to ensure the most efficient use of British, American and Canadian resources.

He observed that Canada was not to be directly represented on the council but that Donald M. Nelson, United States production head, would act for the Dominion and asked if this were true.

Mr. Howe said no production council had been set up as yet but that discussions on the subject were taking place in Washington this week and he would take part in them. Until the council was formed he could not answer questions about representation.

Mr. Hanson brought up the announcement yesterday that a large supply of potatoes for this year's Canadian crop and protested that it came too late to affect this year's seeding.

Mr. Gardiner said his departmental experts had assured him the acreage sown this year should supply the Canadian and export markets and any additional requirements in the United States.

Mr. Hanson said he was under the impression that there had been a sharp reduction of potato acreage this year but the Agriculture Minister said he had not heard of it.

A new agreement to continue the freight payments on coarse grain shipped east from Port William and west from Charlottetown and Edmundson was being considered, Mr. Gardiner said. The present agreement expired this month and a decision on a new one was expected within a week.

Costain, Bloomfield; Frank Sheehy, St. Louis; James Henderson, Beque; Irving Hardy, Elmidae; James G. MacLean, Central Lot 18; Major Carruthers, Augustine Cove.

CIVIL NON JURY CASE: John J. Gillis vs. Daniel B. MacNeill.

REPORT OF F. J. E. WRIGHT, Sheriff of Prince County: The following number of persons have been serving sentence since the last sitting of the Court: 12 for breach of Prohibition Act; 15 for breach of Excise Act; 24 for being drunk and disorderly; 4 for assault; 2 for damage to property; 2 for breach of Prohibition Act; 2 for obstructing a police officer; 1 for assault; 1 for breach of Highway Traffic Act; 1 for serving; 4 for breach of Excise Act; 1 for vagrancy.

JUDGE'S ADDRESS: In his address to the Jury Mr. Justice Saunders gave a comprehensive review of the war situation. Contrary to prevailing opinion, he believed the war will end suddenly and triumphantly before the end of this year. In this connection he cited the tremendous development in fighting power of the United Nations.

On the side of the allies, he emphasized, is the British Empire, United States, Russia and China, and many of the smaller subjugated countries with all their industries, their wealth and natural resources.

They have an aggregate population of over eleven hundred million people. The axis powers consisting of Germany, Austria, Japan, Italy, Rumania, Bulgaria and Hungary, have at present under their control much wealth and natural resources, but far less than the allies. They have an aggregate population of about two hundred and seventy millions of people.

The industries of all countries engaged in war are working at full capacity. "One can safely say today the allies are producing much more essential war armaments and equipment such as guns, tanks, planes, and warships than the axis powers," said Judge Saunders. "I, therefore, am sure the allies have more men than the axis countries, and they are better equipped with all the necessary and essential armaments of war, why should they not defeat the axis powers?"

"I think it is an exaggeration to say that Hitler shot his bolt before the 22nd of June, 1941. He had been preparing for this war for years. He was manufacturing all kinds of implements of war since 1933.

"He had unquestionably many thousands of modern tanks of all types and classes. The same is true regarding airplanes. And he had by far the finest and best trained army and air force in the world when in September he struck at Poland.

"He met with the greatest possible success up to the 22nd of June, 1941, and as a result of his conquests, has reaped the benefit of the wealth and resources of this conquered country."

"We are sometimes warned," said

Essen Is Blasted Kensington And Vicinity

(Continued from page 1) troops and gun posts were attacked from low levels. But it was the raid on Essen that overshadowed all else and brought new cheer to all Britain. It was the second time in three nights that more than 1,000 young Canadians were over objectives in enemy territory. On Sunday four squadrons of the R.C.A.F. and hundreds of Canadians in the R.A.F. had a part in blasting Cologne. Last night nine R.C.A.F. squadrons took part in the raiding of Essen.

Although the R.A.F. lost 38 planes on the overnight foray, the bombers which raided Essen shot down a ME-109, a Focke-Wulf 190 and sent ME-10 down with its port engine in flames when German night fighters tried to bar the way to the Ruhr.

Air Ministry accounts of the Essen raid said that low clouds and ground haze forced the pilots to make a careful search for the targets.

Essen In Flames: Nevertheless, the pilot of a Lancaster four-motored bomber who spent 37 minutes over his objective said "the streets marked dark lines" and that the city was in flames. Typical British understatement he added: "Widespread damage had been done."

Commons a preliminary report on this tremendous attack. Mr. Churchill declared that many fires were left and went on to present what lies ahead for the Germans.

"I do not wish it to be supposed," he said, "that all our raids in the immediate future will be above this four-figure scale."

"The methods of attack will be continually varied, according to circumstances."

"On the other hand, these two great night bombing raids mark the introduction of a new phase in the offensive against Germany, and they will increase markedly in scale when we are joined, as we soon shall be, by the air force of the United States.

"As the year advances all German cities, harbors and centres of war production will be subjected to air attack of the like of which never has been experienced by any country in the history of the world."

The communication of the War Ministry identified the industrial Ruhr generally, "including areas as the theatre of the assault and while the Germans did not mention Essen they did report Duisberg and Oberrhein were raided."

With Essen itself, these cities form a great production triangle in the Ruhr.

"The main force of the British attack was being centred in the Essen area, other squadrons smashed at the enemy's airbases over great areas of the continent and the low countries to pin down his fighter plane defence."

All was conducted on a pattern of the R.A.F. to gain the loss of 35 planes was light against the vast scope of the operation. While much remained to be learned about these assaults, all available information indicated that they spread the sort of devastation which earlier had left Cologne a smoking ruin.

The Nazi high command, claiming R.A.F. assaults were "terror attacks directed against the civilian population," asserted that its own bombers overnight had attacked the historic cities of Canterbury and Ipswich.

It was believed American observers based several years of experience for the even mightier combined blows to come. U.S. air force chiefs with full R.A.F. co-operation were planning its greatest defence details of the tremendous operation of getting 1,000 or more heavy bombers over a single target in a single night.

They were hardly back this morning before the day shift of fighter command planes went roaring through the channels. One Spitfire section drove off a force of Messerschmitts "though outnumbered by four to one" and another section, "tired of looking for a fight went down to ground level and shot up gun posts and German troops."

We wish to go on record as opposed to the increase in the liquor traffic in Canada, and suggest drastic measures be taken by those in authority to materially curtail the production and sale of intoxicating liquor.

The above recommendations are respectfully submitted. (Sgd.) W. H. Slackford. For self and others.
